WOMEN MAY ENTER

Merit the Only Test at New National University.
New York, Feb. 11.—In reply to inquiries as to whether women will be allowed to enter competition for membership in the National University endowed by Andrew Carnegie, Dr. Daniel C. Gilman of Baltimore, president of the board of trustees of the university, who is in this city, said:
"I think there is no doubt that sex will have nothing to do with admission to the new university. Merit alone will determine who shall carry on the works of higher research, which it is the object of the university to foster. If any woman show themselves qualified to do such research work, I feel quite sure they will be admitted."

Woman's World AN HISTORIC EVENT

Last State Passed a Temperance Education Law.

A CELEBRATION IN BOSTON

Campaign in Forty-five States and Congress Directed by Mrs. Mary H. Hunt.

Nearly twenty years ago, the first temperance education law in the world was enacted in Vermont, largely through the instrumentality of one devoted woman aided by noble workers, especially the Woman's Christian Temperance Union. Through the same instrumentalities, powerfully aided in many instances by members of religious and philanthropic organizations, state after state in rapid succession placed these laws upon its statute books. As an object lesson, a "temperance education map" was prepared showing the state which had temperance education laws in white, the states which had none in black, and as such laws have been enacted in one state after another the black covering of each has been removed.
Mrs. Mary H. Hunt of Boston, referred to above, whose earnest self-sacrificing labors in behalf of this form of education have an occasion of noble interest, and a company of well-known representative people gathered informally in Mrs. Hunt's home in Boston Saturday evening, Jan. 10, to witness the removal and to welcome Georgia to the white covering of each.
The removal of the last black cap from the temperance education map was therefore an occasion of noble interest, and a company of well-known representative people gathered informally in Mrs. Hunt's home in Boston Saturday evening, Jan. 10, to witness the removal and to welcome Georgia to the white covering of each.
Pleasant reminiscences on many phases of this work were made by some of the present members of the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor, of the press, prominent clergymen, the secretary of the Massachusetts board of education, and others.
Letters were read from friends of this work in all parts of the country, among them one from Mrs. Sibley, state president of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union of Georgia, and one from Governor Chandler of Georgia, who signed this last law, thus, by a happy coincidence, crowning the work to which he had already given valuable aid. As a member of the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor, and chairman of the house committee on education and his was the decisive vote in that committee that led to the favorable reporting and later enactment of the national temperance education law in 1888.
The state commissioner of education of Georgia having asked that the black cap straightway be taken from the face of Georgia on the map, a message drafted by the secretary of the Massachusetts board of education was read to the assembly, the secretary testifying that the black covering had been duly removed in the presence of distinguished and representative witnesses from different states, and expressing the hope that by means of this instruction the lives of the children might be as unspotted by wrong habits and as white as the temperance education map of the United States now is.
This study that gives other laws of health the scientific reasons for total abstinence from alcohol, and the fact that it is fast spreading to other lands. Its beneficial results, already manifest in the greater sobriety of the American workingman, and as one factor in increasing the length of human life, are destined to become more and more apparent. The thorough enforcement of these laws will mean a new generation of citizens too wise to stultify themselves with intoxicants, and thus the peaceful solution, through education, of the alcohol problem. Referring to this at the close of a brief speech, Mrs. Hunt said she removed the black covering from Georgia on the map; "All American citizens should protect these laws and their enforcement as they do the flag itself."

DREW A LARGE CROWD

Lecture of Lieut. Martin E. Tew on "The Philippines."
Lieutenant Martin E. Tew, formerly of the Thirteenth Minnesota regiment, as a lecturer, made his initial appearance before a Minneapolis audience at the First Unitarian church last evening. His subject was "The Philippines," and his talk was illustrated by 200 stereopticon views and moving pictures of stirring scenes in Uncle Sam's oriental possessions.
It was the general sentiment of the large audience that the collection of pictures was the finest of the kind ever seen in Minneapolis, and the talk was correspondingly interesting. While in the Philippines, Lieutenant Tew and other members of the regiment published a book upon the islands and had submitted for their approval the best work of native and Spanish photographers. These pictures were thrown upon the canvas last night. Among the interesting views were those showing the city of Manila as it looked in war time and at the entrance of the American forces. The Thirteenth regiment was largely represented in the audience.
