NEW WAY TO TREAT HAY FEVER

No Stomach Dosing—Just Breathe Hyomel—Stops Sneezing and Smarting.

Vogel Bros.' Drug Co. are recommending to their customers, as a cure for hay fever, Hyomel.

It is claimed for this remedy that it stops the spasmodic paroxysms of sneezing, the smarting and running of the eyes and nose, and other acute symptoms of this disease.

Many persons have been cured of hay fever by Hyomel and its inventor professes to be able to prevent both the occurrence of the annual attacks and to arrest the progress of the disease when in the most chronic form.

Among those who have been cured by Hyomel are J. F. Forbes, chief dispatcher B. & M. R. McCook, Neb., who writes: "I have never had relief from any remedy for hay fever, even temporarily, until I used Hyomel. I will always recommend it whenever occasion offers."

A. Hamlin, Westford, Mass., writes: "Hyomel cured me of hay fever in one week's time. I consider it a duty to tell others who suffer from this disease."

These endorsements are samples of hundreds that have been received by the manufacturers of Hyomel, but Vogel Bros.' Drug Co.'s offer to refund the money if Hyomel does not do all that is claimed for it. It is the strongest proof that can be offered as to the reliance they place upon Hyomel to cure hay fever.

A WEDDING AT NOON

The Garman-Foster Ceremony Takes Place at the Bride's Home.

The Engagement Announced of Miss Grace Cosgrove, a Popular U. of M. Girl.

The wedding of Miss Paulina Foster, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Foster, and Dr. James Edwin Garman took place to-day at high noon at the residence of the bride's parents, 700 East Fourteenth street.

Palms and sweet peas were arranged in the hall with sword ferns. The parlors were in green and white, sweet peas, palms and ferns being used. The wide bow windows where the ceremony took place was banked high with palms, while fern clusters about the base of the bower. Vases filled with sweet peas were arranged thru the rooms and the chandeliers were festooned with smilax. The gloves were a green and white. Red was the prevailing color in the dining-room and a large basket of green filled with deep red roses stood on the table. Palms and ferns were massed on the sideboard.

Miss Louise Vaughan played the "Lohengrin" march as the bride with her father descended to the foot of the stairs where the bridegroom and the officiating minister, Rev. P. A. Cool met them and led the way to the altar. During the ceremony Miss Vaughan played a beautiful piece from Jocelyn and as the young people turned to receive the guests Mendelssohn's wedding march was sounded.

The bride wore a gown of Russian batists fashioned with fagoting and lace. The yoke on the waist and that on the skirt was fagoting and lace and extended in a trail down the front of the dress. Her hair and tucks finished the skirt around the bottom. She carried a shower bouquet of white sweet peas.

After the ceremony, which was witnessed by a gathering of friends and relatives, a reception was given.

Dr. and Mrs. Garman left this afternoon for a short trip. After September 10 they will be at home in Chicago. The bride wore a suit of blue venetian cloth strapped with braid and finished with tiny cloth buttons. She wore a white linen blouse beneath the jacket and a hat to match the suit.

The Struggle for Existence.

The prominence of this theory in the explanation of the growth of the animal kingdom has led some people to believe that nature is fundamentally cruel. As a matter of fact, very few actual conflicts occur in nature. Animals, in the face of danger, will warn each other and fight together for self-preservation. Trees, in growing, do not kill each other, although one tree is sure to get ahead of the rest. Men, if successful, do not have to injure others, and their progress is due to greater ability and better work. In the effort to get ahead, golden grain belt beer is almost a necessity, for it builds up the body and gives one the strength to work. You need it, every one needs it.

THINGS WORTH KNOWING

Bits of Scrapbook Wisdom on Various Household Topics.

An imported novelty for the dressing table is a little round tray upon which rests a chamis pouch. This has a silver neck and a top which screws on. Minute perforations in the chamis permit a delicate dust of the face powder filling the pouch, to escape when the puff is used.

Dinner and dessert services in china are shown in glass, fish, fruit and floral designs, and many of them can be had in what is termed "open stock," out of which it is easy to "match" sets when pieces are accidentally broken.

Pickle dishes and salad sets are attractively modeled after cabbage and grape or other leaves, while fruit and berry dishes show clusters of small fruits or berries, either fired in the surface or pinned in relief, as natural as life.

Stern philosophers, as well as poets, have been known never to eat a meal without some sort of flower on the table. The old Franklin would have some-thing green and telling of nature on the breakfast table, even tho' it were only a handful of grass blades in a glass bowl.

Ices are attractively molded to simulate small cantaloupes, tiny baskets of strawberries, ears of corn with the green husks drawn back, peaches, pineapples or half grape bananas (all in natural colors) and are served in glass boats or on shell-shaped crystal plates.

What is known as colonial glass is in great favor and is shown in all the quaint designs of that period, but for those who cannot afford expensive glassware the molded or ordinary glass may be had in many beautiful designs. It is as "clear as crystal," shows up well, is serviceable and yet is so cheap that the housekeeper feels no anxiety as regards breakage. It is much the best for the average summer home.

Berries should not be kept long or in boxes in the refrigerator, nor peaches or apricots. Pears, apples, melons and grapes take no harm by being in the refrigerator for some hours before they are to be eaten. None of these should be kept in any damp place long. All should be eaten fresh, unless they are removed from the refrigerator. Celery, salads of all sorts, cauliflower, tomatoes, peas, beans and other succulent vegetables may be stored for a day or two in the refrigerator and be none the worse, but rather the better. Potatoes, onions, turnips, carrots, etc., should be kept dry and cool—not cold.
