He was remanded to the Ramsey county jail.

MARKET FOR BONDS

No Difficulty in Finding One for Further School Issue.

ARR BONDS LEGAL? THE QUERY

Some Questions That May Be Raised by Excess of Debt.

If the people of Minneapolis, either by direct vote on the proposition themselves, or through the medium of the city council and the legislature, deem it advisable to issue bonds for the purpose of raising a loan, the standpoint of the bond buyer there is no objection that can reasonably be made, such at least is the opinion of W. G. Nye, former mayor of the city and himself a large dealer in municipal bonds.

The statement has been made that present holders of city bonds would look askance at the issue of a new loan. But the city's present bonded debt inasmuch as it exceeds the five per cent limit, as they bought Minneapolis bonds on the understanding that the city would not exceed, and as further additions to the bonded debt would have a tendency to lower the value of their holdings, it is not surprising that they are not in favor of the issue.

There is absolutely no ground for any such sentiment, declares Mr. Nye. He says: "If it is necessary to issue bonds for school or any other purposes in Minneapolis, holders of the present city bonds, I am positive, will make no objection to the issue of a new loan. Are the bonds legal, and is the city's credit such that the bonds can be sold to advantage? Just as long as Minneapolis confines itself to issuing bonds that are unquestionably legal, there will be no trouble in disposing of them and holders of present bonds will have no occasion to be prejudiced. In Massachusetts and most of the other New England states, the laws require that savings banks shall not buy bonds issued by cities in excess of a five per cent limit. But the bonds outstanding against the water department of a municipality, for instance, are not, under the laws of those states, regarded as part of the bonded debt. This law, Minneapolis' bonded debt is still below the five per cent limit, and until that point is reached, our bonds will continue to be bought by New England savings banks. The market in this country for municipal bonds, for the sake of gaining a year in time, I should think there was wisdom in the scheme of asking the legislature to authorize the issue of the school bonds desired. So far as the bond-buyers are concerned, it makes no difference whether the bonds are authorized in this manner, or by a vote of the people next fall, so long as they are legally issued.

CONCERTS IN PARKS

Local Musicians Oppose the Importation of Foreign Bands.

A REGULAR CAMPAIGN PLANNED

After Next Season They Hope to Restrict Such Work to Local Players.

Minneapolis musicians have under way a well-organized plan for free music in the parks and playgrounds for the coming season. The plan is based upon the methods in vogue in other cities. In January the association mailed to many of the cities of the state a circular, asking them to join in the plan. It is based upon the methods in vogue in other cities. TWO MORE SUSPECTS

Men Supposed to Have Murdered Mayer Arrested in Chicago.

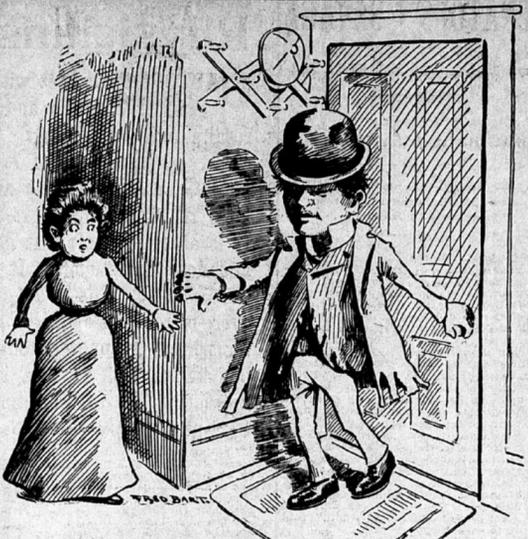

A telegram was received by Chief of Police O'Connor, of St. Paul, yesterday from Superintendent O'Neill, at Chicago, saying that two men suspected of the murder of Patrick Mayer, of St. Paul, were under arrest there. Captain Clark was sent to Chicago to interview the suspects. If they do not prove to be the right men, Captain Clark will probably go to New Orleans, where two other men are detained by the police. The detectives in Minneapolis and St. Paul have searched in vain for murderers, and it is now believed that the men left for other parts. The refunds now offered amount to $1,000 and Governor Van Sant may offer an additional reward of $500.

BASE OF THE WORK A WINE ROOM TEST

The Inefficiency of Librarians Hurts McGregor's Conviction the First Under the Jones Ordinance.

SAYS MISS MARVIN OF WISCONSIN HIS ATTORNEY TO CARRY IT UP

An Appeal Also Promised in the Case Involving the Sunday Ordinance.

Two appeals to the supreme court are promised as a result of the conviction of J. J. McGregor on two charges in the municipal court to-day. One case will afford the first test ever given to the Jones' wine room ordinance. The other has to do with the authority of the municipal judge in ordering an arrest from the bench.

The conviction in the wine room case is the first since the law went into effect. Repeated efforts have been made by the city attorney to have the police make complaint against violators of the ordinance, but the requests have been refused. Last week McGregor was convicted of embezzling money from one Patterson. The evidence in the trial revealed the character of McGregor's place and at the request of Judge Dickenson a complaint was made by Lieut. Sinclair of the central police station.

Three witnesses testified as to the character of the place. McGregor was found guilty and given $100 or 90 days. A. P. Loomis, for the defense, at once objected and notified the court that he would take an appeal to the supreme court in order that there might be a definite understanding as to what does and what does not constitute a violation of the ordinance. Before testimony was introduced, he gave formal notice that the defendant objected on the ground that no written or sworn complaint had been made or filed against the defendant in the case. The court had exceeded its authority in ordering the defendant's arrest and in compelling him to enter a plea without first having a written or sworn complaint against him. The statutes were read by Judge Holt. Mr. Loomis questioned their constitutionality and says he will not accept the decision until the supreme court has handed down an opinion.

KILLED IN A MINE

Andrew Forsberg Formerly Well Known in Minneapolis.

Andrew Forsberg, chief mining engineer of the Treadwell Gold Mining company, and formerly a well known resident of Minneapolis, was accidentally killed in a mine shaft on Douglas Island, Alaska, Jan. 12. News of the death reached Minneapolis yesterday. He did not return to the party on the evening of Jan. 12 and it was thought that he had changed his shift. His continued absence, however, caused a search to be made and on Monday his body was found in a chute of the median mine with the head crushed in. No one was near when the accident occurred.

BEHIND THE BARS

Money Order Clerks Are Given Better Protection.

For several years an average of $3,000,000 a year has been handled in the money order department of the Minneapolis post office. The daily receipts have been at the mercy of any passer by with thievish tendencies. The only protection to the department was the presence of a superintendent of the money order department was ordinary window glass, and in summer that was missing. It would have been a simple thing for anyone passing along Third street by climbing two steps to grab the large piles of bills and coin which lay on the desk. Constant appeal to the Washington authorities had no other effect than producing an order to have two gas pipes placed across the old entrance steps. Not even a weapon of defense could Superintendent Fleu obtain from Washington.
