KNIGHTS TEMPLAR CONCLAVE

Big Preparations by Frisco Knights for 1904 Conclave.

California Commandery No. 1, Knights Templar, of San Francisco, is making extensive preparations for entertaining the Grand Master and his friends who visit San Francisco in 1904. They have rented the Mechanics' Pavilion, which covers an entire block, 275 by 412 feet. It will be fitted and decorated regardless of expense. Bennett's famous military band of seventy-five pieces, including the leading virtuoso of eastern cities, will be in attendance day and night. Old California No. 1 will do all previous efforts in the line of entertaining. Everything in the way of refreshments for which San Francisco is famous, will be spread before their Templar friends and their ladies. Editions of the souvenir invitations are now about ready for the press. California commandery will have 400 men mounted on black horses in the grand parade. They have been honored by being chosen as the escort to the grand master. Reuben P. Hurbit, past commander of California commandery No. 1, is chairman of the committee having full charge of the affair.

FRED IRWIN'S "BIG SHOW"

Fred Irwin's Big Show, at the Dewey this week, provides an entertainment that should amuse patrons of that playhouse. Two burlesques are presented and the latter one especially includes a number of acts of distinct merit. The burlesques are billed as "An Operatic Rehearsal" and "The Kneep Curve." Both have been elaborately costumed and the members of the chorus are kept busy all of the time they are not upon the stage in getting out of one set of costumes and into another. The musical interpolations are mostly new and well rendered. The German band, although not a novelty, appears in a slightly new guise, and is really funny.

The three Robays have an excellent musical act which is one of the best things in the city. The Salvegick, whirlwind dancer, and experts in "B.V.'s," and Downey and Vanetta present a laughable skit entitled "A Call on the Doctor." The Bion City quartet, Lester and Curtin, acrobats and Blossom Seeley, vocalist, are also satisfactory.

A BIG, RED CREATURE ON A BETTER BASIS

That's How an American or Englishman Seems to the Ordinary Jap.

Prof. Ernest Fenolosa Gives an Entertaining Talk on the Japanese View.

"Do you know how an European appears to an unsophisticated Jap?" Professor Ernest F. Fenolosa, who is to lecture at the Unitarian church tomorrow night upon Japanese art, answered this question this morning.

"Why, the American, Englishman or German is, in the first place, to Japanese eyes, a very large and red creature. We don't look fair or white to the Japs, as you might suppose, but red. Next, the European is very hairy. The old Japanese pictures of Europeans showed them all with bare and hairy arms. The European eye, thinks the Jap, is large, prominent and staring. His gaze is rude and penetrating. His nose is uncommonly big and long and protruberant. To this huge, red haired grimacing monster the Japanese would compare himself as a delicate, refined, intellectual and spiritual creature, far and away the superior of the European beast. But one is so temporarily submissive it is in view of the fact that the red and hairy demon possesses certain uncanny secrets as to noisy cannon and other things.

"This was the way we looked to the Japanese in the old days when Japan was first opened to commercial intercourse with the rest of the world.

"Even now the Japanese ideal of beauty, for instance, of feminine loveliness, is very different from our own. Their ideal has changed with the varying fashions of different periods. But generally speaking, at present they see no charm in blonde hair, which is absolutely unknown to them. They consider a tress of this color, for the same reason, especially a blue blue eye. A tall, broad shouldered Gibson girl would be repulsive. They fall to see the least attraction in the western fashion of dress that swells outward from below the armpit around the outside of the hip and returns to the ankle. This exquisite outline of our ideal figures would disgust the Japs. He thinks that a woman is ugly. And a girl with long legs—well, she might do for those wild foreigners who have no taste, but never for any subject of the milardo.

"Rosy cheeks, pink cheeks, coral ears, everything, in fact, that suggests a fine color to us is distasteful to the Jap. He agrees with us that a woman with bright eyes, a small, rosy mouth, sloping shoulders, small hands and feet, tapering fingers, a low, sweet voice.

"But, the Japanese ideal is short, with short legs, jet black hair, little eyes, a pale complexion, a nose rather long and aquiline but small and by no means prominent. Her bosom must not be too ample, and her hips should be extremely narrow. The very slender woman—with few of the lines that we call feminine is the lady for a Japanese poem.

"The ideal, indeed, follows the general appearance of the aristocratic women of Japan. The girl of the common people, who more nearly resembles an older American woman, is not so highly valued. A round, full face, a rather flat, broad nose, and the Jap critics can't understand why we should like and admire some of the most beautiful and elegant of these girls. He says they are contrived and coarse."

PERIODS OF JAPANESE ART

The First Lecture by Mr. Fenolosa is Historical.

Ernest E. Fenolosa gave the first of his lectures on Japanese art last night at the First Unitarian church under the auspices of the Japanese Art Society of Fine Arts. The audience was smaller than the importance of the occasion deserved, but it was very appreciative.

The lecture was a rapid but lucid summary of the five periods of Japanese art, pointing out that these had involved great structural differences. Many of the illustrations were of statues and pictures exceeding a hundred in number. These periods, the first was influenced by Corea, through which a strong Indo-Grecian tendency was introduced in the fourth period again drew its inspiration from southern China, and its chief characteristic is idealism in landscape art and poetic symbolism. The fifth period is wholly national and reaches its highest and most important development in the realistic genre of the common people for whose education prints and illustrations were devised and perfected. In the methods of this period modern impressionism was strongly shadowed.

The lecture was followed by an informal reception at the art gallery of T. B. Walker. To-morrow evening Mr. Fenolosa will give a lecture on the Chinese and Asiatic Art, using two lanterns and throwing two pictures on the screen at once.

Increase		$6,582

Alderman James Dwyer announced that he would submit a minority report opposing the elevation of salaries above $1,200 a year.

The principal beneficiary of the "lift" is the fire department. The committee recommended that the salaries of firemen be raised 5 per cent, which amounts to $14,800 a year. The total increase in salaries, if the committee's recommendations are accepted, will be $21,112.

vice with the guard as well as for temporary service at guard encampments, etc. The militia bill, if passed, is eligible for appointment in any future volunteer force, outside of the national guard, will be constituted from former members of the regular army, the volunteer forces, and the military graduates of military schools, where military instructions were given by a regular army officer.

Labor unions will be gratified to know that a check has been put upon any possible misuse of the national guard by federal authority. The old law of 1729 declared that, to enforce the federal laws, it should be lawful "for the president to call forth the militia." But this permission is limited in the new law by the provision that he can call forth the militia "whenever he is unable to execute the federal laws with other forces at his command." That is, he cannot use the national guard until the regular army has proved insufficient for any emergency.

TO KEEP TAB ON RIVERS

The U. S. Geological Survey to Establish Stations on Streams in Minnesota.

M. O. Leighton of the Mississippi department of the United States geological survey, and W. R. Hoag, professor of engineering at the state university, left today for Crookston to select a site and take the first steps toward opening the first station of a system of stations for measurements along the rivers of Minnesota.

Professor Hoag is to be "resident hydrographer" and will have charge of each station and Professor Hoag will visit them monthly.

Stations will be established at Pillager, on the Crow Wing river; Taylors Falls, on the Crow Wing river; Mankato, on the Minnesota river; Duluth, on the St. Louis river; Sauk Rapids on the Mississippi river; Crookston, on the Red Lake river; and a mouth of Rum river.

"The work of establishing measurement stations has been recently undertaken by the government," said Mr. Leighton last night. "The purposes of the stations vary with the sections of the country in which they are. For example, in Minnesota, the reports interest the manufacturers, who rely on the water for power, while in California they interest the farmers with irrigated lands, and in Louisiana, southern Illinois and other states, the readings are of value to the agriculturists with property along the river banks, whose crops are destroyed by the water killed by floods."

"In the case of manufacturers reservoirs are being constructed which will tend to make the flow of water uniform, instead of the erratic character of the current meter is of value, for it shows what size to build them."

Each station will have current meters to register the flow of water and gauges to indicate its depth. The meters will be located two feet apart, from the surface to the bottom of the rivers, and the readings will be recorded and published.

THINK IT INHUMANE

Humane Society Directors Protest Against a Pending Law—New Officers Elected.

The Minneapolis Humane Society has raised its voice in protest against the passage of the law in congress which will permit stock in transportation to be held on the cars forty hours without food or water. The members think the present law which fixes the limit at twenty-four hours is all right. Resolutions to that effect were drawn up at a meeting of the society's directors yesterday and were forwarded to Senators Nelson and Clapp.

The following officers were elected at the meeting yesterday: President, J. C. McIntyre; vice president, H. P. Roberts; secretary, V. E. Bean; treasurer, F. E. Holton; examining physician, Dr. Florence Baker; veterinarians, Dr. C. E. Cotton and M. J. Sexton; agents, J. M. Adams, and S. L. Van Etten; counsel, Wendell Hertig.

STREET RAILWAY EMPLOYEE KILLED

Lead, So. Dak., Jan. 17th, 1903.
NEW ENGLAND FURNITURE & CARPET COMPANY,
Minneapolis, Minn.

Gentlemen:—Yours of 13th inst. advising me that my desk was shipped on the 12th inst. was received by me about six o'clock p. m. on the 14th inst. Early on the morning of the 16th inst. I called on the bank without waiting for a notice and found your sight draft for $40.00 with B. attached and immediately honored the draft and received the bill of lading. I did not expect the desk would arrive for several days, but, much to my surprise, and I may add pleasure, I was informed by a local drayman that I had a box at the depot, and upon giving him the bill of lading he placed the desk in my office about 6 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The desk came through without a blemish and is the handsomest piece of furniture (and is counted so by all who have examined it.) that was ever brought to the Black Hills. I am justly proud of it and assure you I appreciate it very much. I have placed it in my office and I will place it in my office, and I will take special pleasure in having them state that it was the New England Furniture and Carpet Company which fitted it up.

Again assuring you that I am thoroughly pleased and satisfied with the desk, as I know I will be with the Macey bookcases, I remain,

Very sincerely yours,

The above letter is no more exuberant in its tone of satisfaction than many we receive. There is no reason why you should not have strictly up-to-date furnishings in your homes and offices. Drop us a line telling us as definitely as possible your requirements, and we will do the rest. Our correspondence and merchandise departments will make up your order and we can save you much time, bother and money if given a chance. Send for pictures and prices.
