THANKSGIVING BELLETT

American Teachers in Luzon Jungles Observe the Day—Minneapolis Boys Write Home.

Away up in the jungles of Benguet, in Luzon, among the savage Igorrotes, 10,000 miles away from their homes and friends, the little bunch of American teachers...

PECULIAR BURIAL CUSTOM.

Mr. Gallup describes a strange burial custom among the Igorrotes. It is said that the bodies are buried in a mine in a sitting posture during all that time, while his relatives and friends and fellow townsmen gather themselves up to a continuous round of feasting at the expense of the mine.

A SULTRY THANKSGIVING PARTY.

The Minneapolis men in this group of Philippine teachers are F. E. Force, next to the man at the right of the rear row, and Mr. Gallup, who is seated at the right. It will be noted that the six-shooter, navy size, is part of some of the teachers' educational equipment.

ANGORA BEAUTIES ON SHOW

A Few Fine Minneapolis Cats Will Be Seen at St. Paul's Charity Cat Show—Most Owners Unwilling to Risk Exhibition Dangers. Minneapolis cats will not be well represented, in point of numbers, at the charity cat show for the benefit of the Harriet Island day nursery in St. Paul, which will open in that city Wednesday and continue through Friday.

Cats with pedigrees are most susceptible to changes and the management of the show must be free from draughts. Then there is always the chance of some cat eluding the searching eye of the examining veterinary doctor and exposing every feline in the show to eczema, of which cat fanciers are ever in dread.

It is about a year and a half since the Misses Meeker became interested in raising cats. Before that they owned a show cat named Tabble, who was a white and had raised him from a kitten. When he was disposed of they sent to the Angoras, which are the most popular and received Little Egypt. She was only three months old and with the exception of a few white spots on her face and neck, she was a perfect black.

Among the cats which will go over from Minneapolis are the three beautiful Angoras owned by the Misses Meeker, Marc Antony, Danny Deever and Huckleberry Finn. Miss Slocum will send her red-and-white Angora, and there the list of exhibitors ends as far as Minneapolis is concerned.

The management of the cat show provides boxes for each cat and the owner furnishes a cushion which will set off her pet's beauty to the best advantage. The day before the show opens is devoted to the decoration of the boxes, and a man from Stillwater has announced his intention of hanging the temporary home of his cat with blue satin.

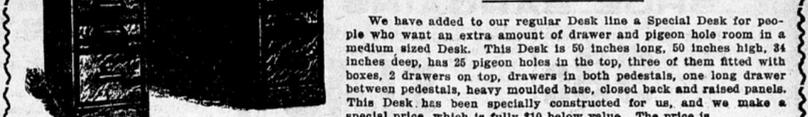

Each exhibitor pays an entrance fee of 50 cents, and after the medical examination is passed, the cat is placed in its box. The owner wishes to take her pet home at night she can do so on payment of $5 and giving a promise that the cat will be returned to the show by 10 o'clock the next day.

The prizes include a silver loving cup, offered by Dr. E. P. Whitcomb, for the best cat; a silver cup from Dr. J. O. Hyde, for the best tabby; and a long string of minor prizes all represented by red, blue and yellow ribbons. The points which the judge will cover are the shape of the head and its characteristics, eyes, fur, quality, tail, size, shape, condition and color, and the cats are divided into long-haired, short-haired, Persian, Angora, Maine, Burmese and Siamese.

Mrs. R. B. Beson, of St. Paul, is superintendent; Mrs. E. M. Sloggy, W. W. Good, of St. Paul; Mrs. J. N. Searies, Stillwater;

Creole Belles. My Creole Belle... I love her well... A-round my heart she has cast a spell... When stars do shine... I call her.

This is a strain of a popular tune which is now being played by many of our leading orchestras. It is the tremendous march two-step hit of the season. The melody is so catchy that it is being played in impossible. Nothing has equaled it in popularity since "Georgia Camp Meeting." Creole Belles is sure to become the musical craze over the country. It is certainly great.
