SERENADED THE STORES

First Appearance of the Journal Band This Spring.

The Journal Newsboys band made its first street appearance of the season Saturday night with fifty-five boys, besides the drum corps. When the young bandmen marched up in front of the Journal building an enormous crowd was waiting to witness the coming. As the band approached it struck up "Heroes of Luzon," one of its latest pieces, by Dalbey. It was played with spirit and was well received. The band then played "The Stars and Stripes," "The Stars and Stripes," and "The Stars and Stripes." All along the line of march there were great crowds in spite of the coolness of the evening. The crowd gave the boys a vigorous "hand" and were profuse in their compliments.

Professor Heintzeman, the leader, marched with the band on its tour, serenading the different department stores. Just as the band finished playing at one of the stores, a gentleman from the crowd that had been listening presented Mr. Heintzeman with a bouquet and said: "Professor, you deserve lots of credit." Then the band played another march and swung down Nicollet, serenading the larger stores on the way to Washington avenue. They then marched to their new bandroom in the Journal building, where they were dismissed.

A DANGLING CROOK

A Swearing, Kicking Burglar Hung From Weisman's Window.

WEISMAN HAD HIM BY THE ANKLE
Police Now Looking for a Man With One Stretched Leg.

The police are looking for a burglar one of whose legs is longer than it really ought to be. He is a bad-looking, dark-complexioned man, perhaps 30 years old, short in stature, but of stocky build and very strong, wears a black coat, dark trousers with stripes, more gaudy than those he will have to do in the officers of the law catch him, and a small, dark cap. He is the fellow who burglarized the home of William Weisman in the Eldorado, 720 Fifth street, last night, securing a gold watch. Weisman caught the burglar in his sleeping room, but the prowler broke away and escaped through an open window. Mr. Weisman gave chase, but could not recapture his prisoner.

Shortly after 2 a. m. Mr. Weisman was awakened by a noise in his room and when he rose to investigate he was blinded by the light of a dark lantern. Weisman sprang towards the intruder, but the burglar ran into the parlor and was climbing upon the window sill when Weisman grabbed him by the ankle. The burglar swung back against the brick wall, cried out and continued to kick and strain in an effort to get free. Finally Weisman, being unable to pull his captiv back into the room or to secure a better hold on him, had to let go.

This is the fifth time Weisman has been burglarized in the past year. Three burglaries occurred at his house at 720 Fifth street, 225 Washington avenue S. The last two burglaries, last night's and one at the store when goods worth about $400 were taken, were covered by insurance. Mr. Weisman says his losses reach $1,200.

OLAF GRAN RECAPTURED

WANTED FOR STEALING WHEELS

Gave an Officer the Slip About Two Years Ago—Found in St. Paul.

Olaf Gran was locked up this forenoon for crimes said to have been committed more than two years ago. Gran was arrested yesterday afternoon in St. Paul at the home of his parents. He was charged with the theft of several bicycles, and is said to have made a confession.

In June, 1900, one of the bicycle inspectors arrested Gran, who then told a frank story. He admitted having stolen and stripped several wheels, and having sold the different parts at various bicycle shops. He aided the bicycle inspector in recovering seven or eight wheels. He then offered to help catch his "pal." The officer took him about for several days, visiting the parks and theaters to find the man.

One Saturday afternoon they went to Harriet, and remained until early in the evening, when they came back and went to the Columbia theater. Gran was permitted great liberties. At the theater he disappeared completely and all efforts to trace him were unavailing.

According to Gran's story this morning, he left the theater and went down through the Milwaukee yards. He then crossed over to Washington avenue and, taking a Minnesota car, rode to the end of the line. The rest of the night he spent walking across the country to Port Snelling and Mendota, from where, early in the morning, he took a train for Iowa. He remained here until about a fortnight ago, when he joined his parents in St. Paul.

A LUCKY ACTRESS

She Receives a $2,000,000 Legacy From Henry Bennett.

Henry M. Bennett of Farmingdale, N. York, a well-known actor, has left a $2,000,000 legacy to a young actress, one of the proprietors of the Hotel Nicolle, died recently, leaving an estate valued at over $2,000,000.

Most of the estate will go to Laura Biggar, an actress, and formerly wife of Ben Haverly, who sued Bennett several years ago for alienating his wife's affections. The case was settled out of court.

The report from Pittsburg is that although Mr. Shattuck was Bennett's nearest living relative, they were not on friendly terms.

Bennett owned the Bijou theater, a hotel and a big business block in Pittsburg, a stock farm at Farmingdale and considerable other real estate. He formerly owned hotels in New York and Pittsburg.

Laura Biggar had been Bennett's faithful attendant for the last three years. He lost a leg as a result of blood poisoning several years ago.

Mr. Shattuck left for New York Saturday night, and members of the family did not care to discuss the matter during his absence. He went east to attend Bennett's funeral.

Miss Biggar has appeared in Minneapolis. She is a member of one of the Hoyt companies.

FAKE FRUIT JUICES

Used in Some Soda Water Fountains—Food Dept. Investigating.

Fruit syrups used as flavors for soda-water are being investigated by the food department of the state dairy and food department. Experiments with some of the substances used have indicated the presence of aniline dyes, and they will be carefully analyzed. It is believed that many of the syrups are compounds of glucose and mineral color, with a suggestion of fruit flavor.

FUNERAL INTERRUPTED

Hackmen Unexpectedly Draw the Color Line.

Members of the Hackmen's union drew the color line suddenly and strenuously at a South Minneapolis funeral Sunday. There were eight hacks in the line, one of which was driven by a colored man. Just as the procession was about to start the white drivers informed the undertaker that the colored man would have to withdraw or they would not participate. The hackmen refused to obey the order and the funeral proceeded. The Trades and Labor council is expected to make an investigation.

HE WILL DO THINGS

Mayor Ames Expected to Take the Snakes Again To-morrow.

AND SENSATIONS ARE PROMISED EMPLOYMENT FOR 4,000 MEN

The Mayor is Said to Have Some Minor Scores to Settle.

Mayor Ames will be back in the executive harness again to-day, and the story goes that he will start right out to do things. The mayor has been taking the full ten days' course of treatment at West Baden, and will come back full of ginger and good resolutions. He has been kept fully apprised of all important local events and will be prepared to rush his new program after brief preliminaries.

He has passed the word around to look out for himself as soon after the doctor strikes town. They refuse, however, to vouchsafe any explanations, but they promise that the mayor will wake the town.

The Peter Blum Chase. Then there are other things promised beside the big money. The present score to pay and will pay them after his usual fashion. One of these is with Judge Holt, who is now more than even under executive displeasure for his strenuous action toward Peter Blum. First street dive keeper, and a great administration favorite. The doctor, it is understood, will take the stand that a permit to sell liquor is not as good as just as good as the real license that comes through the city council.

"Unseemly Haste." Judge Holt disposed of the mayor will turn his guns on the city council and Alderman Jones, who has been wandering through his secretary, the mayor has conveyed to Alderman Jones his opinion of the latter's action in signing the council ordinances and resolutions of last Friday night.

It was a direct slap at the executive end of the city government, he insists, and such "unseemly haste" necessarily suggests to repeat, has been wandering something that will bear investigation. It was all right, from the mayor's standpoint, for him to rush away leaving some 400 or 500 city warrants for unpaid taxes, but it was a little more ample time to do the work himself, but the usurpation of his privileges to scan the council ordinances and resolutions is quite another thing.

It is also said that the doctor has a little investigation in mind into the conduct of one of his own official family—License Inspector Gardner. Gardner, according to reports, has been wandering of late somewhat from the path mapped out for him by the mayor, and it is said there is at least a reprimand in store for him.

Captain Fitchette will again report in person to the mayor for duty to-morrow. Captain Fitchette has been sick at the country place out on Lyndale avenue ever since the mayor left town, and a committee is desirous of devising some plan for showing visitors through the beautiful residence districts.

A carriage ride through the residence districts, to the lakes and to Minnehaha has been suggested, but the club does not feel able to meet this additional expense. Consequently residents who may be out of town on the first of the month, or who may not require their carriages at that time, are asked to place them at the disposal of the committee. No personal solicitation will be made, but owners of carriages are asked to comply, if possible.

A TRIO SENTENCED

Included May Harris, Alleged Victim of Knock Out Drops.

May Harris, the young girl who said knock out drops were given her in a room at 23 Washington avenue S, and John Fredericks and William Harris, the young men arrested, were sentenced to the workhouse for 30 days. The girl's own testimony gave her a bad name. Thomas Ealdwin, proprietor of the lodging-house, was arrested at midnight by police issuing from the room occupied by the trio. He admitted giving the drops to the girl unconscious. A bottle of beer, a bottle of wine and a bottle containing a drug were found.

The girl told Marion Schaefer at the central jail that she had met two young men on her way home from work Saturday night, and went with them to a Washington avenue dance. Instead of taking her to the dance, she says they drove her to the hotel, where she was given whisky and some other drink for a headache.

Early Snake Story From N. D.

Special to The Journal. Minot, N. D., April 13.—Ranchers from the Missouri river country south of White Earth are suffering from a bad case of snakes—not in their boots—but in their houses and fields. After the water receded from the land bordering on the river, the surface of the ground was alive with snakes of various descriptions, but most of them in a semi-dormant state. In some cases where the water went into the houses, the snakes were literally shoved out before the work of cleaning the floors could proceed. The drowsy things had been washed from the river basin, or washed out of the ground and lodged wherever the water dropped them.

SAWS START AGAIN

Seven Minneapolis Mills Began Chewing Up Logs.

Water Is So Low That Log Handling Will Be More Expensive.

Seven big Minneapolis sawmills began to sing their spring song of industry to-day. At an early hour the huge logs from the northern pines were following in the funeral procession of so many of their fellows who have in years gone by moved upon the saws.

The companies that commenced sawing to-day were the Shevlin-Carpenter, Carpenter-Lamb, McMillen & Co., Scanlon-Gipson, H. C. Akley, Borey-DeLaitre and Nelson-Tutbill. Two of these mills, those of Scanlon-Gipson and Nelson-Tutbill, were already sawing logs brought in by rail.

This is an unusually early opening and there is at least one good reason why it should be. Richard H. Chute, of the boom company, says the water is so low as to interfere seriously with the driving of logs, and it has been a great many years since the water at this season was as such a low ebb.

"You can scarcely exaggerate the gravity of the situation," said Mr. Chute. "We have been forced to double our force of employees in order to keep the log moving over the shoals. We will be much more expensive operation than ordinarily. It will cost the boom company about twice as much as usual and there will be a corresponding increase in expenses of the log companies, but I guess they can stand it. We have about 150 men on the drive at up-river points and there are nearly 350 of work on the Minneapolis booms. What we need now is a good head of water."

WHO'LL LEND CARRIAGES

Chance for Citizens to Help Heartily Co-operation Will Add to Entertainment of Western Drawing Teachers.

Two receptions will be held, one in the West hotel and the other at the public library building, where members of the Society of Fine Arts will officiate as hosts.

The committee is desirous of devising some plan for showing visitors through the beautiful residence districts.

A carriage ride through the residence districts, to the lakes and to Minnehaha has been suggested, but the club does not feel able to meet this additional expense.

EIGHT HOURS FOR CLERKS

Plan for Minneapolis Postoffice to Be Put Into Effect.

From The Journal, Bureau, Room 65, Post Building, Minneapolis, Minn., April 13.—The postoffice department proposes to establish an eight-hour rule for clerks in the postoffices at Minneapolis, St. Paul and all other large offices. The plan has been under consideration for some time and estimates for appropriations for clerks have been made. The bill and agreement will enable the department to carry it out. It will involve a substantial increase in the number of clerks in these offices.

When Postmaster Lovejoy was here last week he talked the whole subject over with Chief Beavers of the salaries and allowance division and it was agreed that the twelve additional clerks the eight-hour system could be put in operation in the Minneapolis office. They will be appointed to take effect July 1.

Committee of Roosevelt Club Issues Statement—Flowers for the "Belles."

The great demand for tickets for "The Viking" Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday evening and the inability of the Roosevelt club to meet it with the consequent complaints of the part of disappointed persons has led the committee to make an explanation as follows: "Owing to the fact that the club has been charged with having reserved a large number of seats prior to the date of the public sale, the executive committee, who have entire charge of the play, deem it their duty, in order to conform to the regulations of the club with the exception of those made under authority of the press and ten seats for business purposes.

G. K. Bell, J. E. Shaw, W. D. Morse, A. S. Bell, T. S. Ingersoll, C. S. Gale, A. W. Strong, Committee.

Members of the Roosevelt club who will appear in "The Viking" at the Lyceum to-morrow evening may be excused for not throwing any bouquets at themselves. There will be flowers enough without it. A young woman with dreamy eyes who dwell with fondness and a roughish twinkle over a large bunch of American beauties at a certain flower store this morning is going to help supply the demand. And there are others. Not in years, outside of holiday happenings, has there been such a demand for bouquets at Minneapolis flower stores. All the dealers attribute this unprecedented call for flowers to the Roosevelt show.

It was learned this morning that a flower brigade would be a feature of the large and fashionable audience at the Lyceum to-morrow evening. For several days the members of the brigade, in which the fair sex largely predominates, have been cornering the local flower supply in preparation for the demonstration which they will make when they greet their faithful favorites. "The Viking" approaches a climax to-morrow evening, no surprise need be exhibited if a long file of messenger boys marches down the aisles, struggling beneath the weight of flowers garlands.

It is, in fact, to be a battle of roses. The scheme agreed upon is literally to flood the stage with flowers and to strew the paths of the conquering heroes with the best the market affords. It will be an aggressive audience and it does not appear to sit idly by and let the "playactors" be the whole show.
