BATHS ARE ASSURED

The Special Committee of the Council Votes to Accept Mr. Akeley's Offer.

Present Plans Provide for Equipment of Basement and First Floor of Old City Hall.

Action taken by the city council's special bath committee practically insures the establishment in Minneapolis of a public bathhouse and natatorium. The health commissioner's report, however, will be on a vote, and time may be counted on to evolve something better.

There has at no time been any decided opposition among the aldermen to the establishment of public baths, but there has been some hesitancy about appropriating about $30,000 for the purpose. The health commissioner's plan is still available, and yesterday the special council committee tentatively voted to recommend to the city council that the offer be accepted.

To remodel the old city hall into a complete bathhouse, natatorium and gymnasium will cost $28,000, according to the plans prepared by City Engineer G. W. Sublette. The health commissioner is satisfied with the plans and has said so.

At yesterday's meeting Mr. Sublette was asked what it would cost if the basement and first floor were remodeled and equipped according to his plans. He said that the expense would be about $8,000. The answer pleased the aldermen who were present, and the city engineer was directed to prepare an exact estimate on this part of the work.

Health Commissioner Hall is well satisfied, in fact he is jubilant and enthusiastic. "This insures the establishment of a bath. There ought to be a gymnasium and so on, but we will have a beginning, and the public will be benefited. It will prove a success, and when the great advantages are made apparent there will be no difficulty in securing the necessary funds for completing the work."

It is considered that the Akeley natatorium, or probably the Akeley gymnasium, for that is what the institution will eventually develop into.

A NEW LAKE PARK HOTEL

The Famous Hostelry at Minnetonka Is Being Practically Built Over.

Work upon Lake Park hotel, Minnetonka, is progressing rapidly and by spring the old house will be replaced by a new and modern hotel, the finest at the lake. The old porches are being enlarged and screened in; new balconies are being built; a new structure, put in and extensive improvements are under way in the interior. In addition, the grounds will receive careful attention at the hands of a landscape gardener who knows his business. New roads, new lawns and new buildings are being constructed; new roads laid out and the spacious lawns put in first-class condition.

The old hotel was built in 1870. L. S. Buffington being the architect. Mr. Buffington has charge of the remodeling, and his plans for the interior include elaborate decorations of the dining-room, as well as improved accommodations above stairs. Family suites will be arranged for and nothing will be left undone to make Lake Park the most comfortable hostelry around the lake. The hotel will be painted white, with a red roof.

The improvements are being made by Thomas Lowry, who recently bought the interior of the hotel, and is now the sole proprietor of the house. He will spend about $38,000 in betterments before the lake season opens.

SPIRITUAL THINGS

Discussed at Open Meeting of Retreat of Minnesota Congregational Ministers.

The public meeting held last evening at Plymouth church as part of the program of the two days of retreat, the Congregational ministers of the state, was not largely attended by laymen. Evidently the weather kept many away, and the ministers put in an evening of quiet reflection. Rev. J. E. Smith presided and Rev. W. A. Warren of Lake City led the devotional. Rev. Charles E. Burton of Lyndale church said materialistic motives were the motive to-day, and that ministers of the gospel should work with great zeal. He said there was not an individual who was not afflicted with the disease called sin, a disease infinitely more destructive than the plague, and the object of the retreat was to gather new energy and new means for obviating the spiritual sickness of the world.

Rev. Holmes of Lowry Hill church dwelt in his address, on the glories that are to come. Most people, he said, were too comfortably situated to spend time in dwelling on and gathering inspiration from the thought of a future life. Yet the splendors of earth were but the shadows of the things to come. Some of the attending ministers expressed the belief that it was a mistake to exclude the public from the meetings.

The following ministers were: Rev. Messrs. W. C. A. Waller, Little Falls; W. B. Bossard, Dodge Center; E. S. Barnes, Anoka, and W. A. Warren, Lake City.

MATERNITY HOSPITAL

Mrs. Russell, chairman of the nursery committee, said there was much need of clothing for the babies, especially dresses and skirts.

In her report for this year Mrs. Smith, the secretary, said that the public had been most generous, and special thanks were due the Needlewomen's guild, the Hebrew Ladies' Benevolent society had presented their annual offering of $5. Mrs. Boerner and Mrs. Gooch, religious workers, gave encouraging accounts of the work of evangelization. Dr. Ripley's report as physician, stated that 101 women and 87 babies had been cared for during the year. Twenty-six children had been adopted.

The following officers were elected: Mrs. W. C. A. Waller, president; Mrs. E. R. Smith, secretary; Mrs. W. E. Lawrence; treasurer. Mrs. G. M. Russell.

ROUTERS COME HOME

They Praise for the Boys of the Team.

Think Score Not True Indication of Relative Strength of the Two Elevens.

With colors still flying, the advance guard of returning football routers from Ann Arbor arrived in Minneapolis yesterday and many got in on this morning's train. The routers were the Western and Wisconsin Central routers. The majority of the Minnesota adherents are not expected back until Monday, as their tickets are good until that time. Some, however, are expected to arrive in advance of the stop-over privilege to remain a day in Chicago. The band came in over the Great Western road this morning. Rogers and Knott were the only members of the team who could be located. They arrived on the North-Western. The others were expected on the evening train to-day.

Every one interviewed had nothing but words of praise for the Minnesota team. It is generally felt that the score was higher than it should have been on straight football, but all agree that Minnesota was fully beaten. The people of Ann Arbor and the Michigan routers were warmly complimented on the sportsmanlike manner in which they treated the routers who had journeyed more than 700 miles to see their team defeated. It was conceded by the Michigansiders that the game that Minnesota was clearly the better of. The routers were outplayed though they were, Minnesota had put up a great exhibition of the game.

"I think myself that the score should have been 12 to 6," said C. S. Brackett, Sweeley router who has journeyed more than 1200 miles to see his team. "I was disappointed that Minnesota was not placed under ordinary circumstances had he tried it fifty times. The ball was caught at such an angle from the side that it was impossible for the Michigan routers, dreamed that the goal could be kicked. Sweeley has a great bump of location, but there was certainly a lot of material in the Michigan routers, and a desperate game and making big plays through Michigan's line before the goal from placement. Our boys were spurred on by having scored themselves, but when they saw the Michigan routers' defense, they were much closer to the goal than the score indicates."

Bliss a Bit Partial

Colonel Frank Joyce is inclined to think that Bliss was unfair in his decisions and that he gave Michigan the best of it, although that would have made no difference in the outcome of the game. He insists that the Michigan men repeatedly played on the side, but that they were never penalized for so doing. Bliss' judgment was repeatedly called to that fact.

"As Bliss coached the Michigan team for a week before the Wisconsin game," said Colonel Joyce, "he should have had a good grace to refuse to serve in that capacity. He demands absolute impartiality from the two teams. Minnesota played as well as Michigan, but all things considered, the Michigan team conclusively demonstrated its superiority. We led in some departments of the game, but their all-round play was too much for us."

One Chance to Root.

"We had one good chance to root after Flynn made that touchdown and Knott kicked goal. Maybe we didn't take advantage of it. It cheered the boys up and they were in good luck for the Minnesota game seemed imminent; but they didn't get through our line for long runs."

The long special on the Great Western road was in good luck for the Michigan team, the last section arriving just before the battle commenced.

Part of the Minnesota band had already arrived and were in good luck for the Michigan team, the last section arriving just before the battle commenced.

"HUNCHES" WERE CROSSED

Minnesota's Mascot Put the Score at 6 to 0 for Gophers.

The cards were all wrong with the Minnesota football team in its game with Michigan. Even the fact that Kendall Graham, a 25-year-old enthusiast who divides honors with "Knipe" the mascot, failed to turn the tide of battle Minnesota's way.

One of the niceties with which Kendall Graham, the mascot, was equipped, was a hat with other teams, Manger M. J. Luby was quick to see the advantage of keeping Kendall in close touch with the team. Having done so, he was in good luck for the team to mount a comeback, Mich. several days before the game, with the understanding that he was to devote his entire energies to keeping the good odds away from the gopher combination.

Kendall says he exhausted all of his art to compass Michigan's defeat and that he even offered $25,000 to the Michigan team to "knipe" in the attempt to arrange a satisfactory finish of the game.

"It just came to me that we would win," he said. He lost to lose to account for the outcome, and his only excuse is that there must have been something the matter with the "dope" or that the Michigan team was in good luck for the transmission of wireless hunches.

Kendall had a good time anyway, and he and "Knipe" attracted almost as much attention at the game as the Michigan team. The staff photographer of the Detroit Free Press got a good snap shot at them and reproduced it in the next day's issue.

MRS. SEWALL AT THE FARM

Famous Club Woman Visits State Agricultural School at St. Anthony Park.

Mrs. May Wright Sewall, the famous club woman who is now the president of the International Council of Women, left to-day for her home in Indianapolis after a brief visit to her family. As her stay was very short she gave her time wholly to her relatives and a few close friends.

Yesterday, however, she went to St. Anthony Park to visit her friend, Mrs. Virginia C. Meredith, preceptress of the State Agricultural School, and of inspecting the work of the school, especially the work of the industrial department, which has been introduced recently by Mrs. Sewall into her classical school for girls and she is very much interested in the work of the school. The arrangements and the results at the Minnesota Institute aroused her admiration. Mrs. Sewall made a short speech in chapel, touching briefly upon the work of the International Council. She was invited to be a guest of honor this afternoon at the annual reception of the Teachers' Club, but was obliged to decline.

"The Shams of Society"—"The Shams of Society" will be the subject of the lecture to be delivered at the Y. M. C. A. hall at 10:30 p. m. to-morrow evening. The lecturer, Mr. Bartlett. The lecturer, which has received favorable press comment from all parts of the country, is a satire on the prevailing customs of some phases of society. Shibley's orchestra will furnish the musical program, which begins at 8:15.

HIGH ROLLER PIANO

It Did Surprising Stunts on Board Car Bearing Minnesotans to Ann Arbor.

Played Football With Several Derbys and Added Generally to Trip's Gaiety.

An acrobatic piano furnished plenty of excitement and no little amusement for passengers on the private car, Minneapolis, which brought up the rear end of the special train to Ann Arbor. The piano, which was supposed to be "city bred and gentle" and was expected to remain quietly in its corner when there was no demand for music, became restless in timing and broke away from its moorings. C. S. Brackett, who was "instrumental" in taking the piano along, hadn't thought to remove its rollers so that it would be sure to keep its place. As a result, he is now convinced of the total depravity of inanimate objects.

The car is lighter than those usually placed at the end of a train, and when the train began to hit the high spots at an ever increasing rate of speed, everything on board that was not nailed down began to move this way and that. One of the things that spilled down was the piano. Having wheels, it had a decided advantage over anything else on the train. It got a start when the train struck the down grade beyond St. Paul, and kept moving from that time on until it was finally captured by a man who was manageable as a mad elephant on a page or a runaway horse. The only historical parallel that the imperilled travelers could call to mind was the story of Hugo's stirring description in "Ninety-Two" of a cannon which broke loose on shipboard and terrorized the prisoners on the deck. The piano was a mad career was stopped, but not before it had demolished almost everything in its path, and had nearly stove a hole in the side of the boat.

When the train whizzed around a bend the piano got an impetus which sent it flying to the other side of the car in a zig-zag flight. The piano was forced all the way to the other end of the car, where they were forced to side step in a lively manner to get out of the way.

Best Strong's piano player, who knows something about rushing tactics, finally volunteered to stay the progress of the piano. Before he could map out a plan of battle the piano had crawled into a corner, having swung broadside upon the angle. Mr. Brackett refused to let the piano have a chance to get up to climb aboard and was forced to defend it until it came to another stop. Then he went back to his stronghold. With the aid of another volunteer Mr. Strong finally managed to get the piano off the car. After a hard struggle they at length tied it securely down and peace reigned again.

The piano developed a grim sense of humor and sprang out of its corner at least one member of the party did not concede to be a laughing matter. When the men entered the car, the piano came handy as he had risked his neck with silk hats and hard hats while soft hats were substituted for the trip.

When one of the passengers looked for the piano, he was told that it had been taken to the Pullman Hotel. A man who had been seen in the Pullman Hotel, but who had not been seen in the Pullman Hotel, was taken to the Pullman Hotel. A man who had been seen in the Pullman Hotel, but who had not been seen in the Pullman Hotel, was taken to the Pullman Hotel.

"Here's your hat," said Mr. Levings with great glee. "Ha! ha! ha!"

"No 'tain't, either," he added lugubriously, on closer examination. "Blamed if it isn't mine!"

Then the laugh was on Mr. Levings. Another hat was nowhere to be found. Some one suggested that, having pedaled the piano man have kicked it out of the car. Mr. Levings visited a hatter's before he saw the game.

Among those on board were W. H. Shull, C. M. Gillette, W. H. Levings, A. W. Strong, C. S. Brackett, "Hot" Thomas and Lucian Swift.

The piano's maneuvers only added to the jolly, and all aboard say that they thoroughly enjoyed the trip in spite of the piano's antics. The piano was taken to Detroit, where they took in the theaters Thursday evening.

A VALUED INSTRUCTOR

John C. Billings' Death is Keenly Felt by His Pupils.

He came to Minneapolis five years ago on account of his health. For four years instructor in manual training at the East Side high school. He is widely known in the department here. Fellow teachers and students alike express their keen sense of loss in his premature death. Between the boys of his classes and Mr. Billings there existed an unusually strong feeling of friendship, and the unremitting attempts of his students to lighten the burden of his illness was one of the last sources of pleasure to him.

Mr. Billings was just 31 years old. He had been married three years and leaves a widow, Adelaide Billings. He was a nephew of Mr. and Mrs. Hazen E. Burton of Deephaven, Lake Minnetonka. The interment will take place in Cambridgeport, Mass., next Sunday.

FINIS OF THE G. L. CASE

End of Long-Draw-Out Receivership Likely to Be Reached Very Soon Now.

Rome G. Brown, John B. Atwater and Charles S. Albert, attorneys for the Minneapolis Trust company in the Guaranty Loan receivership and matters growing out of it, appeared before the full bench this morning and submitted the company's report as trustee of the so-called Menage collateral. This report was filed some time ago, and its contents were published then.

Although the matter was not formally before the court, Captain F. B. Hart, representing a New England bank, asked that the company be required to submit its final report as receiver of the Guaranty Loan corporation. He stated that no report had been made since 1888, and argued that the creditors were justified in demanding one at this time. Mr. Brown explained that matters had been delayed in the morning Judge Simpson said that the receiver's report, should one be made, would be practically a duplicate of the statement filed four years ago. Nothing of any importance, he said, had been done in the meantime. Judge Simpson said he thought the estate should be wound up as speedily as possible, although no order was made, the receiver will probably prepare a report when the case is again called for hearing, next Saturday.

TRYING TO GET LAND BACK

A Suit Involving St. Louis Park Trolley

A suit has been begun by the Edinburg North American Investment company against the village of West Minneapolis and the Minneapolis Land and Investment company to compel the restoration of a certain tract of land at Hopkinton now used as a right of way by the defendant company, which operates a trolley line between St. Louis Park and Hopkinton. Plaintiff says the land was deeded to the village for use as a public highway, but that the street has never been graded and is used only by the street car company. This, it is alleged, constitutes a violation of the agreement and renders the transfer to the village void. The court is asked to declare the deed of no effect and to compel the company to remove its tracks and poles. Damages are placed at $2,500.

THE INTERSTATE SHOOT

The National Guard Association Will Pass Upon it at the Annual Meeting.

To hold or not to hold an interstate rifle contest next year is the most important question to come before the annual meeting of the Minnesota National Guard association at the capitol building, St. Paul, Dec. 27. Illinois won the Washington trophy eleven years ago and has held it since. The intention now is to get every northwestern state to enter the contest and wrest the honor from the prairie state. Action will also be taken on the proposition to ask the legislature to make an appropriation for the expenses of the annual encampment at Lake City.

SEEK HIS REMOVAL

The U. S. Commissioner at Koochiching on the Defensive.

The removal of Louis Ogard from his office of United States commissioner at Koochiching, Itasca county, this state, is sought in a petition on which arguments were based to-day by Judge Lochren in the United States district court. The petition alleges that Commissioner Ogard is both incompetent and unfaithful. In his answer he meets the specific charges.

WHY IS IT

that many men in Minneapolis are never followed by life insurance agents? Be the agent ever so persistent he does not urge THEM. They are poor risks. Most of them have been good risks sometime and yet are without sufficient insurance. Why is it? They did not decide not to take insurance, for (with an occasional exception) the man of today has some conception of his natural responsibility. They simply put off insuring, and they put it off too long. If you have not the amount or kind of insurance you need, would it not be wise to attend to the matter now? You have to-day—no one is sure of to-morrow.

The old STATE MUTUAL LIFE OF WORCESTER, MASS., would like to submit you a proposition. The State Mutual has and writes more business in Massachusetts than any other Massachusetts company, and it is generally conceded that the Massachusetts insurance law is the best in the United States. Your age and address to any of the undersigned will bring a specimen policy with full particulars.
