YOUNG LIFE CUT OFF

Death of Mrs. Woodworth a Shock to Her Friends.

The death a few days ago of Mrs. Alice Spratt Woodworth, wife of John E. Woodworth, and daughter of Dr. C. J. Spratt and Mrs. A. B. Spratt, was a great shock to a large circle of friends who were deeply saddened by this unforeseen occurrence. Mrs. Woodworth was born Nov. 4, 1873, and her family moved to Minneapolis during her childhood. The greater portion of her short life was spent in this city. She was married on Oct. 2, 1901, to John E. Woodworth. Deeply attached to father, mother, husband, brother and friends, she gave promise of a life of usefulness and character as her girlhood had been charming in personality.

Her death occurred at Johns Hopkins hospital in Baltimore, Md., after a long illness touching courage, in the watchful care of her devoted father and brother, to meet the trial which would result in renewed health or terminate the dream of all that life held dear to her. It was believed that the danger point in the case had passed and anxiety had yielded to the certainty of a speedy and complete recovery. A sudden change came and almost without warning life slipped away from the beautiful earthly tenement on June 4, "out of this world of limitations into that larger world where dreams come true."

RATE HEARING POSTPONED

South St. Paul Live Stock Men Encounter an Obstacle.

The interstate commerce commission has notified Minnesota's railroad and warehouse commission that the hearing on the question of cattle rates from northwestern Minnesota to St. Paul and Chicago has been indefinitely postponed. The Chicago cattlemen have prevented the compromise recently agreed on, while the Chicago lines are even reducing rates on cattle, but raising rates on packing-house products. The commission may be forced to the courts to get protection for the South St. Paul cattlemen.

He was dressed in overalls and jumper and wore heavy underwear. He had on a pair of riverman's boots.

FISHING'S NO FUN

The Strenuous Week Spent by W. T. Coe and G. W. Armstrong.

FEW FISH AND MUCH DISCOMFORT

Narrow Escape in a Launch in Storm on Leech Lake.

William T. Coe and George W. Armstrong for the last week have been fishing at Leech Lake, and bring the champagne hard luck story of the season back. Mr. Coe tells the story thus: "We were out on Leech lake while we were at Walker, but the night we got in there it was raining pitchforks, and that put tamping out of the question. The next day we tried to catch bass in the lake near Leech lake, where they told us the bass were thicker than flies. We fished for six hours, three of us, and got five mealy little pig bass, weighing about a pound each.

"We licked the fellow that gave us that steer, and the next day we went over to Howard lake about twelve miles from Walker. There is a dam in Howard lake which keeps the water up to the proper level. The dam had been there for ten years and no one happened to it, but the day we got there the dam went out. "Last Monday, L. W. Moody, a banker of Pomeroy, in his own boat, with three children, Dr. Norman Chance and his wife, from Little Falls, Armstrong and myself, in a little gasoline launch went to Sucker bay in Leech lake, where we expected to catch some bass. We caught some fine pike. When we started back and got into the big lake, we found the waves rolling five or six feet high, and a thirty mile wind blowing. Our little craft pitched and rolled, the waves washed over the deck, the children cried out in terror, and Mrs. Moody and Mrs. Chance grew hysterical. The Indians on the Tall Point saw us staggering along, and they thought we would surely founder. They even went so far as to put out in canoes to rescue us. We were in a shelter under the lee of the point, went ashore and spent the night there; also Monday, Monday night and Tuesday. About 4 o'clock Tuesday the Indians rescued us. We had eaten everything we had and would have been in sore straits if we had not been taken off. The citizens at Walker were when the big steamer broke before our return, and sent the big steamer out after us, but the captain expected to find us down in Sucker bay; hence their delay in finding us."

The contract calls for the coloring of the walls and ceiling and decorating of the spaces between the windows. There are fifteen spaces and twelve panels above the windows and connecting the walls and ceiling. The spaces will be decorated in the following colors: blue, green, yellow, red, white, and black. The general color scheme of the room.

NICE POINT INVOLVED

How the Government Will Decide Upon Hall's Island.

Health Commissioner Hall's plan to secure an island near the Plymouth avenue bridge for public use has been under a nice question. If the island is under authority of the war department, the city can get it. If it is merely a detached bit of land, it belongs to the owner of that shore. It is a genuine island and subject to disposal by the government if the channel between the island and the mainland is navigable and the channel is navigable in the eyes of the government if logs can be oared there. There is small doubt that the city will obtain possession.

"TEE UP AND PLAY 3"

Semi-Final Round for the Woman's Golf Championship.

New York, June 13.—In the semi-final round for the woman's golf championship to-day at the Essex Country Club the chief interest centered in the match between Mrs. E. A. Manice and the present champion, Miss Genevieve Hecker. Miss Hecker's remarkable performance yesterday in making the holes in 77 was sufficient in itself to attract many spectators to the links to-day. Miss Manice has been playing stick-fast golf and her play to-day with the champion was watched with much interest. Before the match started with a good drive, Miss Hecker's score was 84 and Miss Manice's was 84. The match between Miss Hernandez and Mrs. Shippen was the first in the championship class to get away. Miss Hernandez started with a good drive, and the eleventh green she was 2 up. In playing for the twelfth Mrs. Shippen drove into the water and had to play 3. Miss Hecker and Mrs. Manice got away about 11 o'clock. The first hole was halved, but Mrs. Manice won the second. The next went to Miss Hecker and made all even.

SHIVELER ARRESTED

Ex-Secretary of the A. D. T. in N. Y. Accused of Theft.

New York, June 13.—Charles S. Shivelier, who was secretary and treasurer of the American Telegraph company in this city for many years, was arrested to-day at the direction of District Attorney Jerome. He was accused by the company of having stolen $10,000 worth of property, amounting to about a dozen years' accounts to the company, worth $17,000. The case was referred to the grand jury.

THE "MILITARY DIP" IS THE THING.

New York, June 13.—At the convention of the Normal Association of Dancing Masters three new round dances and an original dance have been chosen as the correct thing for the coming season. The new steps are known as the military dip, antlers, savants, the Olympia and the drawing-room lancers. The first-named is a waltz, differing from the old dip waltz dance in a sensation spot by having a dip to each move, instead of every third movement.

Dickinson Memorial.

The supreme court has set aside the afternoon of Friday, June 20, for receiving from the bar a memorial on the death of the late Judge D. J. Dickinson of St. Paul.

HE WAS WITH CUSTER

W. W. McGehe Left the Command Just Before the Fight.

HE WAS SENT WITH WORD TO RENO

His Companion, Who Took Another Trail, Was Ambushed and Killed.

Custer's last fight, one of the great tragedies in the history of the West, is graphically described in the Hotel Allen this morning by W. W. McGehe, of St. Louis, who claims to be the only survivor of the seven survivors of the Little Big Horn fight, June 25, 1876. History records that not a man escaped from the great battle, but McGehe, who was with Custer, says that he and another man, Mr. Bull's braves, but Mr. McGehe—'Orderly' McGehe, as he was then known—is a living refutation of that report.

McGehe was born in New York, Ky., in 1857. He and his mother left Cincinnati and moved to the Texas frontier in the latter 60's. In 1874 he joined the regulars of the Seventh Cavalry, and was attached to the south, and two years later was detached as orderly with the Seventh. "Before Custer's battle I had not come upon the day of the fight," said Mr. McGehe, "they decided to attempt a flank movement on the hostiles, whose position we well knew to all of us. The two officers compared watches and set them alike. I did not overhear their conversation at the time, but afterwards learned that the agreement was to wait until 10 o'clock to make the onslaught at a certain prearranged time. "As orderly, I was keeping close to General Custer, and before we had gone a mile, he found that we had not gone far enough to make the point agreed upon at that time, and calling to me he said: 'Orderly, go back to General Reno and tell him to wait twenty minutes longer. I have not given him the same order. He then made us both repeat our orders. We did so and McGehe started off he pointed out what he thought was a good place to wait. He thought that we had instead of following the regular trail.

Wagner decided to take the short cut because the trail led him to, but he was afraid of falling in with Indians of the beaten path, and so I stuck to the old trail. The short cut lay through the woods and brush. I had not gone more than 300 yards when the Indians commenced their onslaught on the Seventh. Wagner was in their path. It seemed as if all theimps of hell had broken loose.

"To my dying day I will never forget the wild chorus of discordant, blood-curdling yells which broke upon my ears, mingled with the crack of carbines. I knew it was all up with Wagner. He was killed. If you ever read in history about the man John S. Braxton, you will remember the story of a mile away you may be sure it was Wagner—the poor, good-natured German trumpeter.

"I managed to stick it out until I got in the lines, and the answering fire of Reno's men sent the reds flying over my head. I or I could not get a shot at him as I came within halting distance. He replied: 'It's too late, orderly, take care of yourself!'

"I knew it was time, although I scarcely knew it. I was shot in the right and left legs and side. It was all over with Custer and his command. I was the last man left standing. I was shot in the chest and back, and I lay there until I was taken to the hospital. I was there for several days, but I never recovered from my wounds. I was discharged from the army, and I have since lived in St. Louis, Mo., where I am now residing.

A RIVER SCORCHER OUT

SAILORS CALL IT A PHANTOM

Several Collisions, However, Have Done Material Damage to the Bridges. New York Sun Special Service Chicago, June 13.—Another chapter to the history of the "Pirates of Goose Island" has been added by the appearance of a specter craft on the river that outclasses in ghostly mystery the legends of the "Phantom Ship" and the "Flying Dutchman." Every night a black steam launch with lights on bow and stern and with no steam escaping from its mud holes, enters the harbor and careens rapidly up the river until it reaches Washington street, when it suddenly disappears.

STEAM TO LIGHTNING

RAILROADS MAY CHANGE OVER

The Far-Reaching Plans of Mr. Whitney and His Associates. The substitution of electricity for steam on American lines is not, according to the Tribune, expected to be entered upon at once, but later on wherever there is a congestion of traffic on the steam roads in the east, it is believed there will be a displacement of the locomotive by the electrical engines. It is further asserted that at least fifteen locomotive building concerns in the United States will be brought into the enterprise.
