LIBERAL UNION OF MINNESOTA An interesting meeting held in the Unitarian Church.

An interesting program was given this morning at the regular meeting of the Liberal Union of Minnesota, which was held in the First Unitarian church. There was no business to be transacted and Mrs. P. L. McKusick presided in the absence of Mrs. Marion D. Shuter, the president. Mrs. T. H. Hall of Rochester gave an account of the Rochester rector, which is famous through the United States. The room was opened by the members of the Women's club in 1888. There was need for such a place for the farmers' wives could not afford to do it and they went to the hotel and had to spend the day in the stores or walking the streets. Their presence was a serious inconvenience to the merchants and the latter were unanimous in favor of the new project. The town was canvassed and money was raised without difficulty, no one was asked for more than 75 cents. The rooms were secured and the furniture donated. The attendance on the opening day was very large and no one who has been there since has failed to attend. One end of the apartment is screened for a luncheon and in the other a cot, cradle and easy chairs have been placed. A sewing school was opened with 100 children and eight traveling libraries have been circulated through the school teachers in the country districts. Two years ago it was feared the room would have to be closed for lack of funds but an appeal was answered and one group of country women sent $100. Each woman of the club gives one-half day a month to the room, acting as hostess, and the gratitude of the women and children who come in tired and chilled after a long ride is more than payment for her trouble.

Mrs. McKusick in speaking of Mrs. Hall's talk, suggested to the women that there was need of just such a place in Minneapolis near the Central market, as any one who had visited the market on a summer day would see.

Mrs. Emmanuelle Cohen gave an exhaustive talk on "Isalah." She spoke of the change in the method of studying the Bible from the figures of divinity to the present day, when students no less reverent because more sensible, regard the prophets as representative men of their time and place. Isaiah, she considers, one of the greatest men in history, a practical statesman and a subtle poet of Hebrew classics. He was guided by an idea and no event was too large to be contemplated as a part of the divine preservation of the remnant of a race which held firmly to the belief of one God.

TRIBUTE TO MRS. PRATT Improvement League Remembers the Labors of Its Secretary.

A poem written by a Minneapolis woman for the occasion was read by Mrs. C. W. Keyes. Mrs. Pratt's aim for the organization and would do this with renewed energy and earnestness.

DR. BURTON AS STAR Will Play the Old Musician in Play by That Name.

PLANS OF "U" DRAMATIC CLUB Something About the Part Dr. Burton Will Essay—One of Felix Morris' Gems.

The plans for the first and chief of the dramatic club of the University of Minnesota are almost completed. "The Old Musician," the second play, has been cast with the exception of choosing the part of Nina, the daughter. Dr. Richard Burton, the faculty adviser of the club, has decided to accept the invitation of the club to play the leading part in this play and to assume the role of the character Percival, Oscar Wren; D. Dixon, Mr. Mitchell.

This play is said to be the first one-act play to score a great success. It was one of the gems of Felix Morris' repertory and has not been played since his death. The rights for the presentation were secured from the estate of the late Felix Morris by a heavy royalty. The play was made with the idea of finding a congenial role for Dr. Burton and it believed that the play affords this.

"The Old Musician" is translated from the French and the scene is laid in an attic in Paris. In this the old man, deserted by friends and fortune, is starving. He has been robbed of his life by his unscrupulous landlord who has sold them very profitably and this rascal is striving to get into his possession the manuscript of an opera which he believes will make his fortune. In his anger and desperate days the old musician had a wife but had separated from her and knew nothing of the birth of his daughter. This child, grown to womanhood, learns of her father's existence and makes a search for him. She finds him in his attic. He has had one faithful friend, Percival, and to him the old musician marries his daughter.

Clayton D. Gilbert, dramatic director of the club, is developing rapidly the plans for the performance. An incidental dance by six young women will be introduced into "The Romancers," and the Mandolin club will also be used in this play.

The cast for "The Romancers" is as follows: Sylvette, Miss Lord; Percival, Mr. Sweet; Starford, Miss Campbell; Benjamin, Mr. Arnold; Parguinet, Mr. Brooks; Blaise, Mr. Collins.

The club is now fully organized for the work of the year. The limited membership of the club to year. The limited membership of the club to year.

"DAUGHTER OF THE NILE" Beautiful Illusion to Be Presented at Masonic Fair.

Perhaps the greatest attraction to be presented at the great Masonic fair, Dec. 2-7, will be that beautiful illusion originated by Lou Bert of Detroit, Mich., "The Daughter of the Nile." It will be seen in the Scotch hall, on the fourth floor of the Masonic Temple. The following will participate in the presentation:

Wilford C. Wilson, manager; Asa Paine and John Trevor, stage; J. C. Hayes and Judge H. Danforth Dickinson, lecturers; Professor S. C. Gilbert, Mrs. Maud Clark, organists; and "The Daughter of the Nile," will enter the beautiful hall, one will come face to face with the most wonderful illusion ever presented to the public, an exquisite marble statue, supposedly of Pharaoh's daughter, having been found in the ruins of an ancient temple. Gradually, under the mystic influence of Yahmoot-Talag, first cousin of the moon, the figure seems to become alive until as a beautiful living reality, in her simple white array, she stands before one exemplifying by ocular demonstration, that the tales of fairy land are not a myth. Only for a few moments does she remain alive, then back again to cold marble she turns, thus to remain possibly another three thousand years.
