

WHY DENMARK IS O. K.

The Dannebrog at Copenhagen Prints Some Complimentary Opinions.

Senator Knute Nelson's Tribute to King Christian—Foremost in Education.

Copenhagen, Dec. 21.—The Dannebrog prints a number of communications from distinguished persons in America and England, regarding Denmark, the subject to which they were asked to reply being "Impressions on the Dannebrog and its People."

"To an American Denmark is in many respects most near and dear—a precious little gem among the nations of the world. To us, it is one of the cradles of the Anglo-Saxon race—that race of which we are a part and which seems destined to dominate the world."

"Blessed with a fertile soil and mild climate, her farmers are the fittest, the most industrious and the most progressive of agriculturists—the great wealth-producing factor of the nation and an object lesson to the whole world."

"Such prosperous and successful farmers are entitled, to as large an extent as possible, to own the lands they till, instead of being tenants and cottagers and I am glad to learn that many of them have, in recent years, become the owners of the land they cultivate."

"What Denmark has lost in territory, she has more than made up by agricultural, commercial and industrial expansion from within, so that her misfortune has proved, through the patriotism and energy of her people, to be her great fortune and deliverance."

"While we have noted with gratification the great progress Denmark has made in the material and economic world, we have observed with greater pride and rejoicing the great strides she has made in the political world. Many obstacles have been encountered and removed. Slowly, step by step, peace and justice and the force of arms have been fought and won. A free parliamentary government, such as England and Norway possess, is now the property and heritage of the Danish people. The voice of the people, through their chosen representatives, can now be heard and heeded in full measure."

"The Danes are now for the first time in a political sense, the equals of the United States, of England and of Norway; and the people of Denmark are by blood, by culture, and by mental and moral vigor, as well as by their self-government, as the people of these other countries. It was kind and magnanimous in your noble king, in his declining years, to break with the past, and to listen to the voice of his people."

"It cannot be said of him as was said of that other great Danish king: 'King Christian stod ved Holsten Mast i Rag og dagnar' but he is entitled to the noblest and grandest epithet ever inscribed on the monument of a Danish king, and its tenor is this:

"Here rests the mortal remains of King Christian the Ninth. He listened to the voice of his people and granted them for the first time a free parliamentary government."

"No other Danish king has ever conferred so great and far-reaching a blessing upon the Danish people as King Christian the Ninth. Verily peace hath its victories greater than that of war."

"The Danes are a great people, with a great past. May they preserve their national identity and make of it a great future."

"Bishop of New York."

"I have merely passed through the country, stopping only a day at Copenhagen. My impressions were all favorable. It seems to me a very great country for her limited territory, and I hope I may some time have the opportunity to see more of it. I know many Danes in this country, and there is quite a colony here in my own town—excellent people, industrious, sober and thriving. The universal testimony wherever they are found in our country is that they are the very best of citizens."

"—Redford Proctor."

"The chief impression which I have formed of Denmark and its people from reading and from brief visits to the country, is that it would be an immense advantage for England and the English to go to school in Denmark and learn there what immense achievements are possible when the educated intelligence of the whole democracy is brought to bear upon the problems of agriculture. I wish I could see more evidence as to the readiness of my countrymen to follow the Danish example."

"—W. T. Stead."

"Denmark is one of the foremost countries in the world in educational matters. Education is compulsory, and is given on broad and liberal lines. Modern and classical studies receive much attention. English occupies a more prominent place than formerly. It is noted that the French and German are relatively less important than at one time. English and American expression is largely responsible for this. Day by day the public schools have, by their excellence, attracted attention even in the United States. Two or three years ago the University of Michigan sent one of its professors to Denmark to study our school system. He praised the schools (especially some of the private schools) very highly, finding them in some respects superior to the American schools."

"An institution was founded some years ago by private initiatives and support, which has been very successful, and whose report just sent out, is extremely interesting. Miss Buch, a daughter of former Chief Justice Buch of Denmark, conceived the idea of starting a private school which should be a way of the Danish people, and school and have a free hand to carry out certain liberal ideas in education. The institution is free, no tuition being charged. Admission is controlled by requiring that the applicant shall have completed a public high school course and have received the best standing examination. It must be remembered that our public school pupils are from the poorer classes, the rich patronizing private schools. Hence this school is intended to give the brightest students from the poorer classes an opportunity to get a more complete education than would otherwise be possible. The course includes, besides the ordinary branches, swimming, hygiene, shorthand, typewriting, practical bookkeeping, needlework, including dress-making, house economics and cooking. A physician gives instruction in ordinary diseases and the laws of health, and a dentist examines the teeth and gives rules regarding their care. The pupils are taught all the functions of the body, the values of foods, how to dress in a sanitary manner, how to care for infants and children, etc."

"In the kitchen each pupil gets an account book for entering the purchases used in preparing a certain dish, in order that its value in money as well as its weight and use in cooking may be known. Economy in making palatable and wholesome dishes is taught, as is preserving of fruits, washing, house-cleaning, table decorations, etc. The pupils are divided into families, and each member of the family is given a part of the household work."

"The fonetic method is used in teaching languages and great proficiency is attained in English and other languages. The school is exclusively for girls from the ages of 15 to 17 years and the course is two years."

"On Christmas the pupils gave a comedy entitled 'A Sleeping Beauty.' It was prepared by them and acted in English."

"—Albert Thorup."

CAPITAL CULINGS

The volume of money in circulation in the United States has reached almost $30 per capita or nearly double what it was in relation to the population ten years ago.

Charles Eastman, the well-known Indian doctor, will be transferred from the Crow Creek S. D. reservation, where, it is said, he has been a disturbing element.

The naval board's maps for the purpose of locating the centers of population for placing the Great Lakes training school show the center of population for the Great Lakes country to be fifty miles northwest of Chicago. Minnesota's center is about fifty miles northwest of Minneapolis.

The president has declined to accept the resignation of Lieutenant Antonio Sartoris, stationed at Manila, unless good and sufficient reasons are furnished. Lieutenant Sartoris is a grandson of General P. S. Grant and it is thought that the resignation was caused by depression over the news of the death of his grandmother.

Senator Nelson yesterday commended his remarks in opposition to the omnibus statehood bill. He has an elaborate and complete speech on the statehood question, covering it from every standpoint, and it is believed that when he has concluded little more will be said in the way of showing the merits and demerits of the case. His address will cover about thirty pages of the Record.

Senator Hoar yesterday introduced a second trust bill. It provides especially for the extending of suits in equity brought under the provisions of the antitrust law. It authorizes the attorney general to bring suit in any such case pending in any circuit court of the United States to the effect that the case is of general public importance and it is deemed to be given precedence over other cases.

The Quiberon Touch

A Romance of the Days When "The Great Lord Hawke" was King of the Sea.

BOOK VII. Out of the Deep.

L'ENVOI Farewell!

Nearly two years have fled away. It is a new scene in a new land. Under a grove of mighty trees, the forest primal, in front of a hill, a grassy old manor-house stands upon a gray lawn stretching down to the shining waters of the broad Potomac. On the edge of the blue looking far over the river, a little pleasure-house. It is late spring in the Old Dominion.

Philip and Anne Grafton for some time past have been established in their ancestral home of the family from which her mother sprang, which had descended to her shortly before. Though he had given up active service in the English navy, out of deference to his wife's feelings, who would not see him against his countrymen, and who could not bear to think of him on a ship, which had taken her grandfather and father as well. Grafton had retired with the sanction and approval of the king. His beautiful wife and her story had won the kind heart of the little George II. and, while loathe to lose so good an officer, he had at last said "Yes" to all her pleadings for her husband. She had been through enough and she was entitled to consideration.

From a tall masthead, erected on the sloping lawn, every day flutters a small blue flag, which is especially used on the days when the English and private schools have, by their excellence, attracted attention even in the United States. Two or three years ago the University of Michigan sent one of its professors to Denmark to study our school system. He praised the schools (especially some of the private schools) very highly, finding them in some respects superior to the American schools.

BARON VON STERNBURG

He Has Been Appointed Charge d' Affaires at Washington—Dr. Von Holleben Ill.

Berlin, Jan. 8.—Baron Speck von Sternburg, the German consul at Calcutta, has been appointed charge d'affaires at Washington during the absence of the ambassador, Dr. Van Holleben, on sick leave. Chancellor von Bülow regards the business at Washington as so important at present as to require a special substitute for the ambassador. The inference naturally follows that Baron Speck von Sternburg will succeed Dr. von Holleben as ambassador should the latter's health prevent his return. This inference is confirmed by the fact that Chancellor von Bülow, months ago, had expressed approval of Baron Speck von Sternburg, should the emperor desire him at Washington.

Dr. Von Holleben has notified the foreign office that he will sell from New York on Saturday. His health was so bad during his recent leave of absence that his audience with the emperor was postponed for six weeks, as Dr. von Holleben was feeling too ill to see his majesty. It is understood that the ambassador's present leave of absence is unlimited and that it will certainly exceed six months. Dr. von Holleben has heretofore found Carlshaus the most favorable place for regaining his strength and he will probably go there upon his arrival in Germany.

Baron Herman Speck von Sternburg was formerly secretary of the German embassy at Washington. He is a son of the German commissioner at the Siam conference and was conspicuous in the negotiations in London in connection with the Siam question. He was recalled from Washington to Berlin for a conference with the emperor in connection with the Siam question. Many women and doctors do not recognize the real symptoms of derangement of the female organs until too late.

"I had terrible pains along my spinal cord for two years and suffered dreadfully. I was given different medicines, but no relief. I was told to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and after using three bottles more I felt new life and blood surging through my veins. It seemed as though there had been a regular house cleaning through my system, that all the sickness and poison had been taken out and new life given me instead. I have advised dozens of my friends to use Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Good health is indispensable to complete happiness, and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has secured this for me."

Every sick woman who does not understand her ailment should write Mrs. E. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., and her advice is free and always helpful.

BAD STATE LAWS

Chairman Gray Speaks of a Deploable Situation.

Scranton, Pa., Jan. 8.—During the proceedings of the coal commission yesterday James H. Torrey of Scranton, counsel for the Delaware and Hudson company, interrupted long enough to explain to the commission the law in Pennsylvania regarding the payment of deputy sheriffs for special duty. It was to the effect that the laws of the state were not adequate enough to permit the county to pay the deputy sheriffs for this service, and that in consequence corporations foot the bills. Mr. Torrey said that the operators will gladly join in the Pennsylvania law, but he amended so that the companies asking for protection shall not have to pay for it and that the burden be placed upon the people, where it belongs.
