TOWN TALK

Rev. A. A. Graves, pastor of Franklin Avenue M. E. church, will speak at the Christian Workers' Mission, 26 Washington avenue S, this evening.

Mendenhall, the florist, 37 Sixth street S, Minneapolis, continues to get up the most beautiful bouquets and ships them to any part of the northwest.

Members of Nicollet Lodge No. 16, A. O. U. W., will visit University lodge, St. Paul, to-morrow evening. Car will leave Fourth street SE and Central avenue at 8 p. m.

You tired feeling, nervousness, poor circulation, indigestion, constipation and other troubles surely cured by the improved Swedish Movements, Massage and Medical Baths as given by Dr. L. Harper, 222 Boston Block. Best local references. The Walton Park Improvement association meets at the McKinley school this evening to consider with the aidmen of the ward the advisability of getting the Emerson avenue electric line extended. This association already has 140 lively members.

Another peculiar case of distress was reported to The Journal to-day by a well-known lady, who vouches for the facts. A working woman lost her pocket-book containing $10 which she was carrying to apply on a debt. The pocket-book was an old one of black leather, and its loss has brought great grief to the loser, as the money represented many weeks' savings.

THE WEATHER PREDICTIONS

Upper Michigan—Possibly showers to-night or Thursday; warmer to-night; cooler Thursday; brisk southwest, shifting to northwest, winds. Iowa—Generally fair to-night and Thursday; warmer in northeast portion to-night; cooler Thursday; brisk southwest, shifting to northwest, winds. North Dakota—Fair to-night and Thursday; cooler to-night and in south portion Thursday; brisk northwest winds. South Dakota—Fair to-night and Thursday; cooler Thursday and in west portion to-night; brisk northwest winds. Montana—Fair to-night and Thursday; cooler to-night; northwest winds.

FEDERAL BUILDING BETS

Guaranty Tenants Make Wagers on Plans of Builders. Bets are being paid extensively to-day by tenants of the Guaranty building. The progress of the improvements on the federal building have been watched intently by the favored ones to occupy offices on the right side of the building and above the seventh floor.

When the corner towers began to rise above the roof, windows were built and the openings were filled with heavy, rough boulders.

Betting began at once as to the purpose of these stones. The winners are the one who made the right prediction on the carving. The losers held that they were simply put in to support the flat arches and would be taken out.

The question has been settled by the arrival of the staff models after which the carving is to be patterned. It will take two men a month to finish each tower. Little houses are being built at the top of the high scaffolding to protect the carvers. Salamanders will be placed in the houses and thru the winter months these artists of the chisel will work away above the busy streets.

MORE WHEAT COMES

Receipts To-day Exceed Those for Oct. 21, 1902.

To-day, for the first time in several weeks, there was more wheat received in Minneapolis than on the corresponding day last year, or 40c against 37c. This made the traders inclined to sell a little wheat at the favored ones to occupy offices on the right side of the building and above the seventh floor.

When the Duluth receipts were posted, however, it was another story, only 181 cars being received there, against 560 last year. Chicago had 191 cars, but it was a half to a ton early selling and on later report of a sprinkle of rain at Winnepeg, a farmer turned developed.

Minneapolis elevator stocks have decreased 200,000 bushels so far this week.

BIG BOOK CENTER

Olaf Huseby Would Make Minneapolis Scandinavian Book-Distributing Point.

Olaf Huseby of Christiania, Norway, proprietor of one of the largest publishing houses in Scandinavia, wishes to make Minneapolis the principal distributing point in the world for Scandinavian literature. "Publishers abroad," he says, "have been charging prices altogether too high. We can therefore make this a successful distributing point by selling books at lower prices than they are sold abroad." Mr. Huseby added:

"There is no reason why this can not be accomplished as there is no tariff on literature printed in a foreign language. My visit to this country pertains to this project. I have been in the principal cities and believe that for distribution purposes Minneapolis is the best located, as it is more in the center of the Scandinavian population than Chicago, which has also been considered."

CLEVER AS SLEUTHS

Hicks and Smith Had Decidedly Slim Clues for Following a Forger.

He Had Worked an Elaborate Scheme and Had Covered His Tracks.

A purchase check for a trunk and a description of the man wanted was all the clue the Minneapolis police had to E. Foster, the forger, who was arrested yesterday in Burton upon information telegraphed from the local department. Yet by a system of careful investigation, Detectives Hicks and Smith were able to trace the fugitive and to cause his arrest the minute he arrived in the "Hub." The work of the two detectives is considered so cleverly handled that they have received the chief's compliments.

Foster came to the city about four weeks ago and took lodgings in a boarding house. He went to Nick Ronner, a liveryman on Hennepin avenue and explained that he was in the United States secret service department and wanted to hire a livery team. The team was furnished and when Foster returned he paid cash. He so continued patronizing the barn and spent much money there. In the meantime he became quite well acquainted with Mr. Ronner and told him that his paymaster was named Ronner.

Last Friday he told Mr. Ronner that his check from Washington would reach here Saturday and true to his statement Saturday morning the check "arrived." He explained that he was not acquainted at the banks and asked Ronner to identify him. The two went to the Swedish-American bank where Ronner identified Foster, indorsed the check and Foster received $500. He thanked Ronner for the kindness and disappeared.

As soon as Ronner learned that the check was a forgery, he reported the case to police headquarters and Detectives Hicks and Smith were detailed to investigate. They found Foster's boarding house and learned that he had left there in a hack. After three hours' work they found the hack driver and learned the station to which Foster was driven. At the depot they could not learn who had had gone and were compelled to try another plan.

They again visited the boarding-house and after searching the premises carefully they found in the waste basket a purchase check for a trunk which Foster had bought at a Nicollet street trunk factory. They went to the factory, secured a description of the trunk and which they gave to the baggage-master at the station. He remembered the trunk and told the officers that it had been checked to Boston. A message reached the Boston police in time to result in the capture of the fugitive.

ANOTHER MILL STARTS

It Is the Last of Those Closed Down by Strike—1,500 Men at Work.

The last of the seventeen flour mills closed down by the employees' strike a month ago will then have become a matter of history. The Standard Consolidated Flour Company is the last on the list, altho the company is not operating its Excelsior mill, which has been closed since last May.

From no output at all, following the general walkout of 1,800 employees, the mills are now grinding and shipping about 50, 40,000 and 30,000 barrels each day, which is within a few thousands of what they were producing before the strike was declared.

In the places of 1,800 men who walked out in behalf of "the hour principle" for the loaders, the mills now have employed 1,500 men, most of them with experience and many of them former members of the strikers' ranks. The strikers' meetings at Union Temple are growing steadily smaller, and the remaining strikers will probably scatter in search of other work as soon as the weather improves, altho most of those still out of work are banking on financial assistance from the sympathizing unions in the state and abroad. The American Federation of Labor is expected to declare on Minneapolis flour sometime next month.

TAILORS IN FIERCE FIGHT

Hard Struggle for Control of Business on Hennepin Avenue.

That competition is the life of trade is evinced by the efforts of two Hennepin avenue tailors, who are trying to drive each other out of business. Several months ago the two men opened their shops on upper Hennepin and hung out their signs for cleaning and pressing suits. At first both tried to do the work at the usual price, $1. Business seemed to be slack in that part of town and they began to cut prices, underbidding each other 10 cents at a time until a suit could be made to look like new for 50 cents. A few days ago one of the tailors made a sweeping reduction and brought the price down to 25 cents. The next morning a similar sign appeared in front of his rival's shop.

In the meantime custom has increased and both men are fairly swamped with work, each declaring that he will keep up the fight until he controls the field.

As a final shot the last man to bring down his price has installed a shoe shining stand in the shop and customers get their shoes shined free when they call for their suits.

RUGS SOLD CHEAP

Oriental Rugs at the Auction at Powers' Sold for Almost Nothing.

One of the greatest oriental rug sales that ever took place in the north-west is now on at the Powers' Dry collection is valued at more than $100,000, and, as an exhibit, if nothing more, it is well worth a visit and an inspection. One not versed in all the interesting details of oriental rug varieties can appreciate and enjoy the beauty of the great collection at Powers'.

The entire collection is being sold at auction and judging from the splendid crowd in attendance at the sales to-day, Minneapolisites are going to have their homes generously furnished with choice rugs from the orient. They are getting them mighty cheap, for some beautiful rugs are being bid in for ridiculously low prices. At the sale this-morning a beautiful Persian, ordinarily sold for $700, went for $250 to a well-known Minneapolis woman. Smaller rugs were sold for below the original cost. There is no question as to the genuineness of the sale, for the name of "Powers" is back of the sale.

The auction will continue Thursday and Friday. The bidding begins at 10 a. m. and 2 p. m.

THE "SPARKLER" MARKET

Retail Prices on Diamonds Not Up Much Since the Advance at Mines.

Milk is "fit" and diamonds have gone up. But if you don't want to go your cellar with a wholesale stock of diamonds for the winter, you can get the children their usual necklaces, sunbursts and brooches at the same old prices down on Nicollet avenue.

"Yes," said a Nicollet avenue dealer, "we understand that the De Beers market has again advanced prices 5 per cent for uncut and 10 per cent for cut stones. This is the third advance since last February. But retail prices will remain about the same."

"It's quite true that, from all accounts, the supply of diamonds in the De Beers market is falling off and perhaps the De Beers company, which controls about 95 per cent or more of all the diamond output the world over, has decided to get a bigger price for everything it sells. We know that the first large advance was made some four years ago, before the Boer war, when the De Beers company lost its very best mine. This was the 'big' mine, as they called it. It produced the finest gems, mostly blue diamonds, which are more brilliant and much more expensive than the best white stones. The big mine—it was originally a hill of blue clay two hundred feet above the surface—was worked down to a depth of 1,800 feet below the surface. At that depth the pumps could no longer keep out the water and the whole mine was abandoned. Yet it was said a long time ago that the South African mines, since they were discovered by the De Beers company, have produced about half a billion dollars. This was more diamonds than the whole world had given up during the previous 200 years.

"Very small diamonds are not so much higher now. But in the open market, where you can get a carat or are now worth nearly twice what they were brought before the big mine was flooded four years ago."

ILL. MAN BURNS ASHES

The Engineer Quotes an Article Showing Method Used at Sterling, Ill.

Evidence in support of the "unscientific" proposition that hard coal ashes can be consumed in domestic fuel is being furnished by the engineer of an electric lighting plant add his word to that of Minneapolis men who have contended that ashes will burn. W. W. Wilson, resident engineer, published in Cleveland, Ohio, in that paper's issue of Feb. 16, 1903, was published a clipping from the Daily Standard of Sterling, Ill., telling of a boy who was trying to burn a piece of coal in a stove. The boy, who burned his ashes, and describing his method as follows:

"Put three or four scatterfuls of coal in the furnace, and when the fire has been started and then wait until this coal is all glow. Then take the ash from your ash pit and cover the coals to the depth of 2 inches, open your drafts and let it go. In a short time the ash will be ablaze and as red as the coals. It will be best to sift it. When you replenish your furnace with coal, do so before the ash and each time cover with ash. In this way the ash will be consumed as well as the coal; your rooms will be comfortable and the furnace will be kept clean. Last spring the druggist wet his ash before putting it on the coal, but now he uses the dry ash. This has not removed any ash from his furnace since the week before Christmas, and yet there is no more there now than there was a week ago. The furnace has been in constant use and the house is comfortable all the time."

PHILHARMONIC CONCERTS

Course Tickets for This Season Have Been Placed on Sale.

The Philharmonic club's rehearsal last night was attended by over 200 singers, who, under Mr. Oberholfer's direction practiced "Paradise Lost," a large chorus than the Philharmonics have ever had. There is still room for several new members, whose application will be received on Monday night at Krieger's book hall, Fourth avenue S near Ninth street. Tenors and basses are especially desirable.

The club's announcement for the season's concerts has appeared and course tickets may now be secured at the Metropolitan Music Store. The prices of the course tickets follow: Single seat for the three courses, $15.00 or $12.50, according to location. Single seat for the six orchestral concerts, $5 or $7.50. The two courses together cost $40 or $10 for the orchestra. The club's subscription for both courses will also get seats for the "Messiah" performance on Christmas day which is not included in either of the courses and consequently comes as an extra number gratis to subscribers.

STOPPED A CROSS SHOT

A Minneapolis Hunter Is Perforated by His Companion.

Alvin Campbell, employed by the Beard Art company and residing at 1510 Lyndale avenue N, is confined to his home as the result of an accidental shooting north of Anok. With Irving Boxwell, he was working over a field for prairie chickens when a bird rose between them. Boxwell fired at the bird and part of the charge hit Campbell in the hands and side at a distance of twenty yards.

The wounds were not so serious that the injured man could not walk two miles for medical attention. Use of the X-rays it is thought will bring about a cure. He penetrated the skin, the rest of the charge having been stopped by rubber boots and heavy clothing. Mr. Campbell returned to the city Monday and will be able to be out in the course of a week.

MINN.-MICH. SEAT SALE

It Will Begin Friday at 9 A. M.—Beloit Game Officials.

Tickets for the Minnesota-Michigan football game one week from next Saturday will be placed on sale Friday at 9 a. m. at Voegell's, H. W. Wilson & Co.'s and the School Education company's stores in Minneapolis and Wilbur Tibbels store in St. Paul. The prices will be: General Admission, $1; reserved seats, $2; box seats, $2.50 and $3.

DITCH BADLY NEEDED

Large Tract in Clay County Inundated, With No Outlet for Surplus Water.

P. E. Hanson, secretary of state, has returned from inspecting the proposed ditch in Clay county, near Glyndon. He found about 15,000 acres of swamp with no outlet. Until this season much of it had been under cultivation. Engineer Ralph will make an estimate of the cost, but it is not likely that the state can start the work before next spring.

WHY MR. DINGLE LINGERED

Almost Late to His Wedding Because the River Fell—Bride Was Worried.

Afloat, afloat, afloat on the billowy sea. If the prospective bride of Frederick W. Dingle could thus have accounted for his absence, she would not have felt so worried. Many a noble lad and true has thus been detained upon the deep far from the girl he left behind him. "But it wasn't deep," confessed Mr. Dingle, on getting back to St. Paul late last night just in time to prepare for his wedding this morning. "It wasn't half an inch deep hardly, and we weren't afloat. I only wish we had been!"

That is to say, the lamentation of Mr. Dingle should have been: "Ashore, ashore, stuck fast in the bloom!"

Mr. Dingle tore himself away last Friday, when accompanied by W. W. Schoch and Arthur E. Clarke, Jr., he started up the Minnesota river on a hunting trip.

The party sailed away in a thirty-eight-foot gasolene launch. While they were carping across the prairie below Shakopee in relay six miles the flooded Minnesota began to contract and the big launch settled down to grass. All hands forgot the duck she leaped overboard to drag their boat back to the river. For two long days they pulled, and rested, and exclaimed. Their last bit of food disappeared Sunday morning. Sunday night they traveled in relay six miles and back, thru mud and water, to the village of Hamilton and its only restaurant. An ox team was hired Monday morning and pulled the fairy launch to the purling stream and started the water-soaked lover towards his anxious bride.

JOSIE FELL FROM GRACE

Religion Failed to Keep Her From Her Old Enemy, Strong Drink.

Josie Johnson, "Workhouse Josie," housekeeper, drunkard, workhouse prisoner and reformer, has fallen from grace. A week ago she was at the police court preaching the gospel and imploring the officers to become members of the Holy Jumpers. To-day she was in jail, charged with drunkenness. She pleaded guilty and Judge Holt sentenced her to sixty days in the workhouse.

The life of Josie Johnson has been peculiarly eventful, and, altho she is yet under 40 years of age, she has had a varied experience. A few years ago she was a pretty woman, loved and respected by her friends. A liking for strong drink got the best of her, however, and her husband and two children were forgotten in her dissipation. Her husband disappeared one of the girls was placed in a home for fallen women and the other is in the care of friends.

ORDERS WILL OPPOSE

Fraternities Insurance Societies Will Fight Legal Reserve Plan.

Insurance Commissioner Dearth has returned from the convention of the National Association of Insurance Commissioners at Baltimore. He reports that the convention was well attended and successful, but he does not at all approve of the proposed plan for the regulation of fraternal insurance by the several states. This bill puts them on the legal reserve basis the same as old-line companies, and while this may be all right in theory, it will never be agreed to by the fraternal organizations. Attempts to secure the passage of this bill will mean the bitterest sort of contests. In Mr. Dearth's opinion, a bill should have been framed which would meet with the approval of fraternal insurance men.

SCHOOL FUND LOANS

State Board of Investment Receives Applications for $38,750.

There are thirty-one applications for loans from the permanent school fund allowed by the state board of investment yesterday afternoon. The total allowed was $38,750, and the loans will not be made until after the fall land sales, as there are not enough funds on hand at present. The loans were made to counties, townships and school districts.
