DOLLARS FOR PORTERS

Son of Andrew Carnegie Distributes "Tips" With Lavish Hand at the Ryan, St. Paul.
Bell boys and other employees of the Ryan hotel, St. Paul, will long have cause to remember the visit of Mr. and Mrs. George Carnegie Wednesday. Mr. Carnegie is a son of the great steel magnate, and the couple were on their way home from the Pacific coast to Pittsburgh. Having a little ready money about him Mr. Carnegie proceeded to distribute it with a lavish hand, and some of the employees earned more during the day than they sometimes earn in a week. The porter received $4 for removing Mr. Carnegie's luggage.
Both Mr. and Mrs. Carnegie are quiet, unassuming people. Mr. Carnegie was plainly, almost shabbily, dressed.

THEY CRY "BOODLE"

Street sweepers in St. Paul say boodling is being practiced in the city engineer's office, and that they are obliged to pay tribute to Mr. Beck, superintendent of streets, in order to hold their jobs. The city engineer is not blamed for the condition of affairs, and an investigation will follow the charge.

EASILY ANSWERED.

"I wonder why it is," he remarked thoughtfully, "that the girl who is in the biggest hurry to have a man propose is the one who in the least hurry to give him a definite answer."
"Because," replied his chum, who was a year older and consequently had that much experience, "because she's a girl."

ART OF THEIR YOUTH

Shown by Out-of-Town Artists at the "Black and White" Exhibit.
Lovers of Art Found Real Merit of Exhibit in Work of Local Artists.

The "black and white" exhibition of the Press Artists' league in the West hotel closed last evening. The exhibition served to bring the work of the local men before the people of Minneapolis, and it showed a true appreciation of its excellence by purchasing liberally. The collection of the out-of-town artists was a great disappointment, and the few known of those men to-day. In fact, most of the eastern drawings might have been labeled antiques and many of them dated back in the early 90's and 80's, and only served to show what progress newspaper illustration has made.
It is understood that the same management held an exhibition in Syracuse, N. Y., the first of the week, and much of its best work, work that the local league had expected would form a part of the Minneapolis exhibition, was sent there. However, that may be true, but it is not clear that the pictures shown at the West hotel with the exception of several by Levering, Gallowsay, Florence Scovel, Wallace, Beebe, Lemmon and a few others, were any better than the work of the local men, for they partook more of the nature of a commercial list than of an art catalogue.
The catalogue, which were issued by the management, the exhibition which cannot be too severely condemned was the method of selling the pictures. From the time that the doors were opened to the patrons Tuesday afternoon, the pictures which were sold was promptly removed from the wall and sent to the purchaser. By the close of Tuesday evening the best work had disappeared and those who visited the room Wednesday and on Thursday saw only a partial collection. This was manifestly unfair to the public which had been invited to be present.
The exhibition was managed by out-of-town people, and though it was most unsatisfactory in many ways it served one good purpose, it showed the Minneapolis public that the work of the Minneapolis men was of very high grade.

PROSPEROUS MEXICO

S. B. Morison, Recently From the Great Latin Republic, Talks of Conditions There.
Says It Is a Republic Only in Name—Diaz Little Short of a Dictator.

The Mexican republic is such in name only, according to S. B. Morison, formerly of Minneapolis, now extensively interested in coffee growing in the province of Chiapas, near the Guatemala border in Mexico, who is visiting his family in-law, Captain S. P. Snider on Mount Curve avenue.
"Absolute monarchy," he says, would better describe the form of government which actually exists in the land of the Montezumas.
It has always been President Diaz's policy to rule his subjects with a hand of iron. So much authority rested in him that the government is practically ruled by one-man power, and Diaz is little short of a dictator. Nevertheless, says Mr. Morison, he has ruled Mexico wisely and has so refrained from abusing his authority that there is not a more popular governmental head in the world. Under his beneficent administration of affairs and far-seeing statesmanship the country is improving rapidly and is sharing largely in the prosperity of the great republic to the north.
"People predict in this country," said Mr. Morison, "that the Mexican republic will go to pieces as soon as Diaz dies, known men who are in power at the moment he passes from the stage. That is a mistake. It is well known now who will succeed him, and he is a fellow of confidence throughout the country, that the republic's destiny will be in safe hands when Jose Liman-tour, minister of finance, finally takes the oath of office."
"America's cardinal continues to pour steadily into Mexico. Since I went to the country ten years ago, millions have been invested in new railroads. Among the principal ones constructed by Americans during the last few years are the Isthmus of Tehuantepec road, Coatzacoalcos and Salina Cruz, the line from Chihuahua to the Gulf of Mexico, the road from Mexico City to Cuernavaca.
"Mexico City is a thriving metropolis of about 600,000 people. It is rapidly becoming the most important city in the continent in a few years. The educational facilities of Mexico, notably the public school system, are undergoing wonderful development at present and the percentage of illiteracy is being rapidly reduced."

HELP THE FARMER

University College of Agriculture Is Attempting to Improve Life in the Country.
Aim Is to Awaken Rural Youth to the Advantages of Country Life.

The department of agriculture of the university is charged under an act of the legislature with the preparation of leaflets and other material relative to the introduction of studies intended to improve country life and perfect the art of farming.
The department of agriculture is working along the following lines: Preparing charts and school room helps; arranging plans tending to make students more observant about the farm and requiring practical reports; aiding in making useful for illustrations in the rural school, natural and common objects of the country; decorating and teaching the ways of adorning school grounds; corresponding with teachers and county superintendents, urging them to bring the country school and country life more into union.
The work is new and an experimental stage but large and helpful results are looked for.
The instructors in the department of agriculture of the university will furnish a large amount of material to be used in leaflets, etc.
An awakening of the rural youth to the advantages of country life is a closer observance of daily occurrences; clearer thought and a more practical view of farming are some of the results expected.
F. Wolf, a graduate of Wisconsin, has taken charge of the work and has done much during the past summer.

PUMPS START MAY 1

Brick Work on New Northeast Station Will Be Completed by November.
City Engineer Sublette and a number of aldermen visited the new pumping station at the foot of Twenty-sixth street NE yesterday afternoon. They found a score of brickmasons hustling like beavers. The brick work will doubtless be completed by the first of November and the work of installing the big pumps will begin as soon thereafter as possible. Mr. Sublette fixes on May 1 as the date on which this station will be in readiness to pump water into the reservoir.

THINKS HE'S A ROGUE

James O'Malley, Arrested in St. Paul, Believed to Be a Man With Record for Villainy.
Chief of Police J. J. O'Connor of St. Paul believes that he has a dangerous man in custody, the person of James O'Malley, the desperado who was arrested Monday night by Detective Fraser after a running fight of nearly two miles. It is thought that O'Malley is wanted in Cleveland, Ohio, for the murder of a policeman and that he is one of the men who shot two policemen on Ashland boulevard, Chicago, but a few weeks ago. Chief of Police O'Connor says that he has had a long talk with the man and that he is a dangerous man, ignorant, unprincipled and with no regard for human life. Wilson, who says he is his pal, and who was arrested last week, has turned state's evidence and says that the two did time together at Columbus, Ohio, for robbing a safe.

OWNERSHIP OF THESE BOOKS.

Notwithstanding the ruling of the attorney general that the books sent to the library commission for their inspection belong to the state, George R. Klesberger, formerly president of the St. Cloud normal school and a member of the library board, makes a strong protest against any attempt of the board of control to secure possession of the books. He explains that the ruling of the attorney general should be ignored, as it is based on a misapprehension of the facts. One of these is that the sending of the books to the state is the sole basis for determining their ownership, according to Mr. Klesberger, the publishers send the book to the members of the library commission as personal courtesies to the members.

INSPECTION IS NEEDED
Mississippi Valley Lumberman Urges Importance of Grading in Red Cedar Shingle Trade.
The necessity for a system of inspection of shingles is thus discussed by the Mississippi Valley Lumberman:
Some time ago Minneapolis jobbers of red cedar shingles gave some consideration to a scheme for the inspection of shingles. As expressed at that time, the idea was to establish an inspection bureau along the same lines followed in the organization of the bureau of uniform grades of lumber manufactured in the north. The number of complaints that have recently come to our notice of shingles in bunches and of poorly manufactured shingles, suggests the possibility that the wholesalers would find it to their advantage to carry out the plan suggested. In connection with the various complaints that have recently been heard, there are two undoubted facts. One of these is that there are a good many poorly manufactured shingles. The other is that a good many complaints are registered that are not justifiable. The first of these is probably due less to the willingness of the manufacturers themselves than to carelessness or ignorance of employees. Some of the manufacturing concerns on the west coast employ regular inspectors, but in most of the plants the head packers are the bosses. As these men are paid for the amount of work they can turn out, they are less likely to be particular about excluding poorly manufactured shingles than they would be were their compensation dependent on some other principle.
On the other hand, the number of complaints made by buyers of shingles would very likely be cut down to a large extent, were the complainant possessed of the knowledge that his shingle would be investigated by a competent inspector with authority to make his inspection official. A system of inspection whereby disputes could be referred to a disinterested party would prove a check on the buyer who makes unjust claims, and it would also force the manufacturer to be careful in the manufacture and packing of his shingles.
