

THE WASHBURN-CROSBY FINE MILL AT BUFFALO

NEW PLANT OF THE WASHBURN-CROSBY COMPANY AT BUFFALO, N. Y.

Work on the Washburn-Crosby company's 4,600-barrel mill at Buffalo has progressed to a point where the installation of the machinery has begun, and according to the Northwestern Miller, the plant is expected to be in operation by Dec. 1. The Miller publishes a picture of the plant, herewith reproduced, and says: "The plant, in keeping with all things which the Washburn-Crosby company has to do, will be as complete and fine in construction and equipment as the free expenditure of money can make it. For thoroughness and stability, old country ideas are somewhat leaned to. However, every feature about the plant will be drawn on to contribute its full part to the making of a superior product at minimum cost. "The mill proper, a heavily built brick structure, is 62x112 feet on the ground, and seven stories and basement in height. The cleaning house, in which the cleaning apparatus will be segregated, is 33x49 feet. There is an engine house, 62x82; a boiler house, 50x52 feet, and a flour shed, 41x145 feet and four stories high. While all are of brick and constructed with a view to obtaining the lowest fire risk, the cleaning house is strictly fireproof. It has a tile roof, steel frame and concrete floors. The engine and boiler rooms are of a similar character. "The walls of the buildings rest on concrete piers, which in turn have a pile foundation. Particular pains were taken to have this part of the work of a most substantial and enduring character. The roof of the mill is of wood, covered with magnesians roofing. The floors are of wood on steel beams. "At the present time mill storage to the amount of 250,000 bushels is being constructed. It consists of nine Barnett & Record tile tanks, twenty feet in diameter by eighty-five feet in height. At a future date, the company contemplates erecting an elevator of large capacity to be operated as an adjunct to the mill. "The brick chimney is a massive affair. It is to be 208 feet tall, and will cost approximately $10,000. "The mill is equipped with perfect shipping facilities, situated as it is, with the water front upon the one side and railroad tracks upon the other."

CITY NEWS. REGULAR ARMY MEN

Minnesotans Who Have Made Their Marks in the Service of Uncle Sam. Stationed in the Orient and Various Other Parts of Both Hemispheres.

In the late war many young men of Minnesota won commissions in the regular army. The last official roster of the officers of the regular army contains much information concerning Minnesota officers who were prominent in the war. Where reference is made to the lineal list it refers to the arm of the service and rank in same.

Captain F. B. McCoy, who in 1898 was a member of the Third United States Infantry and detailed as instructor and inspecting officer for the Minnesota National Guard, and who afterward entered the volunteer service as lieutenant colonel of the Twelfth Minnesota Volunteers, is now located in Milwaukee, as general recruiting officer. He ranks seventh in the lineal list of captains, and will be a major before Christmas. He is assigned to the Seventeenth Infantry.

Captain H. A. Leonhauser, who was instructor at the National Guard in 1898, and who commanded the Fifteenth Minnesota Volunteer Infantry in Minneapolis, on general recruiting duty. He ranks fifteen in the lineal list of captains and is assigned to the Twenty-fifth Infantry.

Captain Samuel M. Sweigert, who mustered in the Minnesota National Guard as volunteers at Camp Ramsey in 1898, rose to the rank of colonel of artillery and is in the retired list, residing at 3520 Pacific avenue, San Francisco.

Christian A. Bach, St. Paul, who entered the service as a sergeant in Company D, Thirteenth regiment, and afterwards received a commission as lieutenant in the Tenth cavalry, United States Volunteers, is first lieutenant of the Seventh cavalry, and is at Chickamauga Park, Ga. He ranks 187 in the lineal list of first lieutenants.

FALL'S RELIGIOUS WORK

Campaign at Y. M. C. A. to be Opened Sunday Afternoon—Secy. Goodman Here.

Fred S. Goodman of New York city, one of the religious work secretaries of the international committee of the Young Men's Christian association, will spend Sunday, Monday and Tuesday in Minneapolis conducting an institute to develop committee men and effect a more thorough organization of the religious work of the association here.

The Sunday afternoon meeting will be a mass meeting for men and will open the fall religious campaign. Mr. Goodman will speak and the association male quartet will sing. The quartet has a remarkable history, and is said to be one of the finest organizations in the country. It sang at the jubilee convention in Boston two years ago, at the Grand Rapids international convention, at the Toronto world's missionary conference, at the missionary conference of the Methodist church at Cleveland. It was made up of a man from Ohio, one from Indiana, one from Iowa and State Secretary E. W. Peck of Minnesota. Within a year the three outsiders have moved to this state. Two of the members live in Minneapolis, one in St. Paul and one in Duluth.

Monday evening the Minneapolis association will have the benefit of the institute work. There will be present committee men and prospective committee men. Following the supper Mr. Goodman will speak of phases of the local work.

Tuesday an all-day session will be held for the Winona, Mankato, St. Paul and Minneapolis associations. Mr. Goodman will be the leading speaker.
