PHILIPPINES ARE WORTH THE MONEY.
Washington Times.
We have spent many millions of dollars bringing order out of chaos in the Philippines, but it will come back to us with compound interest," said Captain B. H. Hamilton, who, in Chester, Ky., at the exhibit last evening, Captain Hamilton was in the volunteer army during the war with Spain, and he spent considerable time in the Philippines. "In the campaign of 1900," said the captain, "the demerits made an issue of the Philippines, and the people by a pronounced majority declared for the retention of the islands. At the beginning of this campaign I thought the demerits would again create the abandonment of the Philippines, but they have wisely dropped that subject. I regard Manila as the stepping stone to the trade with China and Japan.

GIFTS TO THE UNITED STATES.
New York Press.
Good people are emotional. Miss Helen Gould is good, and was highly emotional in 1893 when she gave the United States $100,000 with which to prosecute the war against Spain. The entire personal contribution to that cause was $102,682.79. An Englishman sent a pound sterling from his home in Bristol. A man in Seattle was moved three times to give $100 on June 21, $20 on July 7 and $20 on Aug. 10. How very singular! Two children in St. Paul gave $1.40. The largest contributions made by the Philippines came from Francis C. Moore, president of the Continental Fire Insurance company of this city, $1,000, and Emily E. Morr, also of this city, $1,000. What has been done with this money? Some good people give money to the same on general principles, and all such presents are recorded in the treasury department as "Donations to the United States."

THE BUSINESS SENSE UNCERTAIN.
Chicago Record.
"Do you believe that literary ability is hereditary?" "Yes; but ability to wheedle publishers frequently skips a generation."

SLANG.

GILLETTE ON IRVING.
William Gillette, the actor-playwright, was popular in England, but that was before the following of Irving.
An Irving worshiper was raving about Sir Gilbert's greatness when he was asked to seek an endorsement, turned to Gillette: "I suppose you have seen Irving lots of times, haven't you," he asked.
"Several times," replied Gillette.
"Ever seen him in 'Macbeth'?"
"Ever."

That was the greatest piece of acting since the days of Garrick," raved the enthusiast. "It baffles all criticism. What do you think of it, Gillette? Don't you agree with my estimation of Irving? Give us your honest opinion of him."
"I think," drawled Gillette, gravely, "if he could only sing he'd make a grand comedian."

A FESTAL DAY IN A FINNISH VILLAGE.

FINE PHOTOS THERE

Salon Under Auspices of Camera Club and Fine Arts Society Is a Surprise.
The first photographic salon held in the city was opened to-day at the gallery of the Minneapolis Society of Fine Arts and the Minneapolis Camera club. The exhibition is one that is full of delightful surprises to all who do not keep in close touch with the marvels of photography, and it will scarcely seem possible to them that all of the effects shown have been secured by the camera alone. Very many of the finest and most distinctive qualities of the graphic arts of painting, engraving, drawing and etching have been secured. Atmospheric effect of the most wonderful variety and charm have been reproduced, and some of the most striking and skillful composition, poetic imagination, values and even impressions of color could be found in an exhibition of paintings of high standing.
The standard for the work is high; no unskilful work has been hung. In the 271 prints, figure studies predominate, a fact that adds much to the human interest in the collection. Among the finest and most attractive effects are those that suggest strongly either the monotypes or the tinted color print. Sharply defined outlines are so rare as to be conspicuous, soft, hazy effects being the rule. Printing in dark tones with the light source centered, bombard-wise, on a single spot is very noticeable. The use of rough papers and bolting cloth screens heighten the resemblance to painting.

The place of honor has been given to the invitation exhibition of eighteen prints from the famous Photo Secessionist of New York. Of these Alfred Steiglitz has one, a woman in peasant dress and white cap, called "Watching for the Return," that has many of the qualities of a Dutch painting. "Ice Night" shows, in an impressionistic manner, an arch of interest, lacing bougts above a long stretch of deserted walk on a city boulevard with the figures of blurred street lights in the distance. The dramatic lighting of the figures in Edward J. Steichen's portraits of men is characteristically Dutch art. The woman in the foreground is represented by three of her tiny people, and the study of studies of mothers and children. "La Cigale," by Frank Eugene, is a fine nude study of a woman, and the study of a woman in a group by Alice Boughton on classic themes that have all of the purity, strength and simplicity of the best sculpture. Her other prints also show masterly handling and conception. Among the interesting groups are several from Chicago, including the strong, dark photographs of the boys of the street, and work by Edward L. Bourke, E. M. Blaine and Robert E. Weeks. Curtis Bell had a very interesting picture of two cats stretching up to reach something on a cupboard shelf. Interesting character studies of women are shown by George Doneshower, and there is a fine foreign flavor to W. Otto Emerson's prints of "Felix-Splinter of Franco" and "In the Land of Corot."

The Minneapolis club should congratulate itself on the fine showing made by local workers. Among the most notable of the prints are the group by Winifred C. Porter, that includes several fine portraits; "White Birch," an upright panel in brown by Carl T. Thayer; landscapes by C. F. Potter, Jr.; seashore and marine by H. E. Murdoch; a stunning large print of a Siwash Indian dugout, by C. J. Hibbard, and a group of gray atmospheric effects by John Haddon.
The exhibition will remain open for ten days, the hours being 10 a. m. to 10 p. m. The catalogue is a fine, illustrated one that is an attractive souvenir.

A SLEIGHRIDE CAMPAIGN
How Dr. D. Leonard Pratt Seeks Political Honors in Town of Towanda, Pa.
Dr. D. Leonard Pratt, formerly of Minneapolis, but now of Towanda, Pa., is seeking an office in Towanda by methods that are novel and that bring joy to the hearts of the young folk at least. The Towanda Reporter-Journal gives the following account of one of the features of the doctor's vigorous campaign:
"Dr. Leonard Pratt, a candidate for burgess of Towanda borough, Saturday afternoon he made between 500 and 600 Towanda school children very happy by giving them a sleigh ride. And not one of the whole number but went home a strong advocate of the doctor's claims to the head of the horse.
"Five big sleighs, three of them with the jolly crew for short trips about the borough. Tin horns were loudly tooted and young America was correspondingly happy. Every youngster was given a sack of candy."

It will cure you. But the ushers had dropped him on the sidewalk and the audience did not catch the rest of his remarks.
