GRAND OPERA WILL BE SPOKEN

NOVEL, BUT REASONABLE, THEORY OF A CHICAGO READER.

A new and interesting musical theory has been sprung in Chicago, where it is attracting considerable attention, for it has in it some strong elements of reasonableness, although rather startling. It will certainly bring out a strong protest; but every innovation, good or bad, does that. Miss J. J. Howell, a clever dramatic reader and teacher, declares her belief that grand opera in the future will be spoken or declaimed. The orchestral accompaniment will be the same and the substitution of the speaking for the singing voice will call for an even greater art than is now the case. Vocal training for opera will then be more extended and arduous than at present, but people will not grow weary of listening to grand opera, as they do now.

As a proof of her argument that the speaking voice is the only natural means of vocal expression, Miss Howell cites the much greater ease with which dramatic interpreters hold the interest of their audiences than opera singers. Wagner, she says, divined that opera singing would be a passing development, and in the "Ring" opera followed the functions of the speaking voice entirely. Miss Howell predicts the speaking of the Wagner operas, instead of singing them, within a decade.

She acknowledges that at present the use of the speaking voice with accompaniment does not accord as well as the singing voice, but believes the defect will rapidly be remedied. To carry out her ideas, she is preparing Olive Schreiner's "The Hunted" to be given with musical accompaniment has been written by Louis Campbell Tipton. Only this year the Strauss setting of Enoch Arden has met with much success by several notable readers and others besides Miss Howell are studying the problem of declaiming to musical accompaniment. "Manfred" has been delivered to Schumann music and Lachaux wrote some splendid tone productions to accompany "The Sunken Bell," which E. H. Sothern delivered so famously. David Blapham particularly has been given some interesting productions of spoken tones to music in his recitals.

MEMORIAL DAY ORDER

Members Urged to Make It a Holy Day. Mrs. John Mullin, of Wabasha, department president of the Ladies of the G. A. R., has issued a general order in regard to Memorial Day. The circles are requested to confer with their pastor as to the observance of the day. The observance of the day should be neglected. The comfort of the aged and the sick will be considered and they will also be remembered with flowers and gifts, as well as the resting of those who sleep in unknown graves on southern battlefields. On the Sunday preceding Memorial Day the circles will attend church in their respective parishes. A holiday should be declared and the members are urged to do what they can to make it a holy day.

The program of toasts was presided over by Miss Ada Hillman, general secretary of the association. The first toast given was by Mrs. W. I. Gray, first president of the association, who gave interesting contrasts between "Then and Now." There were eleven years ago, when half a dozen girls of the sophomore class gathered together and held a prayer meeting one week, following about the Herman place. The remaining toasts were "The Place of the Association in College Life," Mrs. Cooper, a member of the advisory board; "Music Hath Charms," Miss McFarland; "The Other Half," Miss M. Belle Jeffery, general secretary of the city association; "Our Guests," Miss Ballard; "Paring Is Such Sweet Sorrow," Miss Foulke.

The programs were adorned with a print of an owl in cap and gown, and the dishes of the menu were concealed in quotations.

A French entertainment, "Charade in Action," will be given Saturday at new at the pupils of Mile. Dreyfus at the Minneapolis Classical school. The little play will be given with a musical accompaniment.

Northwestern people at New York hotels are as follows: Minneapolis—Everett, J. Galbraith; Marlborough, Mrs. J. B. Secombe; St. Denis, A. McLeod; Mrs. H. A. Snow; Miss Widator; Holland, H. W. Hill; W. D. Washburn; Manhattan, A. M. Marshall.

Minneapolis chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, will meet on Saturday afternoon at 2:30, with Mrs. G. B. Willitt, 318 Broadway, as the speaker. Paper will be read by Dr. Ethel E. Hurd.

Colonel Fred Ames, superintendent of police, returned this morning from Louisville, Ky., where he attended the annual convention of police chiefs. He did not care to discuss the recent police investigation by the grand jury other than to say that he believed indictments should be returned in the case of Chief O'Neill of Chicago. This paper gave the history of the movement and the steps taken by the police of Chicago to cope with it. Chief O'Neill thinks there will be no difficulty in meeting the conditions that arise in this direction and that there is no reason for fear.

Superintendent Ames also spoke of the convention in particular which was one of the most successful that has been held and which had a good W. Endicott, there being about 150 chiefs present. Several papers were read which Mr. Ames considered exceptionally good. The leading one was read by Chief O'Neill of Chicago, on "Anarchists and Anarchism." This paper gave the history of the movement and the steps taken by the police of Chicago to cope with it. Chief O'Neill thinks there will be no difficulty in meeting the conditions that arise in this direction and that there is no reason for fear.

University Wanted One or the Other for Commencement Address. An evidence of Hamilton W. Mable's efforts as a public speaker is furnished by the efforts of the University of Minnesota, or its graduating class, to engage him for a commencement address. College students regard "a good thing" in the way of public addresses, and they tried hard to get Dr. Mable, but did not succeed. The students wanted either him or Former President Grover Cleveland. Dr. Mable is constantly in receipt of invitations that honor him highly, but which he has to decline because of his other engagements. He is now in Chicago, where he is preparing to give his lecture in the New Century church, Wednesday evening, at Plymouth church, which will deliver one other lecture, at Omaha.
