BOIL DRINKING WATER

The West Side Pumps Are Again Distributing Sewage.

Supervisor J. H. McConnell was compelled to start the West Side pumping station yesterday as the water in the reservoir was going very rapidly and would not hold out until the damages at the Hamden Place station could be repaired. The water department is to use the west station as the water in the river at this point is badly contaminated by sewage. The advice of chemists is that the water should be boiled before being used.

TO SHARE HIS HOME

Ernest Nelson Adopts a Baby Upon the Day of His Marriage.

Says He Was an Orphan Once and Wants to Help Now.

Child adoption is not usually a part of the marriage ceremony even in the perfect month of June, when Cupid is responsible for all sorts of variations upon this fundamental theme. Nevertheless, a wedding with this unique attachment was solemnized in the Hennepin courthouse this week.

Among the throng of happy bridegrooms who besieged the marriage license counter of the county clerk's office, there appeared a sturdy son of Scandinavia, accompanied by the young woman he had chosen for a life partner. Neither the young man nor the bride-to-be showed a decisive mastery of the idiosyncrasies of the English language, but they succeeded in communicating to the clerk their names, Ernest Nelson and Laura Larson, and the fact that they expected to make a home for themselves on a farm in Kenosha county.

When the $2 worth of life-long happiness had been secured by the young farmer, he confided to Clerk Switzer that he wanted the final ceremony performed without delay, and was then referred to Judge Holt of the municipal court, to whose office the seekers after marital bliss repaired forthwith, where the ceremony was performed in Swedish. When the tie that binds had been noted by the court, the newly made husband turned to his honor and said:

"Can you tell me the address of Mr. Savage, the man who finds homes for orphans?"

"Why, yes," replied the court. "But what do you want with him?"

"We want to adopt a child and take it home with us."

"But, my dear man," suggested the judge in amazement, "why don't you wait a year or two before you take this step?"

"Well, I don't want to wait, I was an orphan and I have always said that as soon as I had a home of my own I would help some poor orphan, and now I am going to do it."

The judge was still surprised, but convinced that this man meant to make a practical demonstration of living up to the Golden Rule. The desired address was given to remain in the court, and the newly made husband was given Godspeed and he on his way.

FREE MISSIONERS MEET

The Annual Convention of Swedish Churchmen Held at St. Paul.

The annual meeting of the Swedish Free Mission is being held this week at Sjoberg's hall, 875 Payne avenue, St. Paul. The members had a lively debate yesterday on the question of organizing the mission along the conventional lines followed by other church denominations, but by a decisive majority those voting decided to remain in the Free Mission organization of independent congregations.

Some of the leaders argued that more effective work could be done if a certain amount of organization would be maintained, but the great body would have nothing of this kind of talk.

Chairman, G. A. Young, Chicago; vice chairman, A. C. Leagren, Windom, Minn.; secretary, J. H. Johnson, Chicago; and three others, John Martenson, Chicago, and A. Halen, Holdrege, Neb. Gus F. Johnson, A. C. Leagren and A. A. Anderson were appointed a program committee. The committee will report to-day. G. A. Young of Chicago was appointed director of home missions to succeed P. J. Elmquist of Chicago, who resigned.

HEARST'S STRENGTH GROWING

Clarence Blethen Says the West Regards Him With Marked Favor.

Clarence B. Blethen, managing editor of the Seattle Daily Times and an ex-Blethen are at the West hotel, on their way to the east. Mrs. Blethen is seeking health. Mr. Blethen will confer with the leaders of the National League of Democratic Clubs. He is a national committee man in this organization.

Mr. Blethen says about the most interesting fact in a political way in his section is the growth of the Hearst presidential boom. The coast, he says, is showing a decided preference for the newspaper magnate, and his popularity is growing steadily at Seattle. Political leaders here are not fully accepted him, but there is a strong undercurrent in his favor.

PRICES TOO HIGH

Glenwood People Want Too Much for a Fish Hatchery

The Commission Inspects Properties but Will Not Purchase Just Yet.

"There will be no fish hatchery at Glenwood, unless the people of that vicinity put a more reasonable price on their land."

Executive Agent Fullerton of the state game and fish commission declared himself positively this morning on the subject. The commission will return from their trip of inspection, very much disgusted. The cheapest quotation they could get on land was $79 an acre, and the commission says $1 an acre would be high for the land they want, which is low and swampy.

The commissioners are also sore over the treatment they received. They were not allowed rooms at the hotels, but were quartered in private houses and paid their own heavy and boat hire.

There will probably be forty acres in that tract finally agreed upon as the commission thinks it can scarcely get along with less. Especial attention will be paid to the propagation of wall-eyed pike and bass at the new hatchery.

The establishment of a hatchery at Glenwood with several men in attendance will have the effect of reducing the number of edible fish that are allowed to spoil there by the fishermen who take them simply on account of the sport.

Last summer, on one day, according to the statement of a credible witness, 300 wall-eyed pike spoiled at the dock and had to be burned. Lake Minnetonka is teeming with pike and bass and gives fine returns to true anglers who frequently catch the legal limit—fifty fish a day—to each person.

NEED NATIONAL ACT

James B. Dill's Solution of the Evils of Bad State Corporation Laws.

Address Delivered Before the "U" Law Alumni at Their Annual Banquet.

A national corporation law must be enacted to check the evil tendencies of the corporation laws in many states. This was the conclusion announced last night by James B. Dill of New York in an address at the Hotel Nicolet after the annual dinner of the Law Alumni association of the state university. Mr. Dill's subject was "The Evils of Our Corporation Laws."

The tendency of trust or corporation laws, said Mr. Dill, is bad. Delaware and a dozen other states have followed the evil example of New Jersey in enacting the New Jersey incorporation law with all its errors of omission and commission. The object of such legislation has been to increase the revenues of some state regardless of the national welfare. The remedy cannot be looked for in state laws. They are enacted with a desire for state revenue. A national industrial act is the solution. This act should include a provision for publicity, a publicity, however, for those entitled to know. In this approving President Roosevelt's policy Mr. Dill praised the Roosevelt incorporation law introduced in the New York legislature three years ago.

After Mr. Dill's address, which was warmly applauded, President Cyrus Northrop of the university, thanked the speaker on behalf of the university and the alumni association. The president added that business success, thru corporations or otherwise, might be bought at too high a price. "People are trying to do too much. They are living at a rate of exhaustion that is unnecessary. I stand as a humble pleader for the divine enjoyment of life instead of the eternal worry."

Frank Arnold of St. Paul, was elected president of the law alumni; H. B. Mercer, Minneapolis, vice-president; Robert Taylor, St. Paul, treasurer. A resolution was adopted making the Minneapolis Alumni Weekly the official paper of the association.

Alpha Phi Dinner. The annual dinner of the Alpha Phi sorority of the state university was served last night in the ladies' ordinary at the Nicolet house. Three score college girls were present. They responded wittily to the invitations of a toastmaster and sang merry little ditties in bolsherois soprano.

BUSINESS, NOT BOOM

Market for Minnesota and North Dakota Lands in a Healthy State.

H. S. Judson, at West Hotel, Says Business Is Now Upon the Soundest Basis.

That there is not any boom in North Dakota and Minnesota farm lands, but that there is a legitimate demand certain to increase, is the opinion of experienced land agents such as Thomas J. Baird of North Dakota and H. S. Judson, formerly of Morris, Minn. At the West hotel this morning Mr. Baird said that the market for North Dakota lands was notably "healthy." It shows no signs of undue excitement and has not been unfavorably affected by the recent rush to Canada.

"No, there is not the least danger," Mr. Judson said, "that the farm land business is going to be overdone in Minnesota or North Dakota. The twin city jobbers and bankers have often asked me lately when our land boom is coming to an end. I have to tell them that there is not any boom. The facts are that business in good farming lands in Minnesota and North Dakota is now upon the soundest basis. We have first-class lands to sell, we can sell them at moderate prices and we have a steady supply of customers."

"These customers represent the natural increase of population in the middle west. It does not matter what panics may come, what may happen to business in general, the farmers of Illinois, Iowa and adjoining states will continue to prosper as they have prospered thru the hard times that followed 1893. The sons of these farmers will be growing up and wanting to get farms of their own. Farmers themselves, or their tenants, will be wanting to go elsewhere, if they can get good lands at low prices. Thus our supply of customers is constant."

"The lands are fertile. They are assured of a sufficient rainfall. They are close at hand to the great trunk railroads. Experience has shown that the lands can be bought at a profit by the actual cultivator so long as they don't cost more than $40 an acre, and we are selling them at no more than $15 and $20 an acre."

"It is easy to suggest that our customers might drift away from us, that they might be attracted by cheap lands elsewhere, but there are no lands equally good to be had at the same prices. I have lately made three trips to the Pacific coast. I have seen plenty of good land out there, land that did not lack moisture, but such land could not be bought for less than $40 an acre. I've seen more land that is ditched for irrigation. This land will be very productive, no doubt. But it will cost $60 an acre, three times our price, not to speak of annual charges for water supply. Then, of course, there is an abundance of inferior land on the market. The west is full of grazing lands unfit for agriculture, but it is not such land that any of our customers are looking for."

Walter Jones Says He Knows Where to Come to Find Material for a Chorus.

Distinction About the Minnesota Girl—State Acquires Fame for Fair Women.

Walter Jones is here to pick a chorus. Minneapolis, which furnishes the world with a goodly share of its flour, and Minnesota, which deals in its immense wheat crop to all mankind, are to be made famous for their fair women. Henceforth—on the say-so of the man who speaks with authority on such subjects from a life-long experience—theatrical managers when they want a really superior aggregation of stage beauties, will hit them to the four city.

There's a bloom to the cheek of the Minnesota girl, says Mr. Jones. "And when I say Minneapolis, I mean Minnesota, for this is the focus that you find nowhere else in the country. The girls here are so brightly vivacious with their sparkling eyes which are the fruit of this invigorating climate, and what's somewhat more to the point, they have a graceful carriage which appeals to me as quite distinctive of the town. Every one knows, of course, that Minneapolis has all along furnished her full share of the chorus girl contingent of the big musical comedies, comic operas and other theatrical aggregations. That fact has finally directed the attention of the managerial world this way, and from now on, myself setting the example, you need not be surprised to see managers continually on the search for ensemble material in these parts."

Mr. Jones, who is at the West Hotel, will be in Minneapolis most of the summer and will be associated with Dick Ferris of the Lyceum, altho it is not known whether he is to be seen occasionally with the stock company for the summer season at the playhouse. Mr. Jones, who has been associated for the last two seasons as O'Shaughnessy, with the big musical comedy, "The Chaperons," was twice in Minneapolis. He was primarily to take a rest and to prepare for a big production in which he is to be starred next season, the book of which has already been written by a famous playwright.
