LOOKS LIKE MURDER

Body of an Unknown Man Found Back of a Washington Ave. Saloon.

The Injuries Which Caused Death Practically Preclude Theory of Accident.

Weltering in a pool of blood, the body of an unknown man was found lying beneath the second landing of the stairs leading to the rooms over Loomis' saloon, 113 Washington avenue S. early this morning. Marks upon the head and other parts of the body would indicate that the man had been murdered, while the fact that but 50 cents were found upon his body points to robbery as well. The body was taken to the county morgue, where it awaits identification.

Chris Jamieson and Frank Martin were passing thru the alley at 5 o'clock this morning and stumbled over the body. They notified the police, who in turn called the coroner. An examination showed that the scalp on the right side of the head was cut loose and hung over the ear, while the skull appeared to be fractured over the left eye. Marks were also found upon the left side of the nose and one hand was badly lacerated. A hat, soaked with blood, was found on the doorstep leading to the rooms over Loomis' saloon. Blood was also found upon the stone door sill.

Robbery the Motive. It is believed that the man had a considerable sum of money and that he started to visit a gambling room and took the wrong stairs. His murderers were probably following him. He reached the door and found it locked. Here the murderers overtook him, struck him over the eye with a slung shot, robbed the body and dropped it over the landing into the alley below. This would explain the position occupied by the body, for had the man fallen over the railing his body would have been found nearer the center of the alley, instead of directly beneath the landing.

One thing that puzzles Coroner Williams and the officers is how the man came to have marks upon both sides of the head unless he was murdered. They point out that had he fallen over the railing accidentally, the injuries would only have been found on one side of the head, while the body shows wounds on both sides, either of which would have been sufficient to cause death. The blood on the steps cannot be accounted for upon the accident theory. The man was evidently a laboring man, a painter perhaps, as is indicated by his clothing. He was about 45, heavily built, dark complexioned and weighed about 200. He wore a dark mustache and had a heavy, wavy hair. No papers were found in his clothing.

BOUQUET FOR PARK BOARD

Melville Dewey of Albany, N. Y., Writes of His Handsome Illustrated Report.

The following notice by Melville Dewey, director of the New York state library at Albany, N. Y., will appear in an early number of Public Libraries:

WORTH SENDING FOR. The park commissioners of Minneapolis, under the presidency of Professor William W. Folwell, issue each year a beautiful and illustrated report, which every library at all interested in parks should send for. Among the many hundreds issued, I have seen none comparable to this in attractiveness, and have no doubt that libraries wishing to preserve their records should get it on application. It is most unusual to have the annual reports of a city department a work of art that would be prized in any private library.

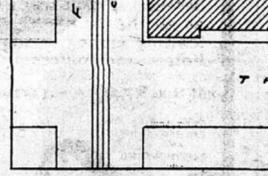

TYLER KEEPS SILENT

Man Who Was Knocked Down in Guaranty Building Makes No Statement.

A. E. Tyler, who is said to be employed by the Chamber of Commerce in its fight against the bucket shop men and who was arrested last fall charged with attempting to break into the offices of the Coe Commission company, was knocked down by an unknown man in the Guaranty building yesterday afternoon. It is thought that Tyler was attempting to test some telegraph wires leading to the building and that he was assaulted by an employee of the company owning the wires. Tyler refuses to make any statements and no arrests have been made.

DIAGRAM OF SUGGESTED COURTHOUSE PLAZA

Showing Armory and Auditorium at Rear of Open Space—From Plans by Bertrand & Chamberlin.

Bertrand & Chamberlin have submitted a design for the suggested plaza, armory and auditorium arrangement of the block of land bounded by Third and Fourth avenues, Fifth and Sixth streets, opposite the courthouse and city hall. The plan provides for a parked plaza on the Fifth street half of the block, while in one building shall be placed the armory and the auditorium, the latter adjoining Fourth avenue and the former Third avenue. It is suggested that almost dead walls may be provided for the three sides of the building facing the avenues and Sixth street, to shut out the noise of traffic. With heavy transverse walls, noise from the armory would be shut off so as not to interfere with entertainments in the auditorium. The designers have made the building face Fifth street and the plaza, so that

THEY WON'T GIVE UP

Aldermen and County Commissioners Will Refuse to Surrender Public Building.

They'll Urge That the Law Creating Building Commission Is Invalid.

When the new municipal building commission undertakes to assume control of the courthouse and city hall, it will be met with a gentle but firm refusal down the line. On one side will be the board of county commissioners and on the other will be the city council and each will decline to turn over the portions of the buildings respectively committed to their care to the municipal building commission or any other body.

An appeal to the courts will be resisted and should the new commission obtain possession it will be only after fighting every step of its way. Carping critics will say that the county commissioners and the aldermen are prompted by resentment over the law to deprive them of patronage. There are about twenty positions at the disposal of the county board and about ten for the county committee on public grounds and buildings. But aside from any consideration of patronage able lawyers contend that the commissioners and aldermen have the law behind them. It is urged that the act creating the municipal building commission is unconstitutional, because it is an amendment to the special act creating the old courthouse and city hall commission, which is still in complete control of the unfinished portions. The act is thus in contravention of the constitutional provisions prohibiting special legislation and lawyers say that it is not only special in effect, as relating only to Hennepin county, but it is special in form as well.

A majority of the members of the new commission sincerely hope that the claim will be sustained by the courts. They are not at all desirous to take charge of the big building and would have lobbied against the bill had the voting been going on in the legislature. Nevertheless, when the time comes it will be their duty to demand possession and in the event of opposition to take the matter into court.

FIGHT WITH EAGLES

Park Board's Live Specimens Resent the Friendly Advances of a Porter.

Only the Vigorous Use of a Club Saves Man From Serious Wounds.

The American Eagle again asserted its supremacy in no uncertain fashion yesterday. The particular specimens of the American bird which lived up to the traditions of their race were the gray eagles which make their winter quarters in the Old Curiosity Shop, at No. 10 Washington street N. The victim was Jesse Wiley, the colored porter, who with a badly lacerated arm, has concluded, that as a spread eagle orator he is not a success. The two eagles are wards of the park board during the summer and Wiley was trying to capture them to take them to Minneapolis park. When he entered the cage he addressed the birds in endearing terms to show there was no ill-feeling, while he hid a club behind him. The eagles suspected his motive and kept their eyes on the club. One of them made a feint to attack Wiley's attention and then the air was full of eagles and Wiley. The birds jammed Wiley into a corner of the cage and jumped on him with four feet, clawing and pecking at him in savage fury.

"Hit him with the club!" shouted an attendant to the bewildered and nearly smothered porter. Thus admonished, Wiley got elbow room and countered with his right. He landed on one eagle's beak and floored him. Another bold dove the second eagle to its corner and Wiley beat precipitate retreat from the cage. "I'm a good chicken catcher," said Wiley, with a grimace, as he started for a doctor, "but when it comes to eagle's, 'scuse me. Both eagles are now at Minneapolis and one is slowly recuperating from a bruised head.

SUES FOR $500,000

New York, April 29.—On the ground that the war tax imposed on the gross receipts of the sugar refineries was unconstitutional, the American Sugar Refining company brought suit against the government to recover $500,000 which it paid in taxes on business amounting to $21,000,000. This suit was filed under protest from June 13, 1898, to July 1, 1902, when the law was repealed. The papers in the case have been served on Internal Revenue collector Jordan, in Brooklyn, and argument will be heard by United States Judge Thomas within a few days.

WORK FOR JOHNSTON

Board of Control Architect Will Superintend Construction of University Buildings.

Agreement Between Board and Regents Is Yet to Be Worked Out in Detail.

Charles H. Johnston of St. Paul, the salaried architect of the state board of control, will superintend the construction of new buildings at the state university and agricultural school hereafter. The school of mines building will be completed under direction of the architect who made the plans, but the new dormitory at the farm, the biological laboratory, and the buildings to be constructed with the $250,000 under the Lightly bill, will be planned by the board's architect and built under his direction.

The agreement between the regents and the board of control made Monday was only informal and the details will have to be worked out. The board of control's head accountant will soon visit the university and go over the books, bringing the accounting department into uniformity with other state institutions.

The board of control is not likely to assert all of its powers. Under the ruling of the attorney general, the board could name all the employees of the university not engaged in educational work. This ruling was made in the case of the normal schools but was not taken advantage of. The board will not attempt to supervise all purchases, but will have a strict accounting of everything and will know just what supplies are going to the institution. There is no disposition on the part of the board of control to hamper or embarrass the university. The task is not at all to their liking, but being charged with the responsibility for the university finances, they are endeavoring to do what they are being properly managed.

KNIGHTS TEMPLARS HERE

Rain Prevents Parade—The Attendance Is Very Large—Election This Afternoon.

One hundred and fifty delegates, representing all the twenty-nine commanderies in the state, were in attendance when the thirty-eighth annual convocation of the Grand Commandery of the Knights Templar of Minnesota began its morning session to-day at the asylum of Minneapolis Mounted Commandery No. 23, Nicolet avenue and Thirty-first street. The attendance was the largest in the history of the commandery.

The projected parade of local knights thru downtown streets in honor of the visitors was abandoned because of the rain. But the grand members rode to their place of meeting in a special electric car which they entered at the West Hotel.

They were welcomed at the Minneapolis asylum by Commander Thomas F. Quibby of the Mounted Commandery. Grand Commander Roland H. Hartley in his annual address congratulated the knights upon the growth and prosperity of the North Star Templars.

TO FEEL BOVINE PULSES

The New Livestock Sanitary Board Is Appointed by the Governor.

The new state live stock sanitary board, which will relieve the state board of health of the care of domestic animals' diseases, was announced to-day. The appointments were decided on by Governor Van Sant before leaving for St. Louis, but could not be announced until this afternoon when the appointments were all received. The new board is made up as follows: John J. Furlong, Mower county, for five years.

Dr. M. H. Reynolds of St. Anthony Park, Ramsey county, for four years. Dr. Charles E. Cotton of Minneapolis, for three years.

Forest Henry, Olmsted county, two years. W. W. P. McConnell, state dairy and food commissioner, for one year.

These names were all recommended at a conference of the stock men and veterinarians. Dr. Reynolds and Dr. Cotton are veterinarians, and the other three breeders of live stock.

AN EXPOTRACT PARK

M. W. Savage Will Devote Part of His Purchase to Public Use.

He Has Bought Entire Property and Will Preserve the Auditorium.

M. W. Savage has bought the Minneapolis exposition property. He will preserve the auditorium for large gatherings and will retain the first floor for such indoor fairs as poultry exhibitions, live stock shows, etc. He will improve the entire vacant frontage on Main street, running to Bank street, as a public park, in recognition of the historic interest of the spot in connection with the discovery of St. Anthony falls. The

The building will be put in repair at once and will be occupied before fall. It is understood that the price was about $65,000.

The exposition was bought from the present owners through the agency of Thomas A. Jamieson, who long ago suggested the site as an ideal one for the International Stock Food business, in which Mr. Savage is engaged.

To Retain Auditorium.

Mr. Savage will spend about $40,000 on the building. He will maintain the auditorium, not with the purpose of cutting out the new music hall proposition, but to provide a large hall for big gatherings and conventions as long as required. He will construct direct entrances from three sides of the auditorium, doing away with the present tortuous exits.

The first floor will be retained for the accommodation of large horse, stock, poultry and automobile shows. With the exception of the printing establishment, this floor will be free from wall to wall. The manufacturing business will be confined to the second and third floors of the present art gallery building attached to the exposition.

On the second floor will be the largest office in the northwest. In dimensions it will be 50 by 300 feet. The large force of stenographers, clerks and bookkeepers will be housed in a room which for light and air will not be surpassed in the country. It will be built on the river side of the building with the entire west wall forming a glass wall.

Stock rooms will take up portion of the building. The building will have 600,000 square feet of floor space. Some of this will be devoted to storerooms. Mr. Savage said to-day that he wanted the remainder of the room to grow in. The business has oversteered the capacity of the present factory and it is expected that some time will elapse before the exposition will be outgrown.

Mr. Savage's idea is first to make the building safe, next to put it in presentable shape and lastly to arrange it for his business. The only sign which will be placed on the building will, if placed at all, be on the roof; the river side of the building will not be defaced.

A Park Feature.

Mr. Savage's public spirit crops out in his determination to improve and preserve as a semi-public park the valuable frontage on Main street.

Minneapolis will profit much by this acquisition by Mr. Savage. The first thing he will do will be to lease all over the world one million lithograph pictures of this new home for the International Stock Food company. This will make Minneapolis famous, or as Mr. Savage expresses it, "will not hurt Minneapolis any." His will be the largest industrial plant under one roof in the northwest.

Plans for Social Betterment. Mr. Savage will seize this opportunity to develop social or industrial betterment plans, which he has had in mind for some time. The factory will have a force of 200 employees. Of this number at least 200 are girls, 110 of whom are in the office. It is expected that with the natural growth of the business the women employees will number in the neighborhood of 500. To provide entertainment for this large number along the lines advocated by the Institute for Social Service of New York, Mr. Savage will devote considerable space in his new building, and it is expected that this will work improvement in contiguous sections of the east side.

During the summer or outdoor months the park on the river front of the building with its grass and flower plots and with its magnificent view of the river and falls, will be a place of recreation. In addition there will be provided artistically arranged reading, rest, gymnastic rooms and lunchrooms. In the reading-room will be periodicals and newspapers; in the rest-rooms will be coats and lounging divans; in the gymnastic room will be apparatus. The lunchrooms will be made thoroughly up to date, with the latest accessories for the comfort of employees who bring their meals or stenographers at the factory.

Another plan in mind is to arrange entertainments for the employees, perhaps during the noon hour, or in the evenings. These will take the form of concerts, popular lectures and the like.

H. I. Marks Arrived Yesterday Prepared to Buy Building.

M. W. Savage bought the exposition building on the river front of the H. I. Marks of New York, formerly of Minneapolis, arrived yesterday with instructions to purchase the property, but he arrived too late. Mr. Savage had already closed his deal.

A New York syndicate had had its eyes on the property from the time it became generally known that the big structure was for sale. As soon as it was announced that Mr. Savage had failed to secure the property several weeks ago, the New York people set out to acquire the building.

Mr. Savage is to be congratulated on securing the building," said Mr. Marks. "Minneapolis is now the recognized stock food center of the country, and the renewal of interest in the thoroughbred horse here with the purchase of Dan Patch and other celebrated colines has opened the eyes of outsiders to the possibilities of this city as a great horse market. A big annual show here, such as is now attracting the attention of the second and third class cities, would do much to stimulate the breeding of blooded horses here. We would like very much to have gained a foothold. We may yet arrange for the erection of a big structure here for the accommodation of horse shows and other big spectacles which require an immense closed space. Mr. Marks, who operates a booking agency in New York and is an all-around theatrical promoter, is contemplating the erection of another vaudeville theater here. He already has several sites in mind. He says there is no city in the country which offers better opportunities for a theatrical venture of that character than Minneapolis at present. It would be an easy matter, he thinks, to establish a circuit with leading cities, providing an other theater can be constructed in St. Paul, so that companies could make both cities at one jump. He leases three theaters in Philadelphia and has theatrical interests in other cities.
