

In Social Circles THE HUNTERS' BALL

A Novel and Pretty Social Entertainment Given at the University Armory.

The Visit of the Yale Student Musicians Will Add to Holiday Week Gaity.

The university armory presented a most attractive appearance last evening when decorated for the hunters' ball which was given by the young women of the physical culture department. The only colors used were red, green and white and they produced a most brilliant effect. A canopy of white hunting hung from the rafters and draped the walls. From the canopy hung great red shaded lights and the white which draped the balcony railing was caught with red knots. The stage was banked with pine trees and a hedge of the green ran between the ball room and the wings, which were transformed into pretty reception rooms with the artistic use of oriental rugs, and red and white draped cozy corners. Tall white pedestals held branching palms on either side.

The patronesses, Misses, Cyrus Northrop, Edward C. Gale, George Partridge, A. B. Jackson, C. B. Elliott, Charles Hunter, Lucian Colby, J. B. Gillilan, J. T. Wyman, Eugene G. Day, C. H. Harlow, Witt Clinton and W. R. Cray, received in the north wing.

A short program preceded the dancing. Herbert Dale sang two numbers and the university band played several selections. Interest, however, centered in the drill and fancy dance by the physical culture young women, assisted by a group of university men.

Twenty-four girls took part. They wore English hunting costumes, tan colored riding skirts, scarlet coats, black hats, patent leather boots and carried red whips. The figures were very attractive and intricate and at the close the girls grouped themselves in the background while four trumpeters appeared and sounded the hunting horn in response to the hunters' dance. The men were also in English hunting clothes, white riding breeches, high boots, black coats, red vests and black hats. The dancers were Misses Gertrude McVoy, Eva Blaisdell, Helene Kennedy, Helen Burbridge, Sue Wior, Ethel Works, Sadie Preston, Beane Scripture, Corinne McMillan, Gray Collins, Harriet Van Bergen, Eleanor von Bodenstedt; Messrs. Earl Mallory, S. S. Kilbourn, Myron Holcomb, Edward Hayes, Walter Lutzen, Will Dawson, Nathaniel Taylor, Albert Spring, Leroy Arnold, Ray Knight, Albert Kock and Charles Hansell.

The fancy march was given by Misses Mary Brommough, Emma Leonard, Mabel Flemming, Edith Williams, Jessie Matson, Ezine Smith, Mabel Moore, Isabella Brown, Pearl McCurdy, Myrtle McCurdy, Alice Thompson, Margaret Hines, Florence Fuller, Katherine Stoughton, Ruth Haynes, Agnes Watson, Maud Stewart, Bessie Hiscok, Jessie Hill, Marion Jones, Grace Foster, Ida Boyce, May Gillis, Inga Dable, and Mabel Moore.

A program of sixteen numbers followed and the dance cards were red booklets. Frappe was served by Misses, F. L. Williams, E. S. S. and M. W. A. There was a large attendance not only of the university young people but of the older dancing set, while the balcony was thronged with those who came for the picture of the gay scene than for the dancing.

The presence of the Yale Glee, Banjo and Mandolin club will add much to the holiday pleasures. Mrs. George P. Partridge will give a tea on Friday afternoon, Dec. 26, and after the concert in the evening there will be a reception at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Semple. The men will come up from Chicago in two private cars and return the next day. The concert will be given in Plymouth church and the proceeds will go towards the fund for needy students.

J. W. Reynolds is president and leader of the club; C. O. Day, Jr. vice president and leader in instruction; the executive club; J. B. Thomas, secretary and manager, and C. E. Adams, assistant secretary.

The junior ball is fast becoming the big social event of the winter and much interest is being expressed in this year's party. The Junior Ball association is larger than it has ever been and more elaborate preparations will be made. The decorating committee will be allowed $700 to beautify the armory, which is twice as much as was expended last year. The colors of the class, red and white, will combine effectively in the decorations and in the white electric lights will be used with an additional electric display as a centerpiece. The dance cards will be something unique. A dainty supper will be served from small tables decorated with flowers and candles. The date of the ball has been set for Friday, Jan. 30.

A NATTY DRESSING COAT

Here is where the outer garment has its prototype for home wear. It is like the tea-jacket in its form, or rather the tea-jacket is like this in its form. The double sailor collar, the low-cut neck, the easy sleeves, recommend themselves at a glance for extreme comfort. The invisible part of woman's dress in all its daintiness is here before you in the beautiful petticoat.

Adell Davies, Scott Woodworth and Richard Woodworth. Miss Frances Vincent and Mr. Belknap sang solos. Light refreshments were served in the dining room by a group of young girls, Misses McDonald, Gray, Quimby of Staples, Minn., and Williams of Ashland, Wis.

In the afternoon about 100 boys and girls of Immanuel Baptist Sunday school came to say good-bye to Mr. and Mrs. Hullett and in the evening the members of the church were present. Mr. Hullett has been the assistant pastor of Immanuel Baptist church and with Mrs. Hullett left this morning for West Concord, Minn., where they will make their home.

Miss Della Hawkins and Willard S. Randall were married Wednesday at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Hawkins, in Robbinsdale. Roses were used with vine leaves and smilax in the parlors to carry out a color scheme of white and green and the dining-room in red. Miss Maud Hawkins of Minneapolis played the wedding march. Mrs. George Johnson of Robbinsdale was matron of honor and Carl Randall was best man. The bride wore white crepe de chine trimmed with chiffon and carried bride roses. The service was read by Rev. Donald G. Colp. Mr. and Mrs. Randall left for the east and on their return they will be at home in Minneapolis.

Prepared wax for floors may be bought either in the form of a paste or liquid. When wax is used on a floor it should be thoroughly polished, but with the use of the liquid polish no rubbing is required. The paste may be prepared at home in the following manner: Cut a pound of yellow beeswax and put it in a bowl or tin can. Place the vessel in a pan of boiling water, stirring frequently until the wax is soft, but not liquid. Then add from the first and beat into it one pint of turpentine. The wax will now be ready for use. When the wax polish is not fresh made before being put on the floor.

Spanish Salad—Peel and slice three good sized firm tomatoes. Seed and shred one large green pepper. Break a head of lettuce in pieces and mix with the tomatoes and pepper in a bowl, dressing all with a French dressing, to which has been added a little olive oil. A few stoned olives may be added to this dish if desired.

Beaten biscuits are good on general principles, and are especially desirable for the school luncheon basket. Here is a Kentucky recipe: One quart of flour, one tablespoonful of lard, a little salt, and enough milk to make a soft dough. Mix these materials together with the hand until the dough is smooth, then beat well with a flat iron until the dough is perfectly white and smooth and full of blisters. Roll out with a rather small biscuit cutter, and bake in a moderate oven. Be sure that they are done through. Beaten biscuit should never be soft and doughy.

MISS CAMERON'S GEESE

In one of the scenes of "A Normandy Wedding," which will be seen the last half of next week at Metropolitan, Miss Grace Cameron, the star, uses a live goose. Her character is that of a goose girl. Although the "business" required of the goose is not of a very exacting nature, yet it is of sufficient importance to make it necessary that the bird be especially trained. Bad luck has seemed to follow the geese, for so far this season four have died violent deaths. Two have been run over by automobiles while being exercised on the street, one was in a railroad wreck and one was killed by an infuriated property owner who had put up with the bird's bad temper as long as he could. When he was bending over a trunk one day the vicious gander stole up and made a lunge at his face, narrowly missing an eye but taking a piece of his nose, whereupon the property man took a stage brace and killed the goose forthwith.

With Miss Cameron the geese have been always gentle. She ascribes this fact to her fondness for bird pets, and her constant and solicitous attentions to them. At all events they have all been quite tractable with her, and it is not at all an unusual sight to see her walking along the streets of the cities where the company is playing, leading a big white gander by a small silver chain. She is giving him his exercise.

A program of music and recitations was given by Miss Gillette, reader, Miss Lois Tennant and others. The association is raising funds for a new piano and booklets to be filled with dimes have been in circulation for some time. These were handed in filled to-day as Christmas gifts to the association. DEL MOINES WAS SO NICE. Little Grace Cameron says that she has a double in Des Moines, where she recently played in "A Normandy Wedding." For the two days that she was there she had a number of amusing experiences.

She had quite a little shopping to do, and made a tour of the principal stores. Wherever she went she met with unusually courteous treatment, in fact it went so far as to be cordial, and when she got back to her hotel for luncheon she enthusiastically related her experiences to her sister.

"Why, they must have heard a lot about me in Des Moines and have seen all of my photographs. I think this is the nicest place I was ever in."

In the afternoon Miss Cameron had a few rather embarrassing episodes in the course of her wanderings, that made her think at times that she was not having such an awfully good time. The climax came when she stopped in the street by a young man whom she had never seen in her life, who rudely took hold of her arm, and with a face white with anger and in a voice trembling with passion, said:

"Don't you think you have gone about far enough with this farce? I do. Where did you spend last night? You were not at your mother's, and every place I have been to-day I have heard of you buying everything in the town. I wonder how you think I am going to be able to pay for all your foolishness. Now, I want you to come home with me, now, and at once."

Miss Cameron looked at the man, thought he was an escaped lunatic and being violently angry, she walked vigorously with him until she saw a policeman who suddenly jumped away and claimed his protection.

Explanation followed and the young man professed in his apologies. He had mistaken the actress, who was bundled up and wore a veil, for his wife with whom he had had a tiff the day before.

THINGS WORTH KNOWING

Bits of Scrapbook Wisdom on Various Household Topics.

Luncheons are the most interesting and popular means of entertaining. The hostess is able to take complete control of the situation. To do this she should undertake no more than she can carry through with success and without too much labor for herself. If she fails to observe this rule she may have a dish or two more on her bill of fare, but it will be at the expense of a personal weariness which will render her unfit to enjoy the party she has planned. The guests would never miss the extra dishes. They will miss the good spirits and powers of entertainment of the mistress of the house.

A traveler contributes that on a recent ocean-crossing raised proved his stay and stimulant during a rather bad attack of sea sickness. He got them with difficulty, he says, a few at a time, by feeling the seaward, and advises transatlantic travelers to put a small box of nice plump raisins in their state room kit.

A bit of kitchen economy is that cold fried or scrambled eggs, which would seem to be no longer useful, may be chopped and mixed with mince-meat, to the latter improvement, if possible, add egg, too, that was not needed may, if it is not broken, be returned to the water and boiled hard, and used to garnish or mix with a salad.

Wooden salad bowls are pretty and appropriate. Burnt wood has been rather overdone, but decorated with glass is especially attractive for these bowls. Carved and inlaid bowls are also seen. A wooden fork and spoon accompany the bowl, with decorations to match.

The newest and prettiest tea trays are oblong, with brass or wooden handles and a glass bottom which may be polished, or a piece of burnt leather or rich fabric, rading print, or other decoration.

Glass is being used also in the manufacture of bath tubs. The glass is about three inches thick and annealed to make the tub durable. The effect is clean and beautiful. The tub is German one and is rapidly gaining favor in this country.

Prepared wax for floors may be bought either in the form of a paste or liquid. When wax is used on a floor it should be thoroughly polished, but with the use of the liquid polish no rubbing is required. The paste may be prepared at home in the following manner: Cut a pound of yellow beeswax and put it in a bowl or tin can. Place the vessel in a pan of boiling water, stirring frequently until the wax is soft, but not liquid. Then add from the first and beat into it one pint of turpentine. The wax will now be ready for use. When the wax polish is not fresh made before being put on the floor.
