

MONTANA KILLINGS

Shooting of Allen by Perry Adds Another to the Long List.

HALF BREED AND SCHOOL "GRAD."

Dead Man Was Armed, but There Is No Evidence He Had Drawn His Weapon.

Special to The Journal.
 Harlem, Mont., April 11.—The recent killing of William J. Allen by Charles Perry at the Coburn ranch in this county, adds another to the many affairs of this kind that have taken place in the vicinity of the Little Rocky Mountains, beginning with the shooting of Pike Lankusky in a Curry county town some ten years ago. In the last year James Winter was mysteriously shot from ambush as he stepped to his back door and no trace of his murderer has been found. It is the theory of the officers that the same gang that held up the Great Northern train and robbed the express car some sixty miles north of the scene of the Winter killing, picked Winter off, as it occurred shortly after, and Winter is supposed to have been marked by the Curry gang, who are reputed to be in the robber outfit. While the recent shooting has no apparent connection with the other murders, some of the friends of Winter seem to be uneasy and it is not plain yet what connection there may be.

Charles Perry, who shot and killed William J. Allen, is a half breed. He is a graduate of a South Dakota Indian school and for some years has been employed as a trading store on the Fort Belknap Indian reservation. He has been looked upon by the Indians as a leader in their sports, has enjoyed the confidence, and has done a flourishing business. He is also the owner of many cattle.

Perry and Allen are relatives, and there was some evidence given on the coroner's inquest to show that threats had been made by the dead man towards Perry; that the two men met by agreement at the Coburn ranch in the hope of settling their differences. One Joe Gant was also present by the agreement to act as a witness. The Coburns seem to have felt that trouble was brewing and endeavored to have the men settle their difficulties outside. Perry arrived at Coburn's first and was in the office at the time Allen came. Allen, on discovering Perry, spoke some words to him, and advanced on him with his gun drawn. Perry at once drew his gun and shot Allen twice, killing him instantly. When the dead man was picked up, a revolver was found in his pocket, but there was no evidence that he had drawn his weapon. Allen was a white man, connected with the sub-agency on the Belknap reservation.

Perry has been apprehended, but has been released on bail and will be tried at the May term of the district court at Fort Benton.

CRIPPLE MEETS DEATH

WALKER DROWNED NEAR HUDSON

Popular County Official is Found Dead by His Sons in Willow River.

Hudson, Wis., April 11.—James Walker, master of the schooner "Crucifix," was drowned in Willow river yesterday afternoon, three miles northeast from Hudson. He was an almost helpless cripple from rheumatism.

During the day his family helped him into his carriage. He was to take a drive into the country, as was his wont. Not returning in season, his sons and a few other friends went in search of him and to their horror found his body in Willow river, at Drake's trout park.

His horse had started for home but got tangled up in the harness and lay on the ground a few rods from the scene of the tragedy.

Mr. Walker was a very popular public official, having been elected four times to the position of clerk. He was about 55 years old, a high Mason, and a well-known railroad man prior to his loss of health.

THREE KISSES CASE

Trial Started by Woman Who Wants $15,000 Is Under Way.

Special to The Journal.
 Richland Center, Wis., April 11.—Although it was expected the case of Mrs. Robert Stanton vs. David D. Jones, for $15,000 damages for three kisses alleged to have been forced upon her by the defendant, would go to trial this afternoon, it was impossible, owing to the length of the case, and the fact that the defendant announced that he would try the case as soon as the present suit is disposed of, and notified attorneys to be ready this afternoon.

Mrs. Stanton, the plaintiff, remained quietly at her hotel yesterday and was silent regarding the case. The other witnesses are all in the city and are in readiness.

LANDS WITHDRAWN FROM ENTRY.

Special to The Journal.
 Jarquette, April 11.—The local land office has received instructions from Washington to withdraw from homestead entry all the unappropriated public lands in the counties of Crawford and Roseau, pending action by congress authorizing their segregation as forest reserve. Thirty thousand acres, in small parcels throughout the two counties are involved.

"ON THE SLY."

Patients Drink Contrary to Doctors' Orders.

Bad food habits hurt the habitue and sometimes affect others. A mother was in such a miserable condition from coffee drinking that when her baby was born, but let her tell her own tale.

"I steadily grew worse. When baby was born it was skeleton of mere bones, and so weak and puny that its little life soon flickered out. I had been suffering for several years with stomach trouble and nervous diseases, the doctor said 'brought on by coffee.'"

"At times I would swell up until I could hardly breathe, but I pooled when the doctor told me coffee was the cause of it all. Why, I had used coffee for years without seeing that it did me any harm. So the silly idea of a foggy doctor not going to make me give up my favorite beverage and I kept on using it on the sly, unknown to him, until he gave me every sort of tonic and pills to attempt to cure me and get my nerves in a healthy condition."

After baby's death I was sick in bed and the doctor insisted on keeping coffee away from me. He put me on Postum Food Coffee and Grape-Nuts. I shall never forget how I relished the first cup of fragrant, black Postum and how good the Grape-Nuts were. I began to feel as if by magic, I began to sleep all night for the first time in months.

Slowly I began to gain in strength and flesh, and my mind began to clear up. My stomach gave me no pain, and the doctor was greatly surprised at the change caused by the food and drink and pleasantly named them the "magic nerve restorers," for he says they built up my nerves and strength as nothing else on earth could.

It seems to me I am twice as large as I used to be, but I am good, healthy, tired, I have been made a well woman by Postum Food Coffee and Grape-Nuts. Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

WAS SHE MURDERED?

Miss Pelton Burned to Death in Dodge Center Hotel.

LANDLORD HARTLEY TO BE TRIED

His Acts During the Fire and Contradictory Statements Aroused Strong Suspicions.

Special to The Journal.
 Mantorville, Minn., April 11.—C. C. Hartley, late a hotel keeper of Dodge Center, will be tried in May for the murder of Miss Bertha Pelton. On the evening of June 3, 1901, Miss Pelton, having finished her year's work in the schools of Kenyon, started for her home in Reedburg, Wis. She was accompanied by a friend, and spent the night in the waiting room of the station, as she was afraid to stop at the adjacent hotel, kept by Hartley, alleging that having stopped there before, she had formed a bad opinion of the place. After much persuasion, her friends got her to promise that she would take a room there and secure some needed rest. Miss Pelton had $100 on her person.

Arriving at Dodge Center, she went to the Transfer hotel and was assigned a room by Hartley. Three hours later the house was burned to the ground, and Miss Pelton's charred remains were taken from the ruins. The coroner, Dr. Harrison, was summoned from West Concord, a jury was impaneled, and he began what proved to be a sensational investigation. Hartley was the subject of a severe examination for hours at the hands of County Attorney J. J. McCaughey, who testified that he was aroused by Miss Pelton at 2:45 a. m., and took her to a room situated at the head of the stairs leading from the first floor. He then retired, but being unable to sleep, arose shortly before 4 o'clock and lighted a gasoline stove in a summer kitchen in the rear of the house. Coming back to the office, he found the stairs on fire, and broke in the door separating his own room, which opened from the office, from that occupied by his cook, Mrs. Marquardt and her four children. Part of them escaped through the office and the rest through the window. Hartley then started up stairs to alarm the guests occupying the second floor of the hotel, but on reaching the top of the stairs he was overcome by the smoke and fell down stairs, where he lay unconscious. On reviving he went outside, where towns people were awakening the guests by blowing stones through the windows. There were eight or nine guests and all escaped but Miss Pelton.

Could Not Save Miss Pelton.

When the entire structure was in flames Hartley informed some of the spectators that there was a woman still in the house. A ladder was brought and the night operator from the station broke in the window to her room and attempted to enter, but was driven back by the fire. The walls fell in at 5 a. m., and at 5:30 the remains of Miss Pelton were taken from the ruins. Hartley made a poor witness at this time, contradicting himself frequently. He admitted that the gasoline stove was under a sink which must have caught fire, should the flame have shot up; that during the time he was alleged to lay unconscious, he did not lose his eye glasses or his cigar from his mouth. The inquest was adjourned, and Hartley alone knew of Miss Pelton's presence in his hotel, and that she occupied a room directly at the head of the stairs and immediately over that of his cook.

A son of the cook, who was with Hartley, denied that Hartley went up stairs at the time he testified he did, and said at the time he testified he was in the room from which the stairway opened, and that it was possible to have gone up and rescued Miss Pelton, had her presence been known. It was also brought out that throughout the time the hotel was burning, Hartley acted indifferent to the fate of the various occupants of the second floor, and professed to tell one who asked him to help him off the porch roof, that if he could not get out alone, he could burn. At the time they were removing the body of Miss Pelton from the ruins, Hartley was soliciting business for his other hotel. During the inquest great indignation was manifested by the citizens of Dodge Center and vicinity, and many open threats were made.

Indicted and Arrested.

The jury returned a verdict that Miss Pelton met her death through the criminal negligence of C. C. Hartley. This verdict appealed the public and the law was permitted to take its course. After this verdict no arrests were made, but Hartley was kept under close surveillance. At the meeting of the grand jury in October, 1901, the case was brought before the court, Mrs. Marquardt, made a very unwilling witness before the coroner's inquest, appearing to be afraid of Hartley. She was induced to give further testimony before the grand jury, and the grand jury indicted Hartley for murder in the first degree. He was at once arrested, and not being ready for trial, it was set for the April, 1902, term of district court at Mantorville, and Hartley was committed to the Dodge county jail at Rochester, Dodge county having no jail. Appearing on April 8 his attorneys argued for a change of venue which was granted and trial was set for Fairbault on May 7.

The trial judge will be Thomas S. Buckham. J. J. McCaughey assisted by Senator Lord will prosecute. The defendant's attorneys are L. E. French of Austin, Hall of Minneapolis, and Eckholt of Rochester.

Hartley at one time ran a blacksmith shop at Hayfield, after which he managed to get into the same orbit. Mr. Towne, who was at that place for a time, moving to Dodge Center, he ran the Transfer hotel and afterwards secured possession of the Zumbro hotel, a small structure in the village proper, which he ran in connection with the one at the transfer. The Transfer hotel was a cheap two-story wooden structure, was heavily mortgaged, and was insured for $2,500 which the underwriters as yet refuse to pay.

TOWNE FOR PRESIDENT

Rash Assertion That He Will Be the Democratic Nominee.

New York Sun Special.—"Charles A. Towne will be the next democratic nominee for president," said Willis J. Abbot yesterday. "I am too busy to discuss the matter now," said Mr. Towne, who was just leaving for New York, but I expect that my business will be in better shape in 1904."

"No, I didn't come to Chicago to see Mr. Towne," said Mr. Abbot. "Just had some business and happened to hear he was in town. Have been hunting for him ever since, but haven't managed to find him."

"So Abbot was here to see me," said Mr. Towne. "Well, I'm sorry I missed him."

So the two political planets failed to get into the same orbit. Mr. Towne is too busy now, anyway, with his oil wells to spend much time talking politics.

TENNESSEE-VIRGINIA PUNCTION.

Knoxville, Tenn., April 11.—In a battle between a sheriff's posse and outlaws in Scott county, Virginia, five men all members of the sheriff's posse, were killed; two other possemen were wounded, and Jim Wright, an escaped Tennessee murderer was shot and captured. Wright was under a life sentence for murder, and escaped from the state prison two years ago. He returned to his haunts in Hancock county and there defied the officers. Not long after his return home Sheriff Lagore, of Hancock county, was shot from ambush and killed. He was charged to Jim Wright, John Templeton and the latter's brothers. His alleged motive was that Lagore had killed the father of the Templetons.
