

WANT Pages, 11, 12.

HORSES, CARRIAGES—FOR SALE
WINDMILL & PRINCEGEAR, 41 1/2 W.
8-Horse, harness, wagon, bugie, rubber-tired runabouts and Stanhopes; new work exchanged for old; largest line in city. Telephone, 2702 25, main.

HORSES FOR SALE CHEAP—FROM 50 TO 100. Just received from Iowa and Minnesota. Bargains to cash buyers. Dan Egan, Iowa Sale Barn, 212 1/2 N.
HORSE CLIPPING and blowing by electric power. McCluskey & Young, 18 7th St. S. 2791.
FROST & CO.'S SALE STABLES, HEAD-QUARTERS for the sale of all classes of horses. A large assortment always on hand. Fair time and guarantee given. 12 24 at N.

BROWN, HICKLEY, MIDWAY
Horse Market, 34 1/2 Minn.
constantly on hand all classes of horses. Driving and coach horses especially. If you want a horse of any kind, give us a call.

BIG HORSE AUCTION SALE.
Wednesday, April 16, 1902, commencing at 10 o'clock a. m. in harness, 4 Zimmerman will sell at their Midway Stable, 24 1/2 N. Every horse warranted as represented. Private sale daily.
Barnett & Zimmerman's Horse Auction and Commission Market, Minnesota Transfer, St. Paul, Minn.

References—First National Bank, Minneapolis; First National Bank, Duluth, and Park, Stock & Home, Minneapolis.
FOR SALE—ONE BLACK HORSE, 7 YEARS OLD, weight 1,200 lbs., good harness, good for survey; one pacer, one buggy, one light double harness, cheap. McCallister, 415 E. 13th St. at 725.
FOUR CHEAP HORSES; ALSO ONE NICE family mare; also one pair of workhorses, weight 2,100, price $135. Almsworth, 3018 Garfield av.

SPRING WAGONS, DIFFERENT SIZES; one bob sleigh, all in good condition; used by plumbing firm; cheap. 1225 Chestnut av.
KELLEY & ZIMMERMAN, THE only reliable horse market in the northwest. Just received, 90 head of the finest class of horses ever placed on the market. Our horses speak for themselves. Call and examine our stock and be convinced. We give a trial of 24 days to all our customers. We sell. You make no mistakes in buying your horses from Kelley & Zimmerman. All sales are located at 1428 Washington St. at N.

SHEPHERD PONIES—STALLION, 18 months, a few to fold this spring; cars, harness, new and second-hand; call weekdays. R. Harzick, 1225 Chestnut av.
FOR SALE—HORSES, PINE LOT OF FARM chunks and delivery horses. Can be seen at Elvira's sale stable, 1225 Chestnut av.
FOR SALE—TWO SEAT CANOPY TOP CARRIAGE; also single trap; in good condition; must sell at once; party leaving city. 1418 W. 34th St.; take Como-Elm car.

FOR SALE—ONE FAMILY MARE; ONE delivery chunk; one gentleman's driver; pacer, with speed. Yeoman, 1725 4th St.
FOR SALE—SINGLE HARNESS; cheap. 321 24 at S.

FOR SALE—ONE SINGLE HARNESS, light delivery wagon, double harness, one express wagon. Call on Mr. Hanson, 558 7th St.
FOR SALE—CHEAP—ONE OF THE FINEST light two-seat traps in the city, in good condition; also nearly new, light double harness and light double harness, at 2506 Portland av.

80 BUYS COAL BLACK FAMILY HORSE, 9 years old; also 3/4 Concord top buggy for 1,200 lbs. weight; also a good one good family driver, very stylish, cheap; have sold my dairy and this stock will be sold. 409 Chicago.

COMB SEE THE NEW ARRIVAL OF heavy drafters and drivers; best in the land; a few lumber horses left. Nolan's sale stable, 29 24 at N.

FOR SALE, GOOD FAMILY HORSE CHEAP. Can be seen at 1943 13th av SE.
150 TAKES GOOD WORK TEAM, WEIGHT 3,400; also one team of horses, weight 3,000; call quick. If you want a bargain, 2024 4th St. N.

FOR SALE—899 TAKES GOOD 8-YEAR-OLD gray, driving or delivery horse. 2018 Grand av.
ONE SPAN HORSE, 6 AND 7 YEARS OLD; weight, 3,300; also one span, 3 years old; 2,800; one springer, 1 year old; make a good team. Will sell separate. 615 5th St. N.

BARGAINS IN NEW AND SECOND-HAND harness and collars; old ones taken in exchange. Call on Mr. Hanson, 558 7th St.
FOR SALE—BIG BARGAIN, PAIR CUBBY farm horses, young and sound. 712 24 at S.

FOR SALE—A 7-YEAR-OLD, 1,200-POUND, heavy springer, sound and makes a good team for a two-seat. $150 takes her. 211 Washington av.

HORSES, CARRIAGES—WANTED
WANTED—To rent for party leaving city until September or October, nice spring carriage horses; everything complete, including coachman and practice. Address 1574, Johnson St.
WANTED—To rent for party leaving city until September or October, nice spring carriage horses; everything complete, including coachman and practice. Address 1574, Johnson St.

COWS, DOGS, POULTRY, ETC
FOR SALE—MALTESE TERRIER, FEMALE, 1 year old; pure white; a little better. Price, $25. 1599, Johnson.
FOR SALE—A LOT OF CHICKEN, FRESH EGGS, or trade for beef, at 1118 Bryant av. N.

WANTED—MISCELLANEOUS
WE BUY diamonds or trade for new; we pay cash for old or make into new jewelry. Jacobs Jewelry Co., 141 Washington St.
CASH PAID for all kinds of goods. Don't sell before getting estimates from the Town Market, 22-27 5th St. S. Tel. 1943.

CARLOADS OF HOUSEHOLD GOODS MADE up for Pacific coast points, making big saving in freight; parties moving to the coast should not fail to consult us. The Boyd Transfer and Storage Co., 46 S. 2d St.
TOP PRICES PAID for first-class second-hand household goods of all kinds. The Branch, corner of 2d and Washington.

WANTED—SECOND-HAND FURNITURE, stoves, carpets, office furniture, bugie and harness, for sale; pay more than local buyers. 855, Johnson.
BOOKS IN SMALL QUANTITIES or whole libraries purchased for cash. 905 1st av S.

CASH FOR PAPER BOOKS, school books and libraries at Adair's, 20 Washington av.
BEST PRICES paid for men's second-hand clothing and all kinds of fur. 896 Johnson.
WANTED—A SECOND-HAND REMINGTON typewriter. State price and send sample of work. 1847, Johnson.

WANTED—HOLSTERED, SECOND-HAND COAT. Must be in good condition. Call or address Engel, 2415 Upton av. N.

WANTED—WILD ANIMALS OF ALL SPECIES and description; also trained animals, either wild or domestic. For information, inquire of M. A. Sturm, room 3, Tribune building, Minneapolis.

BICYCLES
FIT YOU WHEELS WITH JOHNSON'S tires, $1.75 to $4. Sold by first-class dealers, or J. N. Johnson & Co., 915 Nicollet. Carriage tires, $1.25.

NEWSPAPER ROW BICYCLE SHOP, 41 AND 43 4th St. N. New management. All work guaranteed. Wheels built to order. Largest storage-room in city. Have your wheels cleaned and put in shape for spring.
FOR SALE—LADY'S BICYCLE, PRACTICALLY good as new; highest grade Remington, $14 and 87 S.

GENTLEMAN'S BICYCLE, 22-INCH FRAME; $3 takes it. 24 1/2 av N; or 2815 Clinton av. before 8 or after 6.

MOVING
SAVES, BOLERS AND HEAVY MACHINERY moved; household goods moved and packed or unpacked by experienced packers. Boyd Transfer and Storage Co., 46 S. 2d St. Telephone, Main 66, both companies.

THE M. P. D. delivers packages in the city, 203 S. Paul, 10c to 15c to 20c.
CENTRAL FUEL AND TRANSFER CO., moving and storage; large vans, careful men, prompt service. 12 1/2 1st St. N. T. C. Tel. 1908, main 3242.
CAMERON'S TRANSFER AND STORAGE. Largest and finest vans for moving. Export packers. 229 Nicollet. Tel. N. W. 1000. T. C. 1208 or 1275. Res. T. C. 2324.

PATENT ATTORNEYS
WILLIAMSON & MERCHANT (JAMES F. WILLIAMSON and JAMES M. MERCHANT), patent attorneys and solicitors; main office, No. 92, 235 Guaranty Loan building, Minneapolis. Minneapolis branch office, 200 1/2 McGill building, Washington, D. C.

PATENT—Protect your ideas. No allowance, no fee. Consultation free. 250 1/2 N. W. 1000.
SUPERFLUOUS HAIR, MOLES, ETC., permanently removed by electrolysis. Miss Holter, 17-18 Sydney block. Pioneer stand of the northwest. Exclusive specialty.

DYES WALLER BLACK

Record of the Lieutenant Anything but Envious.

PREVIOUS TRIAL AND DISCHARGE

Manila Paper Says the Man Now Being Court-martialed is a Jekyll-Hyde Character.

Special to The Journal.
Victoria, B. C., April 10.—Copies of a Manila paper received here give details of the murder and torture of the natives in Samar by Lieutenant W. T. Waller, of the United States marine corps, and tell of his strange "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" career in the original. After recounting the tortures and murders which have been cabled, the Manila Times says:

Major Waller was before a court of inquiry upon a previous occasion while stationed at Cavite about a year ago. He was accused of conduct unbecoming an officer and a gentleman but was exonerated. When he went to Samar in command of a company, he was bent on making a record. He was of the opinion that all that was necessary was to form a chain of posts across the islands and drive and bag the natives like rabbits. His plan was as a failure and twenty men lost their lives, while others came out of a night-mare experience in hospital with marks that they will bear to their dying day. It was his failure that irritated him and caused him to resort to such drastic measures.

Major Waller's career in the marine corps has been a picturesque blending of "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde." In his varying moods he has been at times a prince bountiful to his brother officers and others. At other times his soldiers, subalterns and even fellow citizens feared to approach him on legitimate business. He exemplified both sides of his nature in the China campaign two years ago. His undoubted courage and devil-may-care manner made him very popular with certain of the soldiers, but others told dark tales. Among other things, it was said that on the advance from Tong Ku to Tientsin, where an American and a Russian battalion were engaged, Major Waller gave orders to abandon two wounded men, and had it not been for the nerve of a little medical officer and lieutenant who followed him, they would have been left to die as long as a wounded man remained behind, that order would have been obeyed. This matter was hushed up, but those who were allowed to know it were informed that had not the order been countermanded a tragedy such as seldom occurs in the American service would have occurred.

Major Waller's career in the marine corps has been a picturesque blending of "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde." In his varying moods he has been at times a prince bountiful to his brother officers and others. At other times his soldiers, subalterns and even fellow citizens feared to approach him on legitimate business. He exemplified both sides of his nature in the China campaign two years ago. His undoubted courage and devil-may-care manner made him very popular with certain of the soldiers, but others told dark tales. Among other things, it was said that on the advance from Tong Ku to Tientsin, where an American and a Russian battalion were engaged, Major Waller gave orders to abandon two wounded men, and had it not been for the nerve of a little medical officer and lieutenant who followed him, they would have been left to die as long as a wounded man remained behind, that order would have been obeyed. This matter was hushed up, but those who were allowed to know it were informed that had not the order been countermanded a tragedy such as seldom occurs in the American service would have occurred.

Major Waller's career in the marine corps has been a picturesque blending of "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde." In his varying moods he has been at times a prince bountiful to his brother officers and others. At other times his soldiers, subalterns and even fellow citizens feared to approach him on legitimate business. He exemplified both sides of his nature in the China campaign two years ago. His undoubted courage and devil-may-care manner made him very popular with certain of the soldiers, but others told dark tales. Among other things, it was said that on the advance from Tong Ku to Tientsin, where an American and a Russian battalion were engaged, Major Waller gave orders to abandon two wounded men, and had it not been for the nerve of a little medical officer and lieutenant who followed him, they would have been left to die as long as a wounded man remained behind, that order would have been obeyed. This matter was hushed up, but those who were allowed to know it were informed that had not the order been countermanded a tragedy such as seldom occurs in the American service would have occurred.

Major Waller's career in the marine corps has been a picturesque blending of "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde." In his varying moods he has been at times a prince bountiful to his brother officers and others. At other times his soldiers, subalterns and even fellow citizens feared to approach him on legitimate business. He exemplified both sides of his nature in the China campaign two years ago. His undoubted courage and devil-may-care manner made him very popular with certain of the soldiers, but others told dark tales. Among other things, it was said that on the advance from Tong Ku to Tientsin, where an American and a Russian battalion were engaged, Major Waller gave orders to abandon two wounded men, and had it not been for the nerve of a little medical officer and lieutenant who followed him, they would have been left to die as long as a wounded man remained behind, that order would have been obeyed. This matter was hushed up, but those who were allowed to know it were informed that had not the order been countermanded a tragedy such as seldom occurs in the American service would have occurred.

Major Waller's career in the marine corps has been a picturesque blending of "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde." In his varying moods he has been at times a prince bountiful to his brother officers and others. At other times his soldiers, subalterns and even fellow citizens feared to approach him on legitimate business. He exemplified both sides of his nature in the China campaign two years ago. His undoubted courage and devil-may-care manner made him very popular with certain of the soldiers, but others told dark tales. Among other things, it was said that on the advance from Tong Ku to Tientsin, where an American and a Russian battalion were engaged, Major Waller gave orders to abandon two wounded men, and had it not been for the nerve of a little medical officer and lieutenant who followed him, they would have been left to die as long as a wounded man remained behind, that order would have been obeyed. This matter was hushed up, but those who were allowed to know it were informed that had not the order been countermanded a tragedy such as seldom occurs in the American service would have occurred.

Major Waller's career in the marine corps has been a picturesque blending of "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde." In his varying moods he has been at times a prince bountiful to his brother officers and others. At other times his soldiers, subalterns and even fellow citizens feared to approach him on legitimate business. He exemplified both sides of his nature in the China campaign two years ago. His undoubted courage and devil-may-care manner made him very popular with certain of the soldiers, but others told dark tales. Among other things, it was said that on the advance from Tong Ku to Tientsin, where an American and a Russian battalion were engaged, Major Waller gave orders to abandon two wounded men, and had it not been for the nerve of a little medical officer and lieutenant who followed him, they would have been left to die as long as a wounded man remained behind, that order would have been obeyed. This matter was hushed up, but those who were allowed to know it were informed that had not the order been countermanded a tragedy such as seldom occurs in the American service would have occurred.

Major Waller's career in the marine corps has been a picturesque blending of "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde." In his varying moods he has been at times a prince bountiful to his brother officers and others. At other times his soldiers, subalterns and even fellow citizens feared to approach him on legitimate business. He exemplified both sides of his nature in the China campaign two years ago. His undoubted courage and devil-may-care manner made him very popular with certain of the soldiers, but others told dark tales. Among other things, it was said that on the advance from Tong Ku to Tientsin, where an American and a Russian battalion were engaged, Major Waller gave orders to abandon two wounded men, and had it not been for the nerve of a little medical officer and lieutenant who followed him, they would have been left to die as long as a wounded man remained behind, that order would have been obeyed. This matter was hushed up, but those who were allowed to know it were informed that had not the order been countermanded a tragedy such as seldom occurs in the American service would have occurred.

Major Waller's career in the marine corps has been a picturesque blending of "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde." In his varying moods he has been at times a prince bountiful to his brother officers and others. At other times his soldiers, subalterns and even fellow citizens feared to approach him on legitimate business. He exemplified both sides of his nature in the China campaign two years ago. His undoubted courage and devil-may-care manner made him very popular with certain of the soldiers, but others told dark tales. Among other things, it was said that on the advance from Tong Ku to Tientsin, where an American and a Russian battalion were engaged, Major Waller gave orders to abandon two wounded men, and had it not been for the nerve of a little medical officer and lieutenant who followed him, they would have been left to die as long as a wounded man remained behind, that order would have been obeyed. This matter was hushed up, but those who were allowed to know it were informed that had not the order been countermanded a tragedy such as seldom occurs in the American service would have occurred.

Major Waller's career in the marine corps has been a picturesque blending of "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde." In his varying moods he has been at times a prince bountiful to his brother officers and others. At other times his soldiers, subalterns and even fellow citizens feared to approach him on legitimate business. He exemplified both sides of his nature in the China campaign two years ago. His undoubted courage and devil-may-care manner made him very popular with certain of the soldiers, but others told dark tales. Among other things, it was said that on the advance from Tong Ku to Tientsin, where an American and a Russian battalion were engaged, Major Waller gave orders to abandon two wounded men, and had it not been for the nerve of a little medical officer and lieutenant who followed him, they would have been left to die as long as a wounded man remained behind, that order would have been obeyed. This matter was hushed up, but those who were allowed to know it were informed that had not the order been countermanded a tragedy such as seldom occurs in the American service would have occurred.

Major Waller's career in the marine corps has been a picturesque blending of "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde." In his varying moods he has been at times a prince bountiful to his brother officers and others. At other times his soldiers, subalterns and even fellow citizens feared to approach him on legitimate business. He exemplified both sides of his nature in the China campaign two years ago. His undoubted courage and devil-may-care manner made him very popular with certain of the soldiers, but others told dark tales. Among other things, it was said that on the advance from Tong Ku to Tientsin, where an American and a Russian battalion were engaged, Major Waller gave orders to abandon two wounded men, and had it not been for the nerve of a little medical officer and lieutenant who followed him, they would have been left to die as long as a wounded man remained behind, that order would have been obeyed. This matter was hushed up, but those who were allowed to know it were informed that had not the order been countermanded a tragedy such as seldom occurs in the American service would have occurred.

Major Waller's career in the marine corps has been a picturesque blending of "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde." In his varying moods he has been at times a prince bountiful to his brother officers and others. At other times his soldiers, subalterns and even fellow citizens feared to approach him on legitimate business. He exemplified both sides of his nature in the China campaign two years ago. His undoubted courage and devil-may-care manner made him very popular with certain of the soldiers, but others told dark tales. Among other things, it was said that on the advance from Tong Ku to Tientsin, where an American and a Russian battalion were engaged, Major Waller gave orders to abandon two wounded men, and had it not been for the nerve of a little medical officer and lieutenant who followed him, they would have been left to die as long as a wounded man remained behind, that order would have been obeyed. This matter was hushed up, but those who were allowed to know it were informed that had not the order been countermanded a tragedy such as seldom occurs in the American service would have occurred.

Major Waller's career in the marine corps has been a picturesque blending of "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde." In his varying moods he has been at times a prince bountiful to his brother officers and others. At other times his soldiers, subalterns and even fellow citizens feared to approach him on legitimate business. He exemplified both sides of his nature in the China campaign two years ago. His undoubted courage and devil-may-care manner made him very popular with certain of the soldiers, but others told dark tales. Among other things, it was said that on the advance from Tong Ku to Tientsin, where an American and a Russian battalion were engaged, Major Waller gave orders to abandon two wounded men, and had it not been for the nerve of a little medical officer and lieutenant who followed him, they would have been left to die as long as a wounded man remained behind, that order would have been obeyed. This matter was hushed up, but those who were allowed to know it were informed that had not the order been countermanded a tragedy such as seldom occurs in the American service would have occurred.

Major Waller's career in the marine corps has been a picturesque blending of "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde." In his varying moods he has been at times a prince bountiful to his brother officers and others. At other times his soldiers, subalterns and even fellow citizens feared to approach him on legitimate business. He exemplified both sides of his nature in the China campaign two years ago. His undoubted courage and devil-may-care manner made him very popular with certain of the soldiers, but others told dark tales. Among other things, it was said that on the advance from Tong Ku to Tientsin, where an American and a Russian battalion were engaged, Major Waller gave orders to abandon two wounded men, and had it not been for the nerve of a little medical officer and lieutenant who followed him, they would have been left to die as long as a wounded man remained behind, that order would have been obeyed. This matter was hushed up, but those who were allowed to know it were informed that had not the order been countermanded a tragedy such as seldom occurs in the American service would have occurred.

Major Waller's career in the marine corps has been a picturesque blending of "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde." In his varying moods he has been at times a prince bountiful to his brother officers and others. At other times his soldiers, subalterns and even fellow citizens feared to approach him on legitimate business. He exemplified both sides of his nature in the China campaign two years ago. His undoubted courage and devil-may-care manner made him very popular with certain of the soldiers, but others told dark tales. Among other things, it was said that on the advance from Tong Ku to Tientsin, where an American and a Russian battalion were engaged, Major Waller gave orders to abandon two wounded men, and had it not been for the nerve of a little medical officer and lieutenant who followed him, they would have been left to die as long as a wounded man remained behind, that order would have been obeyed. This matter was hushed up, but those who were allowed to know it were informed that had not the order been countermanded a tragedy such as seldom occurs in the American service would have occurred.

Major Waller's career in the marine corps has been a picturesque blending of "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde." In his varying moods he has been at times a prince bountiful to his brother officers and others. At other times his soldiers, subalterns and even fellow citizens feared to approach him on legitimate business. He exemplified both sides of his nature in the China campaign two years ago. His undoubted courage and devil-may-care manner made him very popular with certain of the soldiers, but others told dark tales. Among other things, it was said that on the advance from Tong Ku to Tientsin, where an American and a Russian battalion were engaged, Major Waller gave orders to abandon two wounded men, and had it not been for the nerve of a little medical officer and lieutenant who followed him, they would have been left to die as long as a wounded man remained behind, that order would have been obeyed. This matter was hushed up, but those who were allowed to know it were informed that had not the order been countermanded a tragedy such as seldom occurs in the American service would have occurred.

Major Waller's career in the marine corps has been a picturesque blending of "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde." In his varying moods he has been at times a prince bountiful to his brother officers and others. At other times his soldiers, subalterns and even fellow citizens feared to approach him on legitimate business. He exemplified both sides of his nature in the China campaign two years ago. His undoubted courage and devil-may-care manner made him very popular with certain of the soldiers, but others told dark tales. Among other things, it was said that on the advance from Tong Ku to Tientsin, where an American and a Russian battalion were engaged, Major Waller gave orders to abandon two wounded men, and had it not been for the nerve of a little medical officer and lieutenant who followed him, they would have been left to die as long as a wounded man remained behind, that order would have been obeyed. This matter was hushed up, but those who were allowed to know it were informed that had not the order been countermanded a tragedy such as seldom occurs in the American service would have occurred.

Major Waller's career in the marine corps has been a picturesque blending of "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde." In his varying moods he has been at times a prince bountiful to his brother officers and others. At other times his soldiers, subalterns and even fellow citizens feared to approach him on legitimate business. He exemplified both sides of his nature in the China campaign two years ago. His undoubted courage and devil-may-care manner made him very popular with certain of the soldiers, but others told dark tales. Among other things, it was said that on the advance from Tong Ku to Tientsin, where an American and a Russian battalion were engaged, Major Waller gave orders to abandon two wounded men, and had it not been for the nerve of a little medical officer and lieutenant who followed him, they would have been left to die as long as a wounded man remained behind, that order would have been obeyed. This matter was hushed up, but those who were allowed to know it were informed that had not the order been countermanded a tragedy such as seldom occurs in the American service would have occurred.

Major Waller's career in the marine corps has been a picturesque blending of "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde." In his varying moods he has been at times a prince bountiful to his brother officers and others. At other times his soldiers, subalterns and even fellow citizens feared to approach him on legitimate business. He exemplified both sides of his nature in the China campaign two years ago. His undoubted courage and devil-may-care manner made him very popular with certain of the soldiers, but others told dark tales. Among other things, it was said that on the advance from Tong Ku to Tientsin, where an American and a Russian battalion were engaged, Major Waller gave orders to abandon two wounded men, and had it not been for the nerve of a little medical officer and lieutenant who followed him, they would have been left to die as long as a wounded man remained behind, that order would have been obeyed. This matter was hushed up, but those who were allowed to know it were informed that had not the order been countermanded a tragedy such as seldom occurs in the American service would have occurred.

Major Waller's career in the marine corps has been a picturesque blending of "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde." In his varying moods he has been at times a prince bountiful to his brother officers and others. At other times his soldiers, subalterns and even fellow citizens feared to approach him on legitimate business. He exemplified both sides of his nature in the China campaign two years ago. His undoubted courage and devil-may-care manner made him very popular with certain of the soldiers, but others told dark tales. Among other things, it was said that on the advance from Tong Ku to Tientsin, where an American and a Russian battalion were engaged, Major Waller gave orders to abandon two wounded men, and had it not been for the nerve of a little medical officer and lieutenant who followed him, they would have been left to die as long as a wounded man remained behind, that order would have been obeyed. This matter was hushed up, but those who were allowed to know it were informed that had not the order been countermanded a tragedy such as seldom occurs in the American service would have occurred.

Major Waller's career in the marine corps has been a picturesque blending of "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde." In his varying moods he has been at times a prince bountiful to his brother officers and others. At other times his soldiers, subalterns and even fellow citizens feared to approach him on legitimate business. He exemplified both sides of his nature in the China campaign two years ago. His undoubted courage and devil-may-care manner made him very popular with certain of the soldiers, but others told dark tales. Among other things, it was said that on the advance from Tong Ku to Tientsin, where an American and a Russian battalion were engaged, Major Waller gave orders to abandon two wounded men, and had it not been for the nerve of a little medical officer and lieutenant who followed him, they would have been left to die as long as a wounded man remained behind, that order would have been obeyed. This matter was hushed up, but those who were allowed to know it were informed that had not the order been countermanded a tragedy such as seldom occurs in the American service would have occurred.

Major Waller's career in the marine corps has been a picturesque blending of "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde." In his varying moods he has been at times a prince bountiful to his brother officers and others. At other times his soldiers, subalterns and even fellow citizens feared to approach him on legitimate business. He exemplified both sides of his nature in the China campaign two years ago. His undoubted courage and devil-may-care manner made him very popular with certain of the soldiers, but others told dark tales. Among other things, it was said that on the advance from Tong Ku to Tientsin, where an American and a Russian battalion were engaged, Major Waller gave orders to abandon two wounded men, and had it not been for the nerve of a little medical officer and lieutenant who followed him, they would have been left to die as long as a wounded man remained behind, that order would have been obeyed. This matter was hushed up, but those who were allowed to know it were informed that had not the order been countermanded a tragedy such as seldom occurs in the American service would have occurred.

Major Waller's career in the marine corps has been a picturesque blending of "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde." In his varying moods he has been at times a prince bountiful to his brother officers and others. At other times his soldiers, subalterns and even fellow citizens feared to approach him on legitimate business. He exemplified both sides of his nature in the China campaign two years ago. His undoubted courage and devil-may-care manner made him very popular with certain of the soldiers, but others told dark tales. Among other things, it was said that on the advance from Tong Ku to Tientsin, where an American and a Russian battalion were engaged, Major Waller gave orders to abandon two wounded men, and had it not been for the nerve of a little medical officer and lieutenant who followed him, they would have been left to die as long as a wounded man remained behind, that order would have been obeyed. This matter was hushed up, but those who were allowed to know it were informed that had not the order been countermanded a tragedy such as seldom occurs in the American service would have occurred.

Major Waller's career in the marine corps has been a picturesque blending of "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde." In his varying moods he has been at times a prince bountiful to his brother officers and others. At other times his soldiers, subalterns and even fellow citizens feared to approach him on legitimate business. He exemplified both sides of his nature in the China campaign two years ago. His undoubted courage and devil-may-care manner made him very popular with certain of the soldiers, but others told dark tales. Among other things, it was said that on the advance from Tong Ku to Tientsin, where an American and a Russian battalion were engaged, Major Waller gave orders to abandon two wounded men, and had it not been for the nerve of a little medical officer and lieutenant who followed him, they would have been left to die as long as a wounded man remained behind, that order would have been obeyed. This matter was hushed up, but those who were allowed to know it were informed that had not the order been countermanded a tragedy such as seldom occurs in the American service would have occurred.

Major Waller's career in the marine corps has been a picturesque blending of "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde." In his varying moods he has been at times a prince bountiful to his brother officers and others. At other times his soldiers, subalterns and even fellow citizens feared to approach him on legitimate business. He exemplified both sides of his nature in the China campaign two years ago. His undoubted courage and devil-may-care manner made him very popular with certain of the soldiers, but others told dark tales. Among other things, it was said that on the advance from Tong Ku to Tientsin, where an American and a Russian battalion were engaged, Major Waller gave orders to abandon two wounded men, and had it not been for the nerve of a little medical officer and lieutenant who followed him, they would have been left to die as long as a wounded man remained behind, that order would have been obeyed. This matter was hushed up, but those who were allowed to know it were informed that had not the order been countermanded a tragedy such as seldom occurs in the American service would have occurred.

Major Waller's career in the marine corps has been a picturesque blending of "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde." In his varying moods he has been at times a prince bountiful to his brother officers and others. At other times his soldiers, subalterns and even fellow citizens feared to approach him on legitimate business. He exemplified both sides of his nature in the China campaign two years ago. His undoubted courage and devil-may-care manner made him very popular with certain of the soldiers, but others told dark tales. Among other things, it was said that on the advance from Tong Ku to Tientsin, where an American and a Russian battalion were engaged, Major Waller gave orders to abandon two wounded men, and had it not been for the nerve of a little medical officer and lieutenant who followed him, they would have been left to die as long as a wounded man remained behind, that order would have been obeyed. This matter was hushed up, but those who were allowed to know it were informed that had not the order been countermanded a tragedy such as seldom occurs in the American service would have occurred.

Major Waller's career in the marine corps has been a picturesque blending of "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde." In his varying moods he has been at times a prince bountiful to his brother officers and others. At other times his soldiers, subalterns and even fellow citizens feared to approach him on legitimate business. He exemplified both sides of his nature in the China campaign two years ago. His undoubted courage and devil-may-care manner made him very popular with certain of the soldiers, but others told dark tales. Among other things, it was said that on the advance from Tong Ku to Tientsin, where an American and a Russian battalion were engaged, Major Waller gave orders to abandon two wounded men, and had it not been for the nerve of a little medical officer and lieutenant who followed him, they would have been left to die as long as a wounded man remained behind, that order would have been obeyed. This matter was hushed up, but those who were allowed to know it were informed that had not the order been countermanded a tragedy such as seldom occurs in the American service would have occurred.

Waltham Watches.

"The survival of the fittest."

"The Perfected American Watch," an illustrated book of interesting information about watches, will be sent free upon request.

American Waltham Watch Company, Waltham, Mass.

S. JACOBS & CO., Jewellers, Sell All High Grades. Waltham Watches, Royal Riverside, Crescent St. and Vanguard. 518-520 Nicollet Avenue

'PINOS IN RASK'S EYES LAKE WINTER BOATING
FORMER MINNEAPOLITAN WRITES FAR REACHING MARINE PLANS
Lieutenant of the Marine Corps Who Is Making a Record in the Philippines.

From The Journal Bureau, Room 45, Foot Street, Washington.
Washington, April 10.—Lieutenant O. H. Rask of the Marine Corps, a former Minneapolis boy, has written an interesting letter to a friend in Washington, regarding conditions in the Philippine islands, to which point he was assigned for duty several months ago. Lieutenant Rask is a graduate of the University of Minnesota, and for a number of years prior to his commission in the marine corps did newspaper work in Chicago and St. Paul. He is making a fine record as a soldier, and one which is specially gratifying to his friends in Minneapolis.

After arriving at Manila, he was assigned to duty for a few days at the marine barracks, and then to the headquarters of the first regiment, with headquarters at Bacoor, where he now is. The only white people in Bacoor, a town of 14,000 people, are the members of the garrison, and a school teacher, Miss Bennett, whose home is in Graceville, Minn. As quartermaster, Lieutenant Rask has a staff of 200 men, a captain mounted, 2,000 men plus the ten per cent additional for police of the island. Bacoor is four miles from Cavite and seventeen miles from Manila, on the shore of the bay and within easy reach of the city. Regarding conditions in the islands, Lieutenant Rask writes:

From what I have been able to see thus far, the Philippines are not nearly black as they have been painted by a few of the people who have returned to the states. At present under the civil government there is very little if any "mixing" for the troops to do, they spend the time very pleasantly at the several posts. The hostility at present is only on the part of the bandit bands, which are hunted by the American troops and the Philippine civil government has undertaken to put down these bands, and we have nothing to do with the work, unless requested by the civil authorities. Manila has the same status as exists in the states in regard to the use of troops. Of course, it is different in the island of Samar, where there is still military government.

Just a word regarding the civil government's military efforts. There is a so-called Philippine constabulary of about 4,000 natives, divided among the several provinces, and working under the American constabulary and former officers of volunteers. At its head are two army officers, Major Allen and Captain Baker—two very excellent officers—old Indian fighters when the constabulary was founded. Its own native police force, Manila has the metropolitan police, men picked from the best discharged soldiers, usually non-commissioned officers. I believe it is the best police force in the world to the west of the Pacific.

The conditions in Samar are still far from being satisfactory. The people are savages and don't know anything about civilization or the arts of the west. I would like to know, after a very rough experience. One detachment, commanded by Lieutenant A. S. Williams, was sent to the island of Samar several days, during which it was harassed by the natives and suffered untold agonies of hunger and thirst. The men were covered with tropical leishmaniasis, and the loss of so intense was the suffering that nearly every one of them had lost his mind before the arrival of the relief. The men were too weak to carry their own arms, and so had to be carried to the natives to do it for them. Finally they were attacked by these very natives, and Lieutenant Williams was wounded by a bolo nine times in the back. He is now in the hospital at Yokohama.

Mr. Rask did not accompany her husband to the Philippines. She is living in the interior of New York state with relatives. Mrs. Rask before her marriage was the editor of a St. Paul morning paper.

"I WOULD KILL YOU"
Pierce Declaration Made by Thomas W. Lawson.
New York Sun Special Service.
Boston, April 10.—"If you published an article as that about me, I would kill you. I wouldn't hesitate a second to do it."

This statement, made on the witness stand by Thomas W. Lawson, in detailing a conversation alleged to have taken place between himself and Frank P. Bennett, publisher of the United States Investor, caused