MET IN THE KLONDIKE

Father and Son Each Ignorant of the Other's Existence.

The story of Thomas Kittleson and Thomas Kittleson, Jr., who are at a local hotel, is peculiar. Father and son met in the Klondike. Prior to that time neither knew of the existence of the other.

The Kittleson home was in Ridgewood, Iowa. The father left that place thirty years ago to seek fortune among the western mining camps. Later he learned that his wife had died; and consequently he never returned to the old town.

Afterwards, while prospecting near Indian Creek, Alaska, the two Kittlesons met and became friends. The similarity of names first attracted them, and conversation developed the fact that the younger man was a son of the older, Mrs. Kittleson had kept her boy's existence a secret from his father, and until chance threw them together the father had not known that he had a son. The two are now on their way to the old Iowa home.

The woman was taken to the city hospital and will probably recover.

SEEK AN 8-HOUR DAY

Team Drivers' Union Takes Steps to Secure It.

The recently organized Team Drivers' union is agitating for a uniform eight-hour day on all city work, including water work. The union sent the city council a communication last night asking it to set up a committee to study the matter. A special committee of one alderman from each ward will consider the matter. Every ward in the city with the exception of the second, third and fourth, has the eight-hour system in effect in its local affairs. This does not apply, however, to the street sprinklers. The aldermen say that it is impracticable to include the sprinkling work under an eight-hour system; the length of the working day there must necessarily vary with the weather conditions. They add that under average conditions street sprinklers get a full measure of leisure and must be prepared to work long hours and over time when the necessity exists; besides they are paid $15 a month more than the prevailing wages for men and teams.

BANKERS SAY IT IS GENERAL

They Especially Desire the Privilege of Issuing an Emergency Circulation.

Tom Reed's recent statement that all of the dissatisfaction with the present currency policy comes from the west and south is regarded by Minneapolis bankers and business men as too broad. They maintain that the east is as much interested in reform in currency as other sections of the country.

F. A. Chamberlain of the Security Bank of Minnesota says:

Money centers in every section of the country are interested in changes in the currency which would make it more elastic. The fall is forced to make heavy drafts upon the supply of money in the east to assist in moving the wheat crop. The south makes the heavy draft in moving its cotton crop. Instances are frequent where money goes to high rates, sometimes as high as 10 and 12 per cent, in eastern centers, due, of course, to the comparatively short supply. If the banks could issue an emergency circulation, such extreme condition could be easily met, and the west and south in the first place would not be forced to make such large requests of the east. Every new issue of temporary money stringency threatens business in eastern centers. An emergency circulation would remove the danger. This emergency circulation should be taxed high enough to force its retirement as soon as the urgent need for it is at an end. It would prove a valuable aid to business in every section of the country. For this reason the east has been discussing currency reform to a considerable extent.

BURTON HOLMES COMING

Will Soon Give Two New Illustrated Lectures Here.

There is no other railroad enterprise in the world that is attracting so much attention at the present time as the great Russian railway almost completed across Siberia. The line will be by all odds the longest continuous railway line in the world, being about 6,000 miles. Last summer Burton Holmes recently visited the line, and has recently returned equipped with illustrations and data for an intensely interesting lecture. People have heard much about this great railway, but nothing will impress the principal facts about it so well as the splendid colored illustrations, by means of the lantern, that will accompany Mr. Holmes' lecture. This railway has recently played a great part in history, Russia having used it to throw some 300,000 troops from Manchuria during the Russo-Japanese war, and is destined to play a great part in the history of the future.

Occupying a prominent position in the public view, also, is the Chinese question. Mr. Holmes has recently visited Peking and has returned prepared to give a most vivid account of the Chinese capital.

Two lectures, "Along the Trans-Siberian Railway," and "The City of Peking," will be given by Mr. Holmes in "The New Century Course," Friday and Saturday evenings, Jan. 3 and 4, at Plymouth church.

THE RUMMAGE SALE

Dr. Hallock's Position is Attracting Wide Attention.

In an issue of the Chicago Advance, this month, remarks made by Dr. L. H. Hallock of Plymouth Congregational church in this city, as a prelude to a Sunday evening sermon, were given in full. Dr. Hallock strongly denounced this way of increasing the church funds. The columns of the Advance are now taken up with attacks on Dr. Hallock's position. Among the contributors to the women and Rev. J. E. Smith of the Minneapolis Fifth Avenue Congregational church. Mr. Smith comes back at the doctor pretty hard.

In Dr. Hallock's mild protest against rummage sales there is a tone that grate disagreeably upon the independent church member's ear. "The poor churches," "the churches resorted to fairs and sales and donation parties to eke out their struggling parishes, we were silent though sadly tolerant, out of regard to the straits our impoverished brethren." This tone of high-mindedness, the autocratic "we" and the pope-or-ate "sadly tolerant" sneaks of a temper not exactly happy in Congregational harness. But why single out "the poor churches," "the churches Wednesday-morn lurches" was not a charity as everyone knows.

But the chief thorn in Dr. Hallock's flesh is his definition. He falls, however, in his definition. He has been fighting a thing of a disturbed imagination.

He fights a windmill of his own construction. We speak that we do know, and testify of that which we have seen. The needs of the churches have been brought to see for themselves the needs of their sisters less favored. Hearts have been touched, a sympathy has been kindled, and the doors have opened that would never have come about had the ladies of the church stood aloof in cold dignity.

REEDED'S NARROW

Restricted Dissatisfaction With Currency System to the West.

Those of the fifteen city fathers who voted against the municipal electric lighting proposition and who have since seen the matter in a new light, are to have a chance to set themselves right with their constituents. At last night's meeting of the council Alderman Leighton introduced his resolution to submit to a vote of the people a proposition to issue bonds for a lighting plant. The resolution differs from the other only in the amount of the bonds, which is $25,000, instead of $200,000. This change was made in deference to the expressed doubt of some of the aldermen that a plant of sufficient capacity to light the city would cost for $200,000.

It is said that many of the aldermen have been getting evidences of sentiment among their constituents quite contrary to their own as expressed in the former vote on the lighting proposition, and the assertion is made that there is now a fair chance to get the resolution through the next time it comes up.

The almost unanimous stand of organized labor on the proposition is also expected to cause some of the opposition to take a different view of the matter from that expressed by the former vote.

The resolution was referred to a special committee of one alderman from each ward with Alderman Leighton as chairman, as follows: Ryan, Chatfield, Merrill, Joseph Wilkey, James Larson, Larson, Dwyer, Peterson, Castle, Schoonmaker.

THE VOTE ON PARK BONDS.

The council ratified the action of the committee recommending the issue of $70,000 in bonds for park acquisition purposes. The vote was 18 to 8. The negative voters were: Pochell, Lane, Leighton, Nels J. Nelson, Main, McLuskey, McCoy, Larson.

Spur Track Allowed.

The ordinance granting the Northern Pacific Railway company the right to operate a spur track across Twentieth avenue N during the winter months for the purpose of getting logs to the Diamond mill was adopted.

David Jamison, for several years a foreman in the city engineer's department, was recently summarily discharged by the city engineer for striking another foreman. Last night he presented a communication to the city engineer for a chance to be heard by the governing committee. He says he was discharged without cause. He will be given a hearing.

BURTON HOLMES COMING

Will Soon Give Two New Illustrated Lectures Here.

There is no other railroad enterprise in the world that is attracting so much attention at the present time as the great Russian railway almost completed across Siberia. The line will be by all odds the longest continuous railway line in the world, being about 6,000 miles. Last summer Burton Holmes recently visited the line, and has recently returned equipped with illustrations and data for an intensely interesting lecture. People have heard much about this great railway, but nothing will impress the principal facts about it so well as the splendid colored illustrations, by means of the lantern, that will accompany Mr. Holmes' lecture. This railway has recently played a great part in history, Russia having used it to throw some 300,000 troops from Manchuria during the Russo-Japanese war, and is destined to play a great part in the history of the future.

Occupying a prominent position in the public view, also, is the Chinese question. Mr. Holmes has recently visited Peking and has returned prepared to give a most vivid account of the Chinese capital.
