

SPORTS. GO AFTER RECORD Dan Patch Will Try to Lower His Mark at Minnesota State Fair.

Champion Pacer Has Been Secured to Go Against Time at Hamline.

The management of the Minnesota state fair is in the midst of the announcement of a star attraction for the opening day of the fair of 1930. Thru R. F. Jones, representing M. W. Savage, the fastest pacer in the world is to make an exhibition race, but an attempt to lower his world's record of 1:59 1-5.

Dan Patch has been secured for the Minnesota state fair after some weeks' negotiations, rendered necessary by the fact that he is much in demand at eastern race tracks.

When the fourth round for the western golf championship was decided over the links of the Euclid club at Cleveland yesterday afternoon, H. Chandler Egan, the present title holder, and his cousin, Walter E. Egan, both of the Exmoor Country club of Chicago, were among the four survivors who were slated to battle for the ownership of the coveted trophy today.

EGAN PICKED TO WIN Western Champion Expected to Win Title Again in Tournament at Cleveland.

National Champion Louis James Is Put Out in the Fourth Round.

When the fourth round for the western golf championship was decided over the links of the Euclid club at Cleveland yesterday afternoon, H. Chandler Egan, the present title holder, and his cousin, Walter E. Egan, both of the Exmoor Country club of Chicago, were among the four survivors who were slated to battle for the ownership of the coveted trophy today.

The surprise of the day came when National Champion Louis James met defeat at the hands of E. Brown of Cleveland. James played miserable golf all thru the contest. This brings Brown again into Walter Egan in the semi-finals, as Egan easily defeated J. Sellers of Chicago yesterday afternoon.

The scores: Third Round—Dr. D. P. Fredericks, Oil City, beat N. H. Hoke, Cleveland, 7 up and 5.

Fourth Round—Raymond Russell beat D. P. Fredericks, 3 up and 2.

On account of the absence from town of the best Minnieds, the plan of sending a country players, the plan of sending a twin city golf team to play at Glenview, Chicago, to-morrow, has been given up.

C. N. Powers of Decatur, Ill., did some remarkable shooting at the Cumberland Gun club interstate trap shoot at Syracuse, N. Y., yesterday. In the mixed target and live bird events Powers scored only eight misses in 50 shots.

The Surrey club last night hammered the Philadelphia cricket team at Kensington Oval, London. Lord Alton, president of the club, in a speech highly complimented the Americans on their splendid play.

Herbert Knowlton, who graduated from the East high school in June and who was preparing to enter the university this fall, broke his leg at Syracuse, N. Y., a few days ago, and a promising football player is lost to the varsity team.

IN THE PRIZE RING James J. Corbett is putting on the finishing touches to his long course of training. All who have seen him this week declare that he was in such good condition. He has gained weight and strength and seems to have lost nothing of his old-time agility.

A dispatch from Harbin Springs quotes Jeffrey as saying that he proposes to go for his man from the start and keep at him without affording him an opportunity to rest.

Jack Herman, matchmaker of the International Athletic club of Fort Erie, posted $2,500 last night with Al Smith of New York to bind a contest between Bob Fitzsimmons and George Gardner.

YOST SCORES NEW RULES

Says Changes Will Slow the Game Up and Defeat Their Purpose.

Coach "Hurry-up" Yost of Michigan yesterday came out against the new football rules in an open statement. He says that instead of a step forward the new rules will be a decided step backward; that the purpose of the new code will be defeated, and that there will not be nearly so much end running as there was formerly.

"I am opposed to the new rules," he said. "I think they will not advance the game any. Instead, I believe they will slow it up considerably and will defeat the purpose for which they are intended. This ruling about seven in the line is all nonsense. That is a very old style to play.

Why, we learned that when we first began to play the game. Princeton is the only team that has stuck to it, and look how much ground they have gained against their opponents during the last few years.

"I believe that six men in the line all the time would be a good idea. For my part I would like to see any changes in the game that would help the sport, but I do not see how these are going to do it.

"I think that the western coaches should get together and discuss the matter, as it seems to be very important. At least, I believe that the new rules should be represented when new rules are adopted. There is not a representative on the committee west of Cornell."

Art Curtis, coach of the University of Wisconsin team, went to the head of the lakes on the still hunt for players and got around very quietly. It was some time before he was discovered, although some university boys finally happened upon him at Duluth. He is making the rounds of this northern country and, as he puts it, not on a vacation. He has some good material in sight.

The indications are that Fitzsimmons will fight Gardner in the east, as up to date not one of the California clubs has succeeded in securing him for a fight.

Hermann's offer of $15,000, it is likely that upon the arrival of Ben Jordan in this country Hermann will try and secure the fight between the Englishman and Young Corbett.

Snow was picked to win from Harry Belden, but the local man put up a good fight, although, like the Belden-Hunt contest, this match was comparatively one-sided.

Belden's cross court won him many points, but he lacked accuracy and sent just as many into the net as over it.

Snow's net game was a revelation, and once he got to the net Belden found it almost impossible to pass him.

Snow took the first two games, but Belden got the third, a love game, while the next two games, giving him a slight lead, but Snow captured the next four sets. In the second set Belden ran the score to 4-3 after losing the first two games, but Snow took the next three games, the set and match, in such easy fashion as to give the impression that he had been playing with his opponent.

The match between Waldner and Ward Burton was too one-sided to be interesting. Burton played good tennis, but Waldner proved his superiority at all points of the game. Werner, the only local man to win, clearly outplayed his opponent, Larned, who the Lake Forest man played a much better game than he put up against Northrop Tuesday. Werner's game strengthened the impression that he is the coming player. He excelled in cross courts and lobs, playing much the same style of game as the younger Belden, and playing it with more accuracy, altho not with as much speed.

In the semifinals to-day Snow was pitted against Werner, and Waldner against Hunt. Snow was conceded the only way to defeat him is to outspeed him, and Waldner, who is playing faster than any man on the courts, has a better chance against the Californian than perhaps, even Snow. If these predictions are fulfilled, it will bring Waldner and Snow together in the semifinals, and as Snow defeated Waldner at Chicago, he is now regarded as the probable winner of the tournament.

Besides the semifinals in singles, the second and semifinal rounds in doubles were scheduled for to-day, and several matches in the consolation event were to be played. The finals in all three competitions will be played to-morrow. Yesterday's results:

LOCALS DROP OUT

Only One Minneapolis Player Won His Match in Tennis Tournament—ment Yesterday.

Hunt Beats George Belden and Snow Downs Harry Belden—Werner Defeats Larned.

Three of the four local men were put out in the third round of the Northwesters tennis tournament at Deephaven yesterday. A. C. Snow defeated Harry Belden, R. C. Hunt beat George Belden, and L. H. Waldner downed Ward Burton. The only Minneapolis player to win his watch was Neil Werner, who handily defeated W. C. Larned of Lake Forest, Ill.

The presence of three former northwestern champions, Snow and the two Beldens, and of two runners-up, Waldner and Hunt, added considerable interest to the day's play. Past tennis was a feature of all four matches, altho the contests were more one-sided than the spectators had hoped.

The matches in which the two Beldens were pitted against Hunt and Snow were the feature of the afternoon. George Belden was expected to give the Pacific coast champion a hard battle, but Hunt had an easier time than the score indicates. Belden was clearly not the Belden of old. He had lost much of his speed, and also much of his accuracy. Hunt played a clever game, both in the back court and at the net. His placing, as usual, was ready in its accuracy, and he showed great agility in covering the court. Belden's back hand stroke was weak, and Hunt played for it consistently.

Belden started with a rush, taking the two first games easily, but Hunt got the third and fourth, evening it up. Belden got the fifth, lost the sixth and seventh and won the eighth, making the score four all. Hunt then took the next two games and the set, 6-4. In the second set Belden seemed tired, and altho he won three of the first five games, Hunt took the next four, giving him the set and match.

Snow was picked to win from Harry Belden, but the local man put up a good fight, although, like the Belden-Hunt contest, this match was comparatively one-sided.
