Drowned on the Way Home—R. J. Miller, formerly of Minneapolis, recently of Grand Forks, Yukon territory, was drowned while on his way home a few days ago. Mr. Miller was sleeping in a deck chair and fell overboard.

Coming to Minneapolis—The Weum-Wait wholesale notion house, which probably came from Fargo to Minneapolis, it was announced after the fire the company would remove to Minneapolis, more recently a promise was made the commercial club was shown the last and apparently the final statement indicates the firm will come to the flour city.

Minne a Favorite.—Money has been remarkably "tight" of late in eastern cities, says T. A. Jamieson, real estate agent, who has just returned from New York. "No money can be borrowed in the east for less than 6 1/2 per cent. Out here the conditions are much better. And by the way, Minneapolis is in great repute among the eastern investors. A short time ago one of my customers in the east asked me to put out some money for him. I wrote from my St. Paul office that I could get him some good money there. But he replied emphatically that he didn't want anything in that town he wanted it in Minneapolis."

NUMBER 75
"Have travelled from Maine to California since 1882 doing nothing but buying advertising space in newspapers. But I leave it posted in the newspapers to advertise in which will make me money. The reason my preparation is successful is because I advertise only in papers that I know the value of from years of experience and there is not a newspaper in these United States that has any standing as a first-class paper but what I have advertised in. I know the value of the Minneapolis Journal one of the very best advertising mediums in the United States and I know whereof I speak."
If you have any doubts as to the value of the Journal as an advertising medium the original of the above will be shown you if you will kindly call on manager of advertising department.

TAX AMENDMENT IS O. K.'D

Minneapolis Voters Go Overwhelmingly on Record as Favoring the Revised Measure.

Minneapolis at least did not accept the campaign sophistries of the democrats to the effect that the gross earnings amendment should be defeated because it reduced railroad rates. The voters passed on the question, but the amendment was approved, 17,652 to 1,274, as follows:

SCHOOL BONDS APPROVED

They Receive Nearly 2,000 Votes More Than Actually Necessary to Pass.

The school bonds have been passed with nearly 21,000 votes to spare. It was necessary that they should receive two-thirds of the vote cast at the election. For the leading two candidates for mayor there were cast 34,667 votes. Thus it was necessary for the bonds to receive 23,044 votes. As a matter of fact they received 24,885. The vote stood thus:

JAS. G. HAYNES IS THE NEXT MAYOR

He Defeats Ald. Fred M. Powers by a Majority of Several Thousand.

Powers Was Heavily Cut Down Town and His Labor Strength Didn't Materialize.

James C. Haynes, who served in the city council and managed to retain the respect of his constituents, will be the next mayor of Minneapolis. Fred M. Powers, the eighth ward democrat, failed to arrive. This contest was one of the first in which the result became apparent. It was plain from the start as the returns began to come in, that Powers was being fended off in the down-town wards, and was also falling to carry certain precincts where he was banking upon his supposed pull with the labor element. Minneapolis is traditionally uncertain upon the majority proposition. Whether this is mere fickleness or fine discrimination depends altogether upon the point of view. However that may be, the result was not surprising. Haynes was not afraid to express his preferences in city affairs, even at the cost of a split ticket.

Haynes' majority is about the same size as the so-called "flopping vote" of the city. It is noticeable that his inroads in the eighth ward Powers' home, were much greater than those of Powers into the second ward, where Haynes resides. The figures, practically complete, are as follows:

Table showing Election Results by ward: First 1,142, Second 1,142, Third 1,142, Fourth 1,142, Fifth 1,142, Sixth 1,142, Seventh 1,142, Eighth 1,142, Ninth 1,142, Tenth 1,142, Eleventh 1,142, Twelfth 1,142, Thirteenth 1,142.

NO CHANGE IN POLICY

Present Administration Will Push Its Plans as Vigorously as Before.

Notwithstanding the fact that the term of the present mayor and of E. F. Waite as superintendent of police is now limited to two months, the policy of the administration will not be changed in the least. The ideas of the present government will be carried out to the letter until Jan. 5, when the reins of government will be turned over to Mr. Haynes.

A VERY QUIET ELECTION

Enforcement of Saloon Closing Law Given Credit for the Excellent Order.

Yesterday is said to have been the quietest election day seen in Minneapolis since the city was a small village, and the fact is said to be attributable to the closing of all the saloons in the city under the new law. From the time the polls opened in the morning until the last straggler returned to his home at a late hour this morning, not a single complaint of disorderly conduct was received by the police. His is a record never before approached in this city.

JOY IN TWO CAMPS HENNEPIN'S DELEGATION

Republicans at Headquarters Rejoice at the Splendid Victory of Gov. Van Sant.

Democrats Wax Enthusiastic Over the Successes of Messrs. Lind and Haynes.

George L. Matchan, chairman of the Hennepin republican committee, was at republican headquarters all morning talking about the battle and reflecting congratulatory upon his party's victory. He was elated over the returns in Hennepin county, where he had charge of the campaign. "It was a grand victory," said Mr. Matchan, "and while we have to regret that Powers and Fletcher were defeated, yet the showing they both in retreating yesterday gives us reason to rejoice. There was a good vote and the entire county ticket is elected and with good minorities. I have the ticket, Van Sant made good gains in Hennepin county and nearly every precinct in the county showed that he had gained strength since the campaign two years ago. This was not a single thing, however, to interfere with his campaign and his vote was practically what I expected it to be."

Democratic Rejoicing. Elijah Barton, chairman of the Hennepin county democratic campaign committee, says, "We are highly gratified at the election of J. C. Haynes and John Lind; and at the reduction of the normal republican majority in the county by nearly 3,000 votes. Ed Conroy has made an excellent run for sheriff and may be elected. The candidates on our city and county tickets were very loyal and many of them made a hard personal fight. I am sorry that we were not able to elect them all. They were loyal to the committee and deserved success. They had nothing like the amount of money the opposition used there would have been no question about our having elected the entire ticket. While the republican party had a large campaign fund it is a fact that we were hampered all the time by lack of funds. I want to express my appreciation of the excellent work done by all members of the committee and by democrats generally. The party workers stood by us loyally, and there were no dissensions."

Mr. Fletcher Admits Defeat. Congressman Loren Fletcher was seen at his home this afternoon and asked for a statement. He said that while there was probably no doubt that he had been defeated, he did not care to make a statement until he had an opportunity to study the returns in detail.

Congressman-elect Lind estimates his majority at 2,000. "I feel that my election was a magnificent victory and attributable to the issues of the district and the faith and loyalty of all members of the committee and by democrats generally. The party workers stood by us loyally, and there were no dissensions."

DREGERS SCARE HURT HIM NOT

It Only Served to Make His Majority Over Conroy That Much Larger.

This Contest About the Only One on County Ticket—Republicans Re-elected.

There was supposed to be a lively struggle for the office of sheriff, but J. W. Dregger, enjoying the advantage of incumbency, managed to pull away from Ed Conroy by a very comfortable margin. It was not denied that Mr. Dregger and his friends were somewhat alarmed over the magnitude which Mr. Conroy's boom seemed to be assuming and the election in the fifth ward of the sheriff's workers adopted heroic measures to give their candidate prominence and to offset the vigorous work of his opponent. This, coupled with the fact that Mr. Dregger's record in office has been clean, had the desired effect, as the figures show.

SANG A NEW SONG

State Song Heard for First Time at Journal Entertainment Last Evening.

The principal gathering to listen to election returns last night was at the exposition building. A very interesting vaudeville program filled the intervals between the significant fragments of election news and kept the audience agreeably diverted throughout the evening. The program, between 9:00 and 4:00, most of whom arrived before 9 o'clock and were still in their seats after 12. The building was packed and after 1 o'clock the audience by the audience of the arrangements for its comfort, amusement and political enlightenment demonstrated the public appreciation of the efforts of the committee.

The program opened with several popular selections by the Journal Newsboys' band, whose red-coated members were greeted with hearty applause as they lined up on the great stage. Their snappy, spirited music had a great effect and started the evening gayly. The boys appeared at intervals through the evening, playing a patriotic medley, selections from "Dixie" and other popular tunes. The "Burghmaster" and "Our Director," "Sixth Battalion," "Merrymakers," and others.

The election returns were thrown on a screen and the reception indicated a strong interest in the results. The applause showed less political bias than a tendency to get on the band wagon and cheer the victors. The portraits of Roosevelt, Van Sant and Haynes were the chief interest, while impartial interest was expressed in the reception of the program.

The program was given in continuous fashion without a single wait from beginning to end. The music was most enjoyable, the first being wholly musical; the second, vaudeville; and the third, athletic. Several of the turns were given by professionalists. The local amateur band, the first being wholly musical; the second, vaudeville; and the third, athletic.
