

THUMPED BY BRYAN

Ex-President Cleveland Held Up as Too of Plutocracy.

HE DEBAUCHED HIS OWN PARTY

"Harmony Dinner" in New York Calls Out a Rib Roaster From Commoner Man.

Lincoln, Neb., June 24.—The absence of W. J. Bryan from the democratic harmony dinner at New York is pretty well explained by a statement given out by Mr. Bryan last evening commenting on the dinner. At the outset Mr. Bryan says there is no such thing as democratic harmony when formed by resident Cleveland is concerned. He says: "The banquet given on the evening of June 19 by the Tilden club of New York city was advertised as a 'harmony meeting.' But it turned out to be what might have been expected of such a gathering, an oration to the chief guest, former President Grover Cleveland."

There can be no such thing as harmony between men like him and those who believe in democratic principles, and he is frank enough to say so. He spent no time looking for "middle ground" upon which to gather together discordant elements. He boldly called upon the members of the party to stand by their convictions and accept the construction which he places upon democratic principles. He even taunted the party with being a sort of political "harmony" meeting, and set up its diet of husks and return to its father's house.

He is not only defiant, but he insists that party success can only be secured by an open and avowed return to his ideas. Harmony is to be secured not by the suppression of differences, but by the elimination of those who differ from him.

"Secret Bargain With Financiers." He secured his nomination in 1892 by a secret bargain with the financiers; his committee collected for the nomination and spent the largest campaign fund the party ever had; he filled his cabinet with corporation agents, and placed railroad trustees in the United States senate; he looked after the interests of his former clients.

He turned the treasury over to a Wall street syndicate, and the financial member of his official family went to Washington to defend the private attorney of the man who forced (?) the treasury department to sell him government bonds at 105 and then resold them at 117.

He tried to prevent the adoption of the income tax provision; he refused to sign the only tariff reform measure passed since the war, and while thundering against the trusts in his messages, did even less than Knox had done to interfere with their high handed methods. His administration, instead of being a fountain of democracy sending forth pure and refreshing streams, has been a stagnant pool from whose waters foul vapors arose—poisonous to those who lingered near.

Having debauched his party, he was offended by its efforts to reform and to comfort to the enemy. Virginia killed his daughter to save her chastity; Cleveland stabbed his party to prevent its return to the path of virtue. And now, still gloating over his political crimes, he invites the party to return to him and apologize for the contempt which it has expressed for him. Will it? Not until the principles of Jackson are forgotten and the words of Jackson cease to inspire.

If we are to have reorganization, Cleveland himself should accept the presidential nomination. It would be due him; his reinstatement would be poetic justice to him and retribution to those whose democratic conscience revolted toward his un-democratic conduct. Of course, he would get no democratic votes, but, being closer to plutocracy than any republican likely to be nominated, he might divide the enemy and even democrats would have little consolation would come from receiving their disappointment in advance.

Sham Battles Only. Mr. Cleveland's speech should be read in full. It answers a useful purpose; it outlines the plan of campaign decided upon by the plutocratic elements for which the reorganizers stand.

Tariff reform is to be made the chief issue and the men who voted for Mr. McKinley, the high priest of protection, are to carry the sham battle with their companions of 1896, while the financiers make the dollar redeemable in gold and fasten upon the country an asset currency and branch bank system. Trusts are to be denounced in honorous terms, while the campaign managers mortgage the party to the trust magnates in return for campaign funds.

Sometimes imperialism will be denounced, as in Mr. Hopkins' Illinois convention; sometimes ignored, as in Mr. Cleveland's speech; but, whether denounced or ignored, the secret side the enemy and even democrats would have little consolation would come from receiving their disappointment in advance.

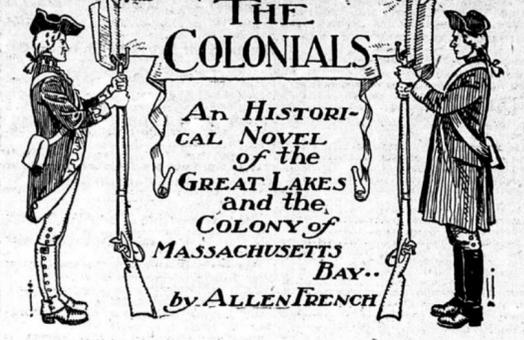

GENERAL OTIS' DAUGHTER WEDS. Rochester, N. Y., June 24.—Miss Mary Louise Otis, eldest daughter of General and Mrs. Elwell Stephen Otis, and Ralph Isham of Chicago will be married here this evening. The ceremony will take place in Trinity church and will be followed by a reception at the Otis home on Lyell avenue road, just outside the city.

Stomachs on Stilts.

The man who puts on stilts does not increase his actual stature by the breadth of a hair. He feels taller while he's on the stilts, and when he's off them he feels shorter than he ever felt. Stimulants are the stilts of the stomach. They make a man feel better for the time being, but he feels a great deal worse for the afterward. The need of the man whose stomach is "weak" is not stimulation but strength. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery perfectly answers that need. It cures the diseases of the digestive and nutritive system which make the stomach "weak." It gives the stomach strength and enables the digestion and assimilation of food, so that the body receives the nutrition on which depends its strength. "I took two bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery for stomach trouble," writes Clarence Curran, Esq., Tylerstown, Loudon Co., Va. "It did me good. I never felt better. I didn't take any more. I can eat most anything now and am well pleased with it. I hardly know how to thank you for your kind information. I tried a whole lot of things before I wrote to you. A gentleman told me of your medicine, and how it cured his wife. Thought I would try a bottle of it. Am now glad that I did for I do not know what I should have done had it not been for Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery."

The sole motive for substitution is to permit the dealer to make the little more profit paid by the sale of less meritorious medicines. He gains; you lose. Therefore accept no substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery."

The sluggish liver is made active by the use of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets.

THE COLONIALS

An Historical Novel of the Great Lakes and the Colony of Massachusetts Bay. By ALLEN FRENCH.

CHAPTER VI. WAITING. Farmers and tradesmen, having suddenly become generals and colonels, endeavored to give shape to an army which day by day grew larger and more unwieldy. A loose-knit force, held together by zeal, but not yet a unit, was camped round about Boston. Of actual siege operations there was practically nothing at the beginning. Slight earthworks were thrown across the road at Roxbury, but that was all. The rebels were in individual fighting, as an army they would have counted for little but for British generalship.

Gage, looking about him on all sides, saw spectators from every point of view. It was their astonishing enthusiasm, should attack; if the citizens should rise against him; if the town should be burned over his head. These contingencies and their possible results concealed from him his own undoubted strength. He hurried work on defenses already strong enough, and far from seeing the only two points which he could be assailed, he turned his attention toward disarming foes within the town.

The selectmen waited on him with the keys of Faneuil hall. "Have all the citizens given up their arms?" the general suspiciously inquired. "All who desire to do so," was the reply. The secretary, at the governor's side, said it was wise to let the ropemakers had delivered no muskets at the hall. "And they are known to have bought arms," said the general. "This is against the agreement."

"As it was also against the agreement," said Mr. Timothy Newell, who spoke for the selectmen, "to prohibit Mr. Elery and Mr. Dickie from leaving the town, Mr. Elery is dolized by the men of his trade. No ropemaker would give up his arms after that." "Give me the keys," demanded the governor hastily. Mr. Newell withheld them. "It is understood that no further restriction shall be laid on those who wish to leave," he stipulated. "Yes," said the general. "Even the ropemakers," insisted the selectmen. "Yes—and glad to be rid of them," added Gage to his aide.

The keys were delivered, and the agreement went into halting operation. But it was observed that no ropemaker left the town. The general might enjoy the unpleasant consideration that the hardest Yankees, trouble-breeders since before the massacre, were ready at any time to take up arms at his back. And Sotheman settled down to wait the fulfillment of his revenge. He had succeeded so far; in the remainder also he would succeed. He saw Dickie in his new uniform, and he waved his hand toward Cambridge. "Can you figure the lack of organization? Who are the generals? The Ward, old and feeble. Enthusiasm keeps the Ward together as yet, but pray heaven that the younger minds soon take the lead, or the army will fall apart of its own weight." "Frank's spirits fell." "I see this disappoints you," said Knox. "Fear not; congress must uphold us. If they appoint a general of force this siege is won. But 'tis too soon, as yet, to hope for aggressive measures." "How soon?" asked Frank. "A month—two months, perhaps. But unless Gage has lost his wits he will seize the Heights. 'Twas said, as I remember, that he was planning a fort there, but the plan was finished before the day of Lexington." [To be continued to-morrow.]

RAID WOMEN'S POOLROOM

FIVE "PLUNGERS" ARE TAKEN IN A Woman's Husband Makes the Complaint—Says It Was Ruining His Home.

New York Sun Special Service. New York, June 24.—Acting Captain Dillon of the tenderfoot station received the following letter: "Captain Dillon—This is to notify you that there is a woman's poolroom at 516 Sixth avenue, one flight up. My wife spends most of her time there, losing the money I give her. Won't you please close the place, for it is ruining my wife and my home. A Victim."

When the races started the detectives went to work. They found the first floor of the building was supposed to be the Herald Square employment agency. There were about twenty-five women in a rear room, all of whom seemed to be anxiously scanning cards. At a desk on a raised platform sat a woman who seemed to be running the place. Another woman at a telephone, soon began to describe the third race at Sheepshead Bay. Then the detectives broke into the room. The twenty-five women were in a panic. Lizzie Guest, the proprietress, frantically tried to put evidence in her stocking. She and five others were taken to the police station. The others were allowed to go home.

DOUBLE TRAGEDY

Man Shoots a Woman and Then Kills Himself.

New York Sun Special Service. Syracuse, N. Y., June 24.—A young man of stylish appearance known in this city as J. Harold Griffin shot and killed Mrs. Correna Chase whose home is near Geneva, N. Y., at the Clarendon hotel and then committed suicide. Griffin whose identity cannot be established has been hanging around the Clarendon with the woman and registered as "J. Harold Griffin and wife." Nothing had been heard from the couple up to a late hour this afternoon and repeated knocks brought no response. A boy then climbed over the transom and discovered a double tragedy. Coroner Daniel F. Mathews found a bullet wound in the chest of Mrs. Chase and above Mrs. Chase's left ear and a similar wound over Griffin's right ear. No shots had been heard in the hotel.

Mrs. Chase has been employed at the Imperial hotel in this city and has a daughter working there now. Griffin left a long letter saying that most of his family had gone insane and that he feared a similar affliction. People who knew him claim that he has appeared somewhat deranged of late. His identity has not been established nor any relatives located.
