A ROOSTER'S ERROR

One of the Early Arrivals at the Poultry Show Starts a Crowing Chorus.

Fancy Stock From All Over the Northwest Being Groomed for To-morrow's Exhibit.

A brazen-throated rooster made a sad mistake this morning in the building at 25-27 Fifth street S. He strutted around his cage, threw out his chest and crowed, thinking himself the only bird in the place.

The birds are expected to become acquainted by morning so that when the exhibition is opened to the public at 8 a. m. to-morrow comparative quiet will reign.

This exhibit is to be the best ever made in the state. None has the quality of the entries in all classes, from the bantam hen to the twenty-five-pound bronze Plymouth Rock to the speckled in the fowl line.

Two rare exhibits are a pair of silkies and a hybrid which is half cat and half rabbit. The silkies are bantams thatched with long and soft feathers.

Each evening several pairs of birds will be given away and on Sunday a $25 Angora cat, which person who buys a ticket will place his name and address on a card in a churn, and the first name drawn will get the prize.

Nearby the pavilion are the buildings of Warren Manning, the Boston landscape architect, for the improvement of Interlachen and Lyndale park.

Whereas, there has existed for some years past a condition that is a serious menace to the welfare of one immediate community and a disgrace to the city of Minneapolis, to-wit:

The mystery surrounding the finding of an overcoat, coat and hat lying near the canal at the Consolidated B mill, Fifth avenue S and First street yesterday morning, which were supposed to be those of some unknown man who had committed suicide by throwing himself into the canal, was solved to-day when W. E. Barnes of the Excelsior mill reported to police headquarters that he had picked up an old soldier named Conley, near the point at which the garments were found, Sunday night.

The man had lost his hat, coat and overcoat and was put on a Minneapolis car Monday morning, having slept through the night at the mill, and sent to the soldiers' home.

MR. BOARDMAN SUES FIRST MAD MARIAN

Begins Libel Action Against the McClure Publishing Co., Demanding $50,000 Damages.

His Suit Based Upon Mr. Steffens' Article on the Municipal Investigation.

County Attorney Fred H. Boardman has brought a libel suit against the McClure Publishing company of New York. The papers in the suit were served last evening by United States Marshal Grimshaw upon McClure, western representative, Frederick C. Little of Chicago, at the West Hotel. Mr. Boardman demands $50,000 damages for alleged defamatory articles in the magazine, which contained Lincoln Steffens' article, "The Shame of Minneapolis." The legal battle now in prospect will be fought in Minneapolis. Mr. Boardman declares that he is in deadly earnest in proceeding against the big publishing house and that he will fight to the last ditch in the attempt to secure a verdict.

The part of the article to which the county attorney takes particular exception is a description of the relations said to have existed between the grand jury and the "public prosecutor" at the beginning of the municipal investigation. The county attorney is represented as a politician who knew and was known by the grand jury and believed them too strong to attack, whereupon the foreman of the grand jury is represented as giving him a curt dismissal. Mr. Boardman says that the account of the conversation with the grand jury foreman is untrue, and that it inferentially accuses him of trying to block the investigation.

The complaint was filed with the clerk of the federal court in Minneapolis this morning. Mr. Boardman's attorneys are C. S. Jelley, Frank M. Nye, M. H. Boutelle and Ralph T. Boardman.

POWERS IS SATISFIED

The Alderman Denies That He Has Uttered Complaints.

Alderman Fred Powers repudiates the insinuation of a morning paper that he is dissatisfied with his committee assignments. Instead, having been given places on the four most important committees, he says he is well contented and has no possible ground for grievance.

He is peculiarly gratified, he says, at having been appointed a member of the ordinance committee, which he thinks can be made the most important committee in the council. He will insist that every ordinance introduced in the next two years be referred to the committee. The ordinance committee, he thinks, was created for the express purpose of considering every ordinance introduced. Every ordinance will be closely scrutinized and woodchucks are discovered the city attorney will be called in. Mr. Powers also declared himself opposed to secret sessions.

SEEK SEWER REBATE

Two Hundred Taxpayers Allege Excessive Sewer Assessments.

T. S. Dickey appeared before the council committee on taxes this morning in the interests of 200 taxpayers, whose aggregate claims against the city for excessive sewer assessments amount to $189,000. Mr. Dickey asked that the claims be adjusted. The claims are made under the ruling of the supreme court in 1901, that when property has been assessed for the sewerage tax, the actual cost of the special improvement ordered, the person on whom the assessment was levied was entitled to recover the amount in excess of the sewerage tax. The ordinance subsequently passed a law providing for the refunding of excess assessments. The city has already refunded $15,000 and is now paying out the entire sum he gave it as his opinion that there was no escape from refunding all excess taxes for 1898 and 1899. The committee will give the matter further consideration at 3:30 p. m. Friday.

HOMEOPATHS SEEK CHANGE

Ask That Certain Branches of Course at "U" Be Taught in Academic Department.

At the next meeting of the regents of the university the faculty of the college of homeopathic medicine will petition to have the primary subjects taught in the academic department. Heretofore the students of the homeopathic school have taken their chemistry, physiology, and histology under the instructors in the regular school of medicine. This is said to be detrimental to the homeopathic school in that many persons throughout the state think that the two colleges are under the same head. On this account the students have been dropping out of the attend homeopathic schools. It is said the plan will effect a considerable saving in expense.

BAD FOR CATTLEMEN

Joseph L. Kitchell Returns from Montana - He Says Conditions Will Result in Losses.

Joseph L. Kitchell is back from a six-weeks' trip to Montana, where he is heavily interested in cattle. He says that both sheep and cattle men will lose stock this winter. The snow is about eight inches deep and is covered with a crust, making it almost impossible for the sheep to get to the grass. On the other hand, the stockmen cannot feed their stock all winter. It is also quite impossible to market the cattle now, even at the lowest prices, as many of the ranges are sixty miles from a railroad.

FIRST MAD MARIAN

Mrs. W. H. McDonald, Nee Marie Stone, Sees the World With the Bostonians.

It Was for Her That the Part of Maid Marian Was Written.

The original "Maid Marian" of the old Bostonians, she, for whom the part was written, travels each season with the present company, but so completely disguised under the name of Mrs. W. H. McDonald that few ever realize that she is no other than the one-time favorite of opera-goers, Marie Stone.

"But you know," said Mrs. McDonald to-night, "I am not a singer, I am interested in me, and even when it was I managed some way to elude these inquiries. She is not a singer, but she is a very kind and thoughtful person. Nevertheless, she smiled pleasantly and chatted brightly in a social way, although merely avoiding the leads of various significant questions and remarks.

Mrs. McDonald expressed much interest in the plan of having Mrs. Maud Uimer Jones sing her old role of Maid Marian at the Saturday matinee in St. Paul, and learned with much pleasure of that singer's great popularity in her home.

Mrs. McDonald was trained for Italian opera and never knew any other kind in the more popular forms of opera. "Maid Marian" she prefers to its predecessor, because musically it is much more ambitious. She is not contented in Italy, but she had her debut there. She also met Mr. McDonald in Italy, so that the advantages that led her into the life of a public singer also paved the way to her marriage, which she took her out of it. "I sometimes think," she said, "that I am enjoying the fruits of my work now vastly more than when I was in the profession. I have time to appreciate the nice things people say to me in expressing their regrets at my retirement."

"A Contented Woman."
"A Contented Woman" is Mrs. McDonald's present role, for she is one of the few women who are really contented and who is at the same time fully alive to that fact. She is fond of traveling, of sightseeing, and of outdoor life and she enjoys the company of the people she will benefit of the opportunities afforded by the extensive wanderings of the company. Each new place she explores as thoroughly as the most important cars and comfortable walks will permit.

The older members of the company have hosts of friends all over the country and are visiting with her about the time that he was in the city. He has been in Minneapolis so long since the company was in Minneapolis that their former acquaintances have become scattered. "Just one thing seems to bother me," said Mrs. McDonald. "For years there has been one man in St. Paul who never let us get in town without meeting us at the train, even though it arrived at 5 o'clock in the morning. His friendship is so faithful and unselfish that we have come to call him 'Old Dog Tray,' and no one else. We don't keep track of him, but sure enough Sunday night his wife and the first familiar face we saw and it made us feel as though we were home."

Just On Reminiscence.
Mrs. McDonald does not rate contemporary artists very high and refused to admit that her acquaintance included many justly entitled to be called celebrities and worth writing reminiscences about, although she knows nearly every one whom the passing throng rates as famous. She laughed when reminiscences were suggested and said: "Well, if I was going to write any, I should certainly put in one of our latest experiences. We were just crossing the border line between Italy and France, and were wakened by a rough cook who said: 'Look after your vaccination scars and baggage.' When we got enough awake we found that we were expected to offer to the customs officers, but our vaccination scars to the quarantines and the baggage to the customs in the company and wild efforts were made to evade both the inspection and the question of vaccination. It was finally satisfactorily settled after many funny moments and the baggage was allowed to did not submit to vaccination, in spite of the officers' bold bluff."

JUST A VOLUNTEER

E. L. McGroary Has a Terrific Battle With a Fire Extinguisher.

E. L. McGroary, rental man for E. G. Walton, had a catch-as-catch-can tussle with a runaway fire extinguisher this morning. He came out second best and did not get away until the Swedish high moon when the infernal machine got started that way.

SONS OF HERMAN

Grand Lodge of the State Is in Session Here.

Mayor J. C. Hayes this morning addressed the Minnesota grand lodge of the Sons of Herman at the benefits to be derived from fraternal orders. The morning session, with Frank Noethen, grand president, in the chair, was devoted to routine matters. This afternoon the proposition to change the assessment plan of the lodge from the level rate for all ages to the graded scale, was considered, also the report of the committee on a home for aged. The committee now has over $5,500 in hand, and it is likely that some important steps will be taken soon. Some of the members are in favor of preserving intact a reserve fund of $40,000. Other think it should be increased to $100,000. The meeting will close to-morrow afternoon. One hundred and ten delegates are present.

LOOKS LIKE ROBBERY

A Mutilated Mail Sack With Wayzata Letters Found.

A mail sack marked "Wayzata to Minneapolis" was picked up on the Great Northern tracks near the Cedar Lake ice house yesterday morning by officers from the fifth precinct police station and turned over to the postal authorities at Substation D. The sack was badly mutilated and the lock was broken off. Within were about a dozen letters, some of which were dated yesterday and showing marks of handlings, although none had been torn open. It is not known how the sack came to be lost or what broke the lock and mutilated the sack.

NO CHANGES YET

Mayor Haynes Doesn't Announce Appointments to the Police Force, as Expected.

A statement in the morning papers that Mayor Haynes would finally announce the police department changes this morning brought an anxious crowd of place seekers and place losers to the city hall. They waited until 3 p. m. before the mayor appeared. No bulletins were posted after for candidates on the list. The statement was made. It is now believed that the unfortunate ones will not be formally notified until the last day of the month, which falls on Saturday, although it was recently given out that the men would get at least a week's notice.

DEATH FROM HUNGER HE'LL TRY TO COME
His Royal Quest
The King of Sweden Wants East High School Keys.
The Fate That Confronts Thousands in North Sweden if Relief Slackens.
Admiral Schley Disposed to Accept the Invitation From the Twin Cities.
Report of a Newspaper Correspondent on the Pitiful Conditions That Preval.
He'll Go to Seattle by the Southern Route, Returning in March.
The critical conditions confronting the people of northern Sweden on account of the famine have not been exaggerated; starvation confronts many of the people, says Frederick William Wille, staff correspondent of the Chicago Daily News, in a report from Gellivare, North Sweden, under date of Jan. 24. Mr. Wille's report in full follows:
"Eight days in the heart of famine-stricken north Sweden, across a desolate, frozen country, accessible only by means of sledges, confirms the reports as to the widespread misery. Such authorities as distinct conditions that confront the peasants of these high latitudes. In certain arctic districts King Oscar's arctic subjects are in a state that borders on complete destitution. The most pitiful conditions were found at every point visited.
"Only the most meager relief supplies, which have temporarily ceased in certain districts, stand between the peasants and starvation. Where the relief resources are slacken for any considerable number of days during the next six months it is hard to conceive how thousands of human beings and cattle could escape death from hunger. Even now they are subsisting on less than half the regulation rations of famine times.
"An inspection of the situation is based on personal inspection of typical districts and is endorsed by government officials, pastors, school teachers, innkeepers and others in hourly contact with the widespread misery. Such authorities vigorously condemn the action of the sawmill companies in forcing the famine sufferers to work for beggary wages and then propagating the fiction that their condition has been grossly exaggerated.
"At present the problem that is giving the relief authorities most concern is the need for securing sufficient seed grain—principally barley—in order to enable the ruined farmers to sow new crops. Only a small percentage is required. Six hundred thousand bushels are in sight. If there is any American grain grown far enough north to ripen in the Swedish high altitudes the government will import it."

SAYS HE WAS DRUNK
Some Astonishing Evidence Presented Before Judge Harney Impeachment Committee.
Judge Himself Goes on the Stand and Will Make a Statement in Rebuttal.
Special to The Journal.
Helena, Mont., Jan. 27.—The hearing in the Harney impeachment proceedings are now in full swing before the house committee on judiciary. Walter S. Hartman of Bozeman, who appeared in the case tried before Judge Harney at Butte some months ago, was called to the stand. His testimony went to show the condition of Judge Harney during the trial of the suit involving about $8,000.
Asked as to whether Judge Harney was drunk or sober, Hartman said that after the judge delivered his instructions to the jury, the court adjourned until 2 o'clock. At that hour Hartman did not appear, but he did an hour later. The witness said the judge was so far advanced in intoxication that he was obliged to support himself by placing his hands against the wall when he tried to reach his chair, and that he talked from the bench with a thick tongue.
Staggered When He Walked.
According to the witness, while G. F. Shelton was making his argument to the jury, Judge Harney got up from the bench and staggered down from it into his private office, a few feet away. He remained in his office probably ten minutes, and when he appeared again he sat in the doorway leaning forward on his hands, with his head resting on his hands. The witness said that he was three days in the trial due to the judge.
Judge Harney is to have an opportunity to appear before the committee. It was at first inclined not to receive him, but later the members decided to allow him to make whatever statement he cares to in rebuttal. In order to make the examination as short as possible, the committee decided not to allow any cross-examination.
Members of the committee do not regard themselves as called to pass upon the evidence finally but say their duty is to learn by examination if the facts laid before them are sufficient to justify them in reporting to the house that Judge Harney should be impeached.
Harney Before the Committee.
Other witnesses were examined, but their evidence cannot be obtained until the committee takes another recess, the hearing being in the nature of a grand jury hearing. The committee will report on the stand this afternoon.

BRONCHITIS
We Know is Hard to Control.
Our Vinol is Making a Wonderful Record in Curing This Dangerous Disease.
CALL AND LET US TELL YOU ABOUT IT.
Here is a letter that has just come to our attention. It will interest people suffering from bronchial troubles. It is from Mr. Geo. W. Brown, of So. Hanover, N. H., and reads as follows:
"I have suffered with bronchial troubles for over a year; tried two doctors and have taken three or four kinds of medicine, none of which did me any good. At times I was so hoarse I could not speak. Then I heard of Vinol. After taking three bottles of it my voice has perfectly returned to me. I can see that in a short time I will be all right. When I began to take it I was very weak, but it has built me up and given me a good appetite.
This is what Vinol always does. This is the way Vinol accomplishes its mission of doing good.
Vinol, as we wish every one to know, owes its power of accomplishing the cures that it effects to the fact that it contains the most wonderful medicinal elements known to science for the cure of all wasting diseases, as well as being in itself a marvelous tonic. These medicinal properties exist and have therefore been found only in cod-liver oil. Vinol contains these elements. For by a scientific process the necessary curative properties of the cod-liver oil have been separated from the fat and grease which formerly made cod-liver oil preparations so objectionable.
As long as Vinol does not contain any of the vile-smelling oil, and is prepared by combining the sought-after properties with a delicate table wine, it is a most delicious and palatable preparation.
We know of what we speak when we recommend Vinol, and because we do know that Vinol does all we claim for it, we unhesitatingly endorse it, and guarantee at any time to refund the money paid for the remedy if you are not satisfied it will do all we claim for it.
