

In Social Circles THE HOSTESS' BALL

It Is to Be the Next Brilliant Event on the Social Calendar.

Dark Secrecy Shrouds the Elaborate Plan of Decoration for the Occasion.

The social calendar is crowded with receptions, teas, card parties and luncheons next week, and all of the pretty affairs seem to center around the Hostess' ball, the crowning social event of the year, which will be given Friday evening in the West hotel. There is always so much pleasant anticipation in regard to the ball, for it is sure to present some novel effect in the way of decoration and appointments. One year the guests were received in far-away Japan, with its cherry blossoms, and another season they gathered in the stately gardens of a Pompeian residence. Just what period will be represented this year is a profound secret from every one but the women on the committee of decoration. Misses T. G. Winter, Aileen Smith, Edna H. Moulton; but everybody knows that it will be correct in every detail. The three young women, debutantes of the year, who will receive with the hostesses, are Misses Margaret Wess, Susie Christian and Marjorie Northrup.

Marcus Simpson of Minneapolis, a brother-in-law of the bridegroom, assisted by Rev. Charles L. Fardoe, Mrs. Arthur E. Turner, the bride's cousin, was matron of honor and the flower girls were Misses Elizabeth Allen Cook and Jane Daily Cook, cousins and sister of the bride. The ushers were William L. Trowbridge and Arthur B. Turner and Ralph E. Roschlaub of New York was best man. The bride was given in marriage by her father. Owing to a recent death in the family, the arrangements and appointments were characterized by an air of extreme simplicity and only the immediate relatives were present. A small reception was held at the home of the bride's uncle, George Dillwyn Cook.

Mr. Carman was assistant rector of Catesman church for several years and now has a parish in Denver, Col.

Miss Madeleine Liggett, a Minneapolis Girl, Makes Brilliant Beginning for Stage Career.

A Promising Actress

Miss Madeleine Liggett, a Minneapolis Girl, Makes Brilliant Beginning for Stage Career.

Miss Madeleine Liggett, the well known young society lady of this city, who within the past year adopted the stage as a profession, met with decided success last week at the Lyceum theater where she appeared as a member of the Ferris Stock company in the production of "The Two Orphans." Miss Liggett was cast in the role of the Countess de Linieres, a part in which she truly surprised her many friends by her decidedly clever work.

Her talented efforts the latter part of the summer with the Everett Stock company will be remembered. With that organization she appeared with distinct success in such important roles as Emily Radburn in "In Mizouri" and Irene in "Sapho."

Amateur theatricals first brought Miss Liggett into prominence in dramatic affairs, first in high school productions and later she appeared at the University of Minnesota, essaying the leading parts in the dramatic club's entertainments. In "The School of Scandal," one of the plays produced, she assumed the famous role of Lady Teazle, and her performance was much admired for its grace, vivacity and charming interpretation. The tempestuous heroine of Evelyn Greenleaf Sutherland's "The Barricade" as portrayed by Miss Liggett, was voted a triumph for the young actress. Miss Liggett was a pupil in dramatic work of Miss Grace B. Whittrige of St. Paul and last winter went to New York, where she spent a season under the tutelage of F. F. Mackey, a veteran actor and admittedly one of the finest teachers in America.

Miss Liggett is the daughter of William M. Liggett, dean of the agricultural college of the University of Minnesota. She has a large circle of friends in both cities. Her work with the Ferris Stock company in "The Two Orphans" recently met with much favorable comment and her interpretation of the difficult role of the countess was of the same high order. Miss Liggett is a handsome young woman, of splendid physique, and her education has been most complete. The strong interest she has shown in stage work and the marked success she has met with make consistent the prophecy of a brilliant future in her chosen profession. Her work will be watched with much interest by her many friends and admirers.

Misses Cole, Brazeo, Brown, Messrs. John Brimmer, Steve Paluk, Addy Brown, Matthewson and Lusk and Miss Caplin were the winners of a bridge and dancing were the amusements, and about eighty young people were present.

Miss Maye Atkinson, a bride of next week, was the guest of honor at a party shower which was given Wednesday evening by Miss Anna Gustafson of Snelling avenue. Chrysanthemums and roses brightened the room. Mrs. Atkinson, Weeks and Isabella Shaffer assisted the hostess. There were thirty guests.

Miss G. Woodard, Zetta Williams and Belle Erickson gave a party at the home of Miss Williams on Cedar avenue, for Miss Bessie Emmons. The gifts were brought in an express cart by little Edna Olson. Autumn leaves brightened the parlor and the dining-room was in white. Covers were laid for twenty-five. Music and recitations were the amusements. Miss Myrtle Thompson gave a granite shower for Miss Emmons on Thursday afternoon.

Mrs. S. D. Hamilton of 401 Second avenue SE entertained informally last evening in honor of her sister, Mrs. N. C. Beering of Osage, Iowa. Six hand-chose was played and a light supper was served after the game. The decorations were in maroon and gold chrysanthemums.

A pleasant affair of last evening was the reception given by the people of the Plymouth church in honor of Rev. and Mrs. L. N. Hallock. The parlors were decorated with flowers and palms. About 300 guests were present, and as they arrived the older people were received upstairs by the members of the prudential committee with their wives, Messrs and Mrs. James Crays, Harrington, Beard, Griffith, Nelson, Clark, C. M. Cushman, George H. Rust, C. R. Lyman, E. F. Waite, C. H. North, C. M. Shearer, W. F. Black, D. C. Bell, assisted by Mesdames W. S. Benton, B. C. Benton, D. P. Jones and C. H. Woods.

The younger people gathered downstairs, where they were welcomed by Messrs. and Mrs. Hallock, F. W. Lyman, H. H. Hunt, Frank Nye, Bass and Miss Lyman. After an hour of informal sociability the two groups assembled in the large parlor and Dr. Hallock gave a short address and Mr. Forsell sang, "Sweet Catherine Lyman, Palmer, Rust, Boyer, Cushman and Mabel Lyman served frappe.

Rev. and Mrs. George S. Rollins were the guests of honor at a pleasant reception given last evening by the people of Park Avenue Congregational church. The church parlors were transformed into reception rooms with oriental rugs and hangings and palms and yellow chrysanthemums added to the charming effect. Mr. and Mrs. Rollins were assisted in receiving by Messrs. and Mrs. William H. Hooker, W. D. Gregory, O. B. King, F. H. Carleton, L. B. Wood, Sheldon, Gamble and S. H. Towler. A program of songs was given by Mrs. Alice Adams, Fred and Longfellow, R. S. Martin and J. C. Hutchinson had charge of the arrangements, with Mrs. H. Parsons and the women of the Ladies' Aid society. Misses W. R. Dextor assisted by a group of young women presided in the dining-room, which was also decked with white and yellow chrysanthemums.

The Noble Club gave a card party and dance last evening in the Malcolm academy, Twenty-fourth street and Fifth avenue. The party was very enjoyable and successful in spite of bad weather. The club members' young men, but there were enough invited guests to make a company of about forty couples. Music was furnished by Mr. Ponsonby and frappe was served. The officers of the club are Rupert E. Clark, president; William C. Doherty, secretary; Harry J. Camp, secretary; Abbott Kuterling, treasurer.

The pupils of D room of the Longfellow school gave a very pleasant surprise to their teacher, Miss Christensen, at Newark, N. J., and New York city, in capturing one of the most daring green goods gangs ever arrested in this country.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Mering of 11 W. Thirty-fourth street entertaining the members of the Longfellow school club at Newark, N. J., last week. Duryea is a postoffice inspector and with others succeeded in capturing one of the most daring green goods gangs ever arrested in this country.

The program of twelve numbers was opened by the playing of the time-honored, if somewhat time-worn, overture from "William Tell" by Appletton's orchestra of twenty-five pieces. Its director, J. J. Appletton, is a good leader and the orchestra itself contains a number of excellent players. The rendition of the overture demonstrated that with sufficient practice the orchestra will occupy a prominent place among the musical organizations of the city.

There were a number of compositions given by the large mixed chorus of perhaps 250 voices under the fine direction of Hjalmar Nilsson. The setting arrangements, however, were not good and the male voices could scarcely be heard. The ladies' voices were fresh and sweet, and they sang with remarkable attention to the director. A number of the choruses were taken from the works of Wagner. Those that were given seemed to be somewhat lacking in melodic invention with the possible exception of the "March" by Wagner, which was bright and inspiring.

The best choral work of the evening was done by the Orpheus singing society, under the direction of Charles Stenson, the selection being "Linnaan," by W. Bergh. The baritone solo by Knute Ekman in this number was especially good. An encore of the choruses of the program were given under the direction of Albin E. Ogren.

The soloists of the evening were Mme. Ragala, soprano, and Joel Mossberg, baritone. Mme. Ragala was suffering from a cold, but sang with good effect, and after her three solo numbers was called upon to sing "The Three Lovers." Her voice is a light but sweet operatic soprano and is especially effective in coloratura. Mr. Mossberg sang "The Three Lovers" and is especially impressive in coloratura. His solo number was an aria from Verdi's "Sticilian Vespers," and in response to an encore he sang the "Foreword Song" from "Carmen," with interesting accompaniment. The program closed with "America," in which the audience joined.

RETURN SEED POTATOES Vacant Lot Gardeners in Omaha Harvest Bountiful Crops.

The reports on vacant lot cultivation directed by the civic department of the Omaha Woman's club is very gratifying. The plan has been successful not only in providing families with potatoes and vegetables for use during the entire year, but has been a means of doing away with unsightly weeds and vacant lots. The gardeners are expected to turn over to the committee the products of one row of potatoes in return for the seed furnished them and up to date 36 of the 155 families provided with seed have sent to the committee 50 bushels of nice, large potatoes, and the committee had only supplied 54 bushels. A patch was cultivated at the expense of the committee and this yielded 100 bushels and the committee has been able to turn over to the county 150 bushels.
