PLAN A SUCCESS

Summer Sunday School Work—Plymouth Congregational Church's Reviewed.

The second season of the new plan of summer Sunday school work has closed at Plymouth church. The entire school was conducted in turn by Mrs. W. A. Durst, Mrs. E. A. Strong and Margaret Herbert. For the thirteen Sundays the older classes were instructed in missionary topics, yesterday's address being on the Hull house work in Chicago by Miss Catherine Squires of the Bethel settlement of Plymouth church. Mrs. C. F. Sawyer spoke of the "Isles of the Sea," "Japan" and "General Booth" were other subjects. For the senior class a study in comparative religions was given. Prominent speakers made addresses. Dr. Mary B. Damon was the originator of the plan and it has been elaborated by Harrington Beard. It is expected that as the plan becomes better understood it will be taken up by other churches to obviate difficulties in connection with the summer scarcity of teachers and the season's irregularity in attendance by the pupils.

PAYS $112 FOR $10

Excessive Interest Exacted From a Poor Man for a $10 Loan.

He Is Now Threatened With the Loss of His Household Goods.

Having borrowed $10 and having paid $112 as interest on the same, Joseph C. Clark, an aged invalid of no means at all and a family to support, is now threatened with the loss of his household goods if he does not pay the principal sum of his loan and accrued interest. The case is one which appeals strongly to those familiar with the circumstances, and such persons think it is time that officers were looking after those who prey upon the poor to learn whether there are not cases besides that of Clark. The story of the Clark case is a pitiful one. Clark and his family reside at 154 Lyndale avenue N. Clark is an old man and is slowly dying of consumption. He is without means and his wife and step-daughter to support. For five years he has been paying to W. H. Adamson, 628 Boston block, money. He has paid $112 for a $10 loan and now the monthly payments of $3 have ceased the money lender threatens with Shylock tenacity to foreclose on the poor man's little stock of household furniture. Clark has a local attorney, has been interested in the case, however, and trouble seems to be in store for Mr. Adamson, if he persists.

Clark's Own Story.

Mr. Clark told the story to a Journal reporter and backed up his statements by papers and receipts, essentially as follows: "I have been a sick man for many years. I have been unable to work more than a part of the time and then at very poor wages. I have my wife and stepdaughter to support and have often been so hard up that I did not know just where my next meal was coming from. In April, 1898, I was out of work and was very destitute. I didn't have money to buy bread. In my desperation I went to Mr. Adamson, the money lender. I got from him $10 in return for which I gave him my note for $12 payable in thirty days and a mortgage on my household goods.

"Up to December, 1902, I paid Adamson $3 every month or $12 in all. These payments have been made in small amounts and were all I could possibly afford. When I was behind he would keep hounding me until I paid and I simply didn't have to give up the money for fear he would take away my furniture.

"Finally, last December I couldn't pay and that was all that was left of my money. He sent a man to me and said that if I didn't pay he would foreclose on my furniture and take it all away from me. I was scared, but couldn't give the money. A little while ago I went to see Mr. Crane and he is now going to take care of the case for me. I don't know what will be done as I don't understand anything about law but I know that Adamson's law has come to my place several times, Saturday was the last, and has even tried to break into the house to take my furniture. I won't give up unless I have to. What could we do without it?"

The old man was nearly in tears while telling his troubles and Mr. Crane had to comfort him with the assurance: "It is all right now. I will watch the case for you. Don't worry. He can't hurt you."

Adamson Threatens.

When the attorney went to see the money lender about the case Mr. Adamson assumed a haughty and insolent air and he had "rights" and intimated that he was not thru with the case yet and that he would get the furniture all right.

POTATO ROT NOT GENERAL

Crop Will Be Large Enough to Meet Demands, Says S. H. Hall.

S. H. Hall, the Minneapolis potato man, takes a more optimistic view of the potato situation than is shown in the last weekly crop report of the Northern Pacific that potatoes are rotting. Mr. Hall has just returned from the field and does not believe that the rot is so general as is shown in the report. He says that the general crop of the country will be sufficient to take care of all demands, and that the rot is probably no more than a bushel or more here.

WANT TO COME IN

Many Private Bankers Are Getting Ready to Incorporate Under the State Laws.

Recent Criticism on Their Immunity From Law Prompts the Course Taken.

Private bankers of Minnesota are beginning to think seriously of coming under the state laws and getting the benefit of the greater confidence state banks enjoy. The recent failure of several private banks and the criticisms that followed are responsible for the changed feeling. Formerly there were two private banks at Montgomery, Minn. One, the Farmers & Merchants, owned by George S. Brainerd, failed disastrously. The other has now incorporated as the First State Bank of Montgomery, with $10,000 capital. John Sheehy is president. Several other private institutions are about to incorporate. Private banks have an advantage in greater latitude of operation and a low taxable valuation, but bankers as well as their depositors recognize that an institution is safer when its loans are properly limited and inspected by a competent examiner. The First State Bank of New York Mills, a new institution, has incorporated with $10,000 capital.

CHANCE FOR "GUEFFERS"

Special Course in Gasoline Engineering Is Offered at Y. M. C. A. This Fall.

The engineering classes outlined by the Y. M. C. A. for the coming fall are more complete than any before offered to its students. Arrangements have just been made with Professor Frank O'Neil, of the University of Wisconsin, to take charge of the class in gasoline engineering. This class is for the particular benefit of the owners and others who are interested in the automobile or launch. Mr. O'Neil will illustrate his work with different types of engines in the class room.

A course in steam engineering will also be given under the direction of Professor Kavanaugh of the university. Professor Kavanaugh has outlined this course particularly for stationary engineers and firemen who desire to secure first class licenses.

Fred Dustin, city electrical inspector, will have charge of the electrical course, which will consist of the most elementary, advanced, and a special class for boys 16 years of age and under. The different classes will meet twice a week. The work will be more comprehensive than anything before undertaken. Registration in all the classes shows a marked increase over last year both in the senior and boys' departments.

Judge Dickinson allowed her to remain at the workhouse.

TO WORK FOR UNION

Rev. M. D. Hardin Outlines Work in New Field to Present Congregation.

Spoke Feelingly to People of Andrew Church Yesterday About Approaching Removal.

Rev. M. D. Hardin announced from the pulpit of Andrew Presbyterian church yesterday morning his retirement from that pastorate, to accept a call to Charlotte, N. C. The congregation will meet Thursday evening to select delegates to the coming meeting of the presbytery for the purpose of joining Mr. Hardin in his request that the transfer be made. In his message Mr. Hardin will be afflicted with the Southern Presbyterian church, but he announced yesterday that all his efforts would be bent toward bringing about the union of the two great branches, which the southern body has refused to consider. He is a Kentuckian by birth and training, and well fitted to deal with southern people and problems, and for that reason has chosen to leave Minneapolis for the south land.

Question of Union.

"You have been very kind to me and I have learned to love the people of this congregation," he said yesterday. "The only wound I will carry with me from here will be the one caused by parting. Various reasons have entered into my decision. I am a southerner, and while I am at home among northern people, I believe I have a larger field for work down there. I intend to use my pen at all times to urge a closer union between the north and the south. There is no reason why there should not be a most fraternal feeling between the younger generations, and I shall do all I can to promote it. I shall work for the union of the Presbyterian churches, for I believe that, as a united church, we can be a far greater power for good everywhere."

To Study the Race Problem.

"I also want to study that greatest of our questions, the negro problem. That problem is not solved; it is not even being solved. The schools for freedmen supported by the state and the north are doing a great good among a limited number, but the millions who are sinking lower and lower in degradation something must be done. You cannot blame the southern people for their feeling, and it would hasten the end of sectionalism if northern people would see their harsh and unthinking criticism of the southern negro and their attitude toward the negro. People of the north would look at the question a little differently if they could not leave their wives and daughters alone at home without dread and misgiving. The southern people are grappling with a great problem, and they are doing the best they can with it. It presents a great field for work, and I am going there to contribute my best efforts."

ROSE RELEASED

John O'Donnell, state labor commissioner, has decided to employ women assistants to collect statistics this year from women wage earners. Heretofore he has attempted to collect such statistics by mail, but finds this method barren of results. The women employees of the department will visit the stenographers, clerks, domestics and other women wage earners, and learn first hand about their hours of work, wages, and conditions. This is expected to develop some valuable statistical material. Individual answers to questions will not be kept on record, so no woman or girl will have any reason to answer questions in any but a candid manner.
