Wilson Bound Over—John Wilson, who was arrested several days ago on a charge of highway robbery, had his preliminary hearing this morning and will be taken to grand jury in 11:00 a. m. It is claimed that Wilson robbed Christ Bergen of $10 in a Washington avenue lodging-house.

A Drunken Man's Escape—Peter Holston, a laborer residing on the East Side, came home last night intoxicated and proceeded to molest his wife and household articles in the street. He was arrested by Detective Helm and Judge Holt sentenced him to the workhouse this morning for fifteen days.

Charged With Forgery—Ed James was arraigned in police court this morning on a charge of forgery. He asked for an examination and the case was set for tomorrow morning. James is said to be the young man who passed a number of forged checks upon patent dealers in various parts of the city. He was arrested by Detectives Hanson and Wirtzsch.

A New Tea Company—Articles of incorporation of the Kardomah Tea company were filed with the register of deeds this morning. The company is capitalized at $50,000 and has a limited liability of half that amount. Its business will be the preparation and sale of teas and coffees. The officers and incorporators are J. R. McDonald, president; W. T. Costigan, vice president; and J. L. Scott, secretary and treasurer.

New Railroad Relations—Traffic relations between the Rock Island and the St. Louis roads were terminated yesterday. Although the passenger relations were terminated Nov. 2, the freight tariffs were not terminated until yesterday. In future, the St. Louis will do business with the Illinois Central, the Wabash and the Iowa Central and the Rock Island will carry its freight over its own lines.

Christmas Dinner in South Town—The Volunteers of America, post No. 2, Franklin and Bloomington avenues, will give a Christmas dinner at 11:30 a. m. yesterday in which there are sick or disabled persons, also a Christmas tree for the children of such families. To this end Captain Elliott, commanding the company, resides at 1233 E. Franklin avenue, room 2, and is anxious to receive donations to defray expenses.

Lynchurst is Growing—Richard L. Costigan, general purchasing agent of the Twin City Rapid Transit company, has purchased the northwest double corner of Forty-sixth street and Broadway, which is being exploited by the David C. Bell investment company.

LOSS TO CHURCH CIRCLES
Death of Mrs. Sarah A. O. Randall Takes Away an Ardent Religious Worker.

The death of Mrs. Sarah A. O. Randall, which took place Sunday at her home in St. Paul, removes from the state a woman who has done much for Baptist missions. She was president of the Primary Sunday School union and child conversion and child training were subjects in which she was vitally interested.

MISS ENGELIE FRANKENFELD, a well-known musician and vocalist of West Superior, died at her home in West Superior Dec. 6. The funeral was held at her home under the auspices of the Order of the Eastern Star.

IF HE'S IN CANADA

No Word From Missing Ex-Mayor
—May Be in King Edward's Dominion.

If There, Efforts to Get Him Back
Must Be Through Secretary of State.

Michael Barber, ex-Mayor A. A. Ames and his wife parted on leaving Louisville, Ky., the mayor to get to satisfactory terms with the officers of justice. Barber, however, has vanished. The ex-mayor is gone and no one here who will tell knows where. Even if he were to be found and brought back it is doubtful now that "Coffee John" Fichette's dead, whether he could be convicted on the more serious charges against him.

It is believed Dr. Ames to be in Canada, if he should be found on Canadian soil, he will have to be recovered with much red tape through the offices of the state department at Washington. County Attorney F. H. Boardman would have to take the initiative, requesting Governor S. R. Van Sant to take action. The papers would be made out by Attorney General William B. Douglas, in the name of the governor, and forwarded to John Hay, secretary of state. If approved by him, application for extradition would be made to the British ambassador at Washington, who would endorse it and forward it to the Canadian authorities.

TAX COLLECTIONS OF 1902

Total for Eleven Months Exceed
Collections for Entire Year of 1901 by Nearly $200,000.

Tax collections for the first eleven months of this year exceed the total collections made last year on the tax of 1901 by almost $200,000. This is an unusually good showing and cannot be wholly accounted for under the increased rate. Not in years have there been so few delinquencies as at the present time, and the increased rate for 1902, which is 23.82 as against 27.4 for 1901, the increased payment is out of all proportion to the increased levy. The figures, by month, follow:

POSTAL FRAUD CHARGED
J. S. Parkner, Arrested in Chicago, Said to Have "Raised" Money Orders—Wanted Here.

Advices from St. Louis say that J. S. Parkner, alias J. S. Sutherland, wanted in St. Louis, Chicago, Minneapolis and St. Paul for raising checks, was arrested last night in Chicago at the instance of Postmaster Dice. Sutherland was in St. Louis in November and was thought a money order for $4; Inspector Dice says that Sutherland afterwards raised the order to $40 and cashed it. The man then fled to Minneapolis where, the chief inspector says, he worked the same game several times for practically the same amount. His operations extended to St. Paul and he fled with the federal authorities. He fled to Chicago but was traced by a trunk he ordered sent from Minneapolis. His arrest occurred last night in Chicago at the hands of Inspector J. D. Sullivan and he was returned to St. Louis.

GRANGE IN SESSION
The Minnesota Branch Holding Its 34th Annual Meeting.

The thirty-fourth annual session of the Minnesota state grange began this morning in Morgan Post hall, corner Third street and Nicollet avenue. Preliminary business was transacted and the chief feature of the afternoon session was the address of the master, Mrs. Sarah G. Baird.

HE INSISTED ON PLEASING

The Doctor Said "No," So James "Pasted" the Man of Medicine.

In the Police Court, He Pays One Dollar for the Paste and Pastry.

James Barber paid $1 this morning, in the municipal court, for the pie that he ate a week ago at the breakfast table of the Russell Hotel. The first street street, Hennepin avenue. But the rule of the sanatorium was violated that pie should not be served for breakfast. Barber is an employer at the establishment. He is not a patient, but the institution Barber does "most anything" for most anybody there. He reads to the wakeful patients, he goes to the convalescents, rolls pills for the pharmacist and pie crust for the cook. He is trusted by the doctors, admired by the nurses. In the eyes of the patients he is a benefactor. He is peculiarly the favorite of the employer, Dr. W. A. Russell, one of the sanatorium managers.

But Dr. Russell's partner, Dr. W. J. Warren, as the evidence this morning disclosed, is distant with Jimmie Barber. Dr. Warren and his family sit at the same table with the sanatorium employees. At this table the doctor has eaten unwillingly with Jimmie. The physician has refused to wait on Barber, and Barber has waited on himself.

On the morning in question a cranberry pie, deep, round and red, was served at Dr. Warren's table. It was not served at the patient's table, being "unhygienic," as he peevishly said. Jimmie had helped himself to steak. He had walked around the table and helped himself to coffee. He had sequestered the bread plate and pie, and had Dr. Warren dissected a rosy, palpitating triangle, when Jimmie's Trojan fist advanced to seize a morsel of Helen. He leaped over, defenseless, his right hand around the pieplate—"an' the doc he flipped me in the eye, jedge!" explained Barber to-day. "An' that's yo' do, jedge, only once." Then Jimmie retired across the table with his captive. He was detaching a juicy hemisphere when "The doc flipped me in the eye, jedge. I was my pie, anyhow. I helped roll the crust!"

"Well, it's your pie now," replied his honor. "It will cost you $1.00."

WALL ST. ANTIDOTE

Why J. J. Hill's Pessimistic Interview Did Not Cause Greater Demoralization.

Wall Street Prophets Had Already Caught a Glimpse of Better Things.

The sensational Hill interview of Friday last in which the Great Northern's president was represented as very pessimistic, has met a rough reception in Wall street. Mr. Hill really said what was printed as coming from his lips, his talk is conceded, must have been spontaneous and thrown out without regard to the possible effect upon the market. Securities held to large blocks by his associates. The local financial world is sitting at a loss to account for the seeming inconsistency between the attitude of Mr. Hill and the general opinion of the market. It is not often safe to assume what may be the position of a big operator by the talk he puts out. But it is a conundrum to the market when the chief of the street is combining to sustain stocks, should come west and give out views that would tend to cause demoralization.

It seems incomprehensible also to the Wall street financial writers that while Mr. Hill has been so pessimistic, the City Bank and Mr. Baker of the National Bank of Commerce of New York were in conference for the purpose of devising means of increasing the value of their stock prices. Mr. Hill, their associate, was giving out views and opinions in Chicago that under ordinary conditions would have caused great disturbance in the market. In part repudiated the interview, but the denial came later and the interview was accepted as authentic at the time it was received. Why the market has not moved in stocks? Probably, the stock market followers say, because the interview's effects were counteracted by the effect of articles in the newspaper which said that day that were more favorable than that had appeared for a long time. All the New York financial writers who gather about the turn of the year, when the Hill interview was wired from Chicago the Wall Street Journal printed the most hopeful article of weeks as to the market situation. It even thought they had winnings in cigars or candy instead of money.

ACTING MAYORS SHAKE

Electing Mayor Jones and Mayor Elect Haynes Greet Constituents at City Hall.

The Building Is En Fete and Citizens Turn Out to View It.

Two mayors received in the mayor's reception room this afternoon. Acting Mayor D. P. Jones invited Mayor-elect James C. Haynes to the honors with him at the city and county building reception and the coming mayor gladly accepted the opportunity to meet the aldermen also assembled for the occasion. For the most part they were busy with parties of constituents in other parts of the building, particularly the various council chambers. It was rather fortunate for the visitors this afternoon that the passageway on the third floor from the county side to the city side through the main fourth street entrance was completed to-day, for it proved a great convenience for those who wished to see the whole building. On this floor, at least, the visitors who were compelled to retrace their steps for two blocks in order to reach one side or the other. The third floor is the only one on which the whole building can be seen unobscured. A fair conception of the magnificent distances in the building can be gained by making the grand tour on the third floor by the use of a pedometer and a stop watch.

There was much speculation this morning as to whether the artists who were engaged to decorate the fourth floor chamber with striking designs in gay colors would have their work completed by the time set for the opening of the reception. Many predicted failure, but the artists smiled confidently. The work in the fifth window was the arms of the United States and the work thereon was being completed with much interest. The program by the artists was promised to be through by noon and they were.

All county offices as well as the city offices will be open to-night for the reception of the new mayor. The city clerk's office "Little Jimmie" Latourelle will preside at a piano. The register of deeds office has been decorated in green; and Sheriff Douglas's quarters are gay with American flags and hunting. An immense flag has also been draped across the back wall of the treasurer's office. Many predictions were made by officials here, that to-night will be "the city's party, not the county's," and consequently are not exerting themselves.

NO SETTLEMENT YET
The Shaft-Pierce Cutters Still Out—Statement by Mr. Shaft.

The cutters at the Shaft-Pierce Shoe company's factory, 219 First avenue, N. E., are still out on strike and may be some difficulty in reaching a settlement. The cutters manifest no intention of giving up the cutters' price list, and the managers are unwilling to determine the price of the piece-work system in use in the factory. W. S. Shaft says:

"It will cause us considerable inconvenience and extra expense to straighten out the work which has dropped at various stages of completion. Our factory is now, and has been operated largely on the piece-work system, which has always seemed to me the best one for workmen up to this time. We have cutters who make considerable more at our piece-work than they can make at the day under their new schedule. All workmen are paid according to their ability, although the prices we are paying to-day are considerably higher in our department than they were a year ago. We have spared no pains or expense in making our workrooms neat, cheerful and comfortable, and the workmen are given out in large jobs to be operated so as to enable them to accomplish a full day's work with little or no inconvenience.

"We are not adverse to union workmen and have made no discrimination between union or non-union cutters, but have endeavored to place every man on his own merits, whether an apprentice, artisan or foreman.

"This plant has run very steady during the past year, and but for this unfortunate occurrence, would have finished the year with 200 days of steady work to the credit of the employees.

"The cutters' price list as presented to us by the Boot and Shoe Workers' union is right in the main, but the demand by our men, as it tends to put all old cutters on the same level, and at practically the same pay, whereas, old cutters differ in ability as well as in their disposition. Some cutters are extremely quick but lack in judgment, and vice versa. Also, some cutters are possessed with both speed and good judgment, while others are lacking in both essentials. These qualifications we claim should be considered in deciding on the wages to be paid them."

Case Involving Lease by Western Union Taken Under Adjudication.
Judge Amidon of the United States circuit has taken the case of the Western Union Telegraph company against the Northern Pacific, the Western Union and the Northwestern Telegraph company, an action brought by the government to have the leasing of lines constructed by the railroad declared illegal, under an act passed by congress in 1888, which provides that all companies in any way aided or subsidized by the government must operate their own telegraph lines so that the government can have full control should war arise, without entering into controversy with any company holding a lease or bill of sale. The suit has been pending since 1891.

New York, Dec. 16.—Miss Drina de Wolfe, the beauty of the Belmonts, is going to become a bride again, and she doesn't deny her name is going to be Mrs. Frederick Gebhard. Her husband, who is named after the report, said: "It's too absurd to talk about." Then he added, "There's nothing in it at all." But when asked by the question, "Are you engaged to Miss de Wolfe?" he didn't answer.

BUGS THAT BOTHER

Interesting Points for Farmers and Housekeepers in State Entomologists' Report.

In Addition to Crop Foes, He Discusses Roaches, Mosquitoes and Carpet Beetles.

Housekeepers who suppose the state entomologist to be an expert maintained only for the purpose of combatting the various insect foes will be agreeably surprised to find in Dr. F. L. Washburn's annual report some things which apply to the home. Naturally a large part of the report, just out is devoted to the Hessian fly, the pestiferous hopper and the other insects of the infamous cut worm but there are chapters devoted to the mosquito, the cockroach and carpet beetle. Of the mosquito, scientists have written much in the past three years and Dr. Washburn's report contains much general matter regarding mode of propagation and concerning extermination with various applications. The report also gives an interesting account of the original experiments conducted near St. Anthony Park. While some abatement of the mosquito annoyance has been effected by the use of frequent applications of oil to the marshy breeding places, the state entomologist concludes that "until such places are inclosed by a wire netting, such localities must expect more or less trouble." One interesting characteristic of the mosquito larva, or "wiggle" is indicated by Dr. Washburn's observations on a little fellow called captive in a glass jar containing water in the jar for solid but when it was thawed again, little Mr. Wiggle resumed operations as the chopper as you please and to show his contempt for the freezing process, speedily proceeded to slough off his wiggle uniform and became an active and robust pupa.

The humble but knowing cockroach is honored with a full page group of life-sized portraits and an extended write-up in Dr. Washburn's report. Their well known migratory habits in apartment houses and their wisdom concerning poisonous operations are touched upon. The most effective remedy is said to be hydrocyanic gas but as this is equally fatal to the hired girl and the baby, its use is not recommended. Under the strictest precautions to keep human beings from inhaling it. Bisulphide of carbon is recommended as a good substitute, where the room can be securely sealed. Other remedies are burning of pyrethrum, or Persian insect powder; phosphorus paste and powdered borax.

Carpet beetles a midsummer housecleaning is recommended, or two housecleanings a year. Carpets should be thoroughly washed with hot soapsuds, the bed room, and the dining room, and gasolene. In bad cases, tarred paper under the carpet will help some. For stored goods, a sauciful of bisulphide of carbon placed in the chest with the goods and tightly covered with oil or tinned in the season will kill all the carpet beetles or moths at work there. The gas from bisulphide of carbon is extremely inflammable and should be handled with reference to lights.

LEAVE CITY CLEAN
Purpose of Acting Mayor Jones in Closing Up Affairs of Administration.

Gambling at an End—Vice Confined to Slum Limits—Wine Rooms Nearly All Gone.

Mayor Jones will endeavor to turn over to his successor a more by clean city. While it has been his aim to enforce all laws within his jurisdiction, he has paid particular attention to gambling and social evil, and the results have been with the results. Not that he has reformed the people of loose morals, but vice has been restricted to the narrowest limits and temptations have been removed from many of the most difficult ordinances to enforce in the city.
