CRUTCH-BOUND

The crutch is a poor substitute for legs, and affords a very inconvenient and tiresome mode of locomotion—there is no more pathetic sight than a person slowly and painfully moving along the street supported by these artificial limbs.

When Rheumatism settles in the bones and muscles of the legs, it is safe to predict that the victim will eventually become helpless and crutch-bound. The corrosive, irritating matter that is deposited in the joints and muscles causes the most intense pain, the knees and ankles swell, and when the natural oils and fluids that lubricate these parts are completely destroyed the joints become locked and the muscles drawn and stiff, and crutches a necessity.

The acid poisons that produce rheumatic pains form in the blood, and are distributed through the system, and lodged in the arms, shoulders, hands, back and feet, or other parts of the body—resulting often in total disability. A permanent cure of Rheumatism can be effected only by a complete cleansing of the blood, and no other remedy so surely accomplishes this as S. S. S. It neutralizes the acid effects, purifies and invigorates the stagnant blood, and the gritty particles are washed out or dislodged by the new rich blood, and relief comes to the pain-racked sufferer. S. S. S. leaves no morbid, irritating matter in the blood to reunite and produce another attack, but expels every atom of it from the system. S. S. S. is a purely vegetable remedy, and does not impair the digestion or general health like alkali or potash remedies.

Write for our special free book on Rheumatism, and if any medical advice or other information is wanted, our physicians will gladly furnish it without charge.

EXODUS TO CANADA

J. H. Haslam Thinks It Is Only in the Beginning—His Reasons.

Western Canada Certain to Be Settled by Americans and Developed With Their Capital.

J. H. Haslam, who is probably the largest individual land owner in western Canada, has, perhaps, given more attention to the deeper meaning, the causes and effects, of the present immigration into western Canada and its consequent development, than any other practical man. Mr. Haslam is a Canadian by birth, education and allegiance, but he has always been a friendly student of American history and institutions. After temporarily living for some seven months in St. Paul, the better to manage his land business, he finds that what has transpired in that time tends to confirm the view he entertained when the Canadian land movement first began to attract his attention: "The longer I live in St. Paul," said Mr. Haslam, "the more I am impressed by the essential similarity of the climate of Minnesota and the Dakotas to that of Manitoba and Assiniboia. The more this fact is understood the easier it will be for homeseekers to cross the line. The climate of western Canada is a fine one. The best part of the United States, notwithstanding the variety of production of the south, is the north. Canada has an immense extent of territory that is as good as the northern part of the United States. The winters are cold, it is true, but they in no way detract from the broad truth of the assertion that the climate of northern United States is unlike that of western Canada. A northern man is slow to emigrate to a southern country. So, now that the chance for free or cheap homes is no longer a reality, west is about gone the westward bound tide of northern immigration will be deflected—already is deflected—into western Canada, where cheap and fertile lands are yet to be had for little money.

Americans Will Make It. "These Americans are going to come in such increasing numbers—already they are 30,000 a year—that they will practically make the Canadian west. So far western Canada has been a blank. It is populated almost wholly by Ontario. But the population of Ontario has little surplus. The birthrate is low. Moreover Ontario is developing a new country of its own. Its young men who are not attracted to the United States will stay at home. Neither has Ontario the capital to spare necessary to develop the west. The French Canadians of Quebec are profuse, but when they emigrate, it is to New England or other parts of the United States. They do not go to the land. The young men of the maritime provinces are ambitious to plunge into city life in New England. They have not that longing for broad acres that characterizes such a large portion of your American people.

"On the other hand, the United States has an immense surplus of capital and humanity that ever presses for new fields. These will be found by both in western Canada. Already 25,000,000 acres of the 75,000,000 of the best land in western Canada have been bought by Americans. These American thousands—these increase at the rate of 4,000 a day—will ultimately overrun western Canada. They will be the business men, the lawyers and the doctors, as well as the farmers.

"While there is a sentimental reason for not leaving the republic, there is no sentimental reason against settling in Canada. Its institutions, in all essential respects, are either like or modeled after those of the United States. Municipal government and the school system are American. Political institutions are not just as free. The monarchy of England is a distant and shadowy tradition. Canada is a democracy. The religious atmosphere is the same puritanical ting that distinguishes America.

Effects of American Immigration. "Moreover, the American immigration into western Canada will be so large that the settler will find himself among his own people, and the pressure on local affairs will tend to make government and society more and more like those of the United States. The American does not leave the United States because he is dissatisfied. He loves his country and thinks its institutions the best in the world. He goes into Canada, as he formerly went west merely to better his material condition. Being not dissatisfied or displeased, and being in an environment that is largely American, though under another flag, he will remain an American in fact. For that reason he can not be compared to the European immigrant to the United States, who so quickly becomes Americanized and devoid of attachment to his old country. Where the Americans settle in numbers in any country they Americanize it. The more this becomes true of Canada the less strength will there be in the sentimental reason for not leaving the states. The more it is understood that the European immigrant to the United States, who so quickly becomes Americanized and devoid of attachment to his old country. Where the Americans settle in numbers in any country they Americanize it. The more this becomes true of Canada the less strength will there be in the sentimental reason for not leaving the states.

"All of this means, of course, better relations between the United States and Canada and the gradual reduction of the international boundary as a barrier to the free interplay of the forces of industry, commerce and progress on the North American continent."

CALLED TO PARK AVENUE

Congregationalists Invite Rev. Geo. S. Rollins of Davenport, Iowa, to Become Their Pastor.

Park Avenue Congregational church has called to the vacant pastorate Rev. George S. Rollins, now pastor of the Edwards Congregational church, Davenport, Iowa. The action was taken following the regular prayer meeting last night. The society will meet next Thursday to ratify the action. It is probable that Mr. Rollins will accept, and if so that he will begin work in November.

Since Rev. C. F. Swift removed to the east in July, the pastoral committee, Chairman Harlan P. Roberts, Secretary F. H. Carlton, S. H. Towler, J. B. Sutherland, W. D. Gregory, H. L. Robinson and C. L. Sawyer, has been ardently engaged in seeking a pastor.

The meeting was moderated by Rev. Dr. Frank P. Woodbury of New York, secretary of the American Missionary Association, pastor of the Park Avenue church two years prior to 1890, during whose ministrations the church edifice was built. Rev. George S. Rollins is 38 years old. He was born at Canterbury, N. H., graduated from Williams college, spent a year at the theological seminary, Bangor, Me., worked three years in North Carolina at Wilmington for the American Missionary Society, went to the Chicago Theological seminary and completed his course, and in 1894 became pastor of the Edwards church.

The committee was much pleased with the introduction of Mr. Rollins' work at Davenport. It was found that he has a fine musical taste, is a really fine orator, is conducting a successful work, is very energetic and devoted to his duties, has a great many attractive qualities, has a pleasant bearing and is exceedingly tactful. The sermon preached was very helpful, a logical and forceful address. His adaptability to different conditions was shown in his success among southern people, with whom, according to Dr. Woodbury, he did a lasting work.

Rev. Mr. Rollins has a wife, a young son and daughter.

A Clever Newsboy. A Philadelphia newsboy whose face had become familiar to those who pass his corner recently disappeared and his absence from the accustomed post brought forth a number of inquiries. To their surprise, his patrons learned that he had been saving money to study architecture evenings and had developed such an aptitude for the profession that he was taken into the office of one of the largest firms in the city. Development of the mind is recognized as a necessity for success, but development of the body is generally not taken into consideration.
