

THE JOURNAL

LUCIAN SWIFT, MANAGER. J. S. McCLAIN, EDITOR.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES BY MAIL. One month $1.00. Three months $2.50. Six months $4.50. One year $8.00.

Delivered by Carrier. One month 30 cents. Three months 80 cents. Six months 1.50. One year 2.50.

WASHINGTON BUREAU. W. W. Jernigan, Chief of Washington Bureau.

AN INVITATION is extended to all to visit the Press Room, which is in the third floor of the Journal Building.

The Great Daily

OF THE Great Northwest Daily Circulation of THE JOURNAL

Saturday, Nov. 21, 62,813. Average for Week Ending Nov. 21, 60,684.

Only 2-CENT Daily in Minneapolis. REMEMBER, all this circulation is the 5-cent edition, which is delivered directly to the homes.

The Journal ran 1,572 columns of advertising in October. This is 42 per cent more advertising than was carried by any other daily paper in Minneapolis and 3 per cent more than any daily and Sunday combined.

Not Exactly Millennial. The year now closing has not brought us to the verge of the millennium.

In the old world war has been prevented largely because of the inclination of the big military potencies to delay conflict as long as possible.

This is interesting. Manifestly the people genuinely interested in maintaining the territorial integrity of China.

In southeastern Europe, the Austro-Russian combination has presented a program for Macedonian reform to Abdul Hamid, who doesn't like it.

The ultimate destruction of Turkish power on the Balkan peninsula will not be long delayed.

On this side of the water we are getting ready for the national defense, simply as a measure of prudence.

No Reform in Pennsylvania. The joint committee for the promotion of electoral reforms in Pennsylvania has made a report on its recent work.

Colonel Johnson's story of newspaper editing and publishing in the early days in Minneapolis is an exceedingly interesting leaf of local history.

The latter part of next week, Clyde Fitch's drama of "The Girl with Green Eyes" will be acted for the first time at the Metropolitan.

Next week the Ferris Stock company will present a grand scenic production, "The Power of the Press."

The pope has refused to accept an estate willed him by an admirer, and in this particular is somewhat different from William Jennings Bryan.

Some of the Canadians are shivering for fear that American manufacturers are about to make a slaughter market of their country.

The Tribune's football poet, after declaring against the Wisconsin game, says: "So before the time to play we have not a word to say."

The camera proves it. Photographs of the city taken twenty-five years ago and reproduced in The Journal to-day afford the clearest and strongest evidence of the wonderful progress the city has made during that time.

The history of Minnesota, which Dr. W. W. Folwell contributes to this issue of The Journal, is the best brief and convenient history of the state in print.

You will enjoy the reminiscences of the early settler in this silver anniversary edition.

People who have things to say to the public that ought to be said, are invited to use this column.

Dr. Abbott inconsistent. Dr. Lyman Abbott's somewhat threadbare argument is that women ought not to vote because they do not fight.

At the theaters. Foyer Chat. That Blanche Walsh will be greeted by a large and expectant audience on her return to the Metropolitan.

To-morrow is ladies' day at the Dewey, and the manager of the hotel has arranged for each lady patron a handsome souvenir.

increasingly conservative, and that is a tower of strength for the whole land. The outside world respects us and honors us except the United States of Colombia, who in furious because our government has fulfilled its obligations on the isthmus of Panama.

"Hamlet" is a gloomy tragedy, but it will be a light and merry comedy compared to that football game at Madison, Wis. Wisconsin is the winner.

Yank, Canuck and Johnny Bull. One of the most interesting racial minglings now taking place on the continent is that resultant upon the new immigration movement into western Canada.

There is no doubt that the republican machine, which represents about as much political iniquity as Tammany does in New York, opposed the measure because it does not desire honest elections.

The committee will continue its work for this rudimentary reform measure, but the outlook is discouraging, because laws are made for the republican machine.

An Englishman who saw the Yale-Harvard football game was amazed at the grief of the defeated Harvard men, who

The democrats are talking of introducing Jim Crow cars into Maryland. If this is done, the trunk lines running through the state will be put to a good deal of annoyance.

The Tribune's football poet, after declaring against the Wisconsin game, says: "So before the time to play we have not a word to say."

The camera proves it. Photographs of the city taken twenty-five years ago and reproduced in The Journal to-day afford the clearest and strongest evidence of the wonderful progress the city has made during that time.

The history of Minnesota, which Dr. W. W. Folwell contributes to this issue of The Journal, is the best brief and convenient history of the state in print.

You will enjoy the reminiscences of the early settler in this silver anniversary edition.

People who have things to say to the public that ought to be said, are invited to use this column.

Dr. Abbott inconsistent. Dr. Lyman Abbott's somewhat threadbare argument is that women ought not to vote because they do not fight.

At the theaters. Foyer Chat. That Blanche Walsh will be greeted by a large and expectant audience on her return to the Metropolitan.

To-morrow is ladies' day at the Dewey, and the manager of the hotel has arranged for each lady patron a handsome souvenir.

It is seldom that an ordinary dramatic production carries with it so many juvenile performers as "The Power of the Press."

The latter part of next week, Clyde Fitch's drama of "The Girl with Green Eyes" will be acted for the first time at the Metropolitan.

Next week the Ferris Stock company will present a grand scenic production, "The Power of the Press."

The pope has refused to accept an estate willed him by an admirer, and in this particular is somewhat different from William Jennings Bryan.

Some of the Canadians are shivering for fear that American manufacturers are about to make a slaughter market of their country.

The Tribune's football poet, after declaring against the Wisconsin game, says: "So before the time to play we have not a word to say."

The camera proves it. Photographs of the city taken twenty-five years ago and reproduced in The Journal to-day afford the clearest and strongest evidence of the wonderful progress the city has made during that time.

The history of Minnesota, which Dr. W. W. Folwell contributes to this issue of The Journal, is the best brief and convenient history of the state in print.

You will enjoy the reminiscences of the early settler in this silver anniversary edition.

People who have things to say to the public that ought to be said, are invited to use this column.

Dr. Abbott inconsistent. Dr. Lyman Abbott's somewhat threadbare argument is that women ought not to vote because they do not fight.

At the theaters. Foyer Chat. That Blanche Walsh will be greeted by a large and expectant audience on her return to the Metropolitan.

To-morrow is ladies' day at the Dewey, and the manager of the hotel has arranged for each lady patron a handsome souvenir.

enact the desired measure. The amendments were adopted by the people by a vote of about five to one. The next step was the formulation of a bill, and nearly a year was spent in preparing it.

Nothing was done, however, and the republican majority in the legislature failed to take any interest in the measure, Chairman Plummer of the committee, to which the bill had been referred, even going so far as to say that none but professional farmers favored the measure.

There is no doubt that the republican machine, which represents about as much political iniquity as Tammany does in New York, opposed the measure because it does not desire honest elections.

The committee will continue its work for this rudimentary reform measure, but the outlook is discouraging, because laws are made for the republican machine.

An Englishman who saw the Yale-Harvard football game was amazed at the grief of the defeated Harvard men, who

The democrats are talking of introducing Jim Crow cars into Maryland. If this is done, the trunk lines running through the state will be put to a good deal of annoyance.

The Tribune's football poet, after declaring against the Wisconsin game, says: "So before the time to play we have not a word to say."

The camera proves it. Photographs of the city taken twenty-five years ago and reproduced in The Journal to-day afford the clearest and strongest evidence of the wonderful progress the city has made during that time.

The history of Minnesota, which Dr. W. W. Folwell contributes to this issue of The Journal, is the best brief and convenient history of the state in print.

You will enjoy the reminiscences of the early settler in this silver anniversary edition.

People who have things to say to the public that ought to be said, are invited to use this column.

Dr. Abbott inconsistent. Dr. Lyman Abbott's somewhat threadbare argument is that women ought not to vote because they do not fight.

At the theaters. Foyer Chat. That Blanche Walsh will be greeted by a large and expectant audience on her return to the Metropolitan.

To-morrow is ladies' day at the Dewey, and the manager of the hotel has arranged for each lady patron a handsome souvenir.

It is seldom that an ordinary dramatic production carries with it so many juvenile performers as "The Power of the Press."

The latter part of next week, Clyde Fitch's drama of "The Girl with Green Eyes" will be acted for the first time at the Metropolitan.

Next week the Ferris Stock company will present a grand scenic production, "The Power of the Press."

The pope has refused to accept an estate willed him by an admirer, and in this particular is somewhat different from William Jennings Bryan.

Some of the Canadians are shivering for fear that American manufacturers are about to make a slaughter market of their country.

The Tribune's football poet, after declaring against the Wisconsin game, says: "So before the time to play we have not a word to say."

The camera proves it. Photographs of the city taken twenty-five years ago and reproduced in The Journal to-day afford the clearest and strongest evidence of the wonderful progress the city has made during that time.

The history of Minnesota, which Dr. W. W. Folwell contributes to this issue of The Journal, is the best brief and convenient history of the state in print.

You will enjoy the reminiscences of the early settler in this silver anniversary edition.

People who have things to say to the public that ought to be said, are invited to use this column.

Dr. Abbott inconsistent. Dr. Lyman Abbott's somewhat threadbare argument is that women ought not to vote because they do not fight.

At the theaters. Foyer Chat. That Blanche Walsh will be greeted by a large and expectant audience on her return to the Metropolitan.

To-morrow is ladies' day at the Dewey, and the manager of the hotel has arranged for each lady patron a handsome souvenir.

It is seldom that an ordinary dramatic production carries with it so many juvenile performers as "The Power of the Press."

subject of how best to induce northern people to come south is being eagerly discussed. The southern railroads are making vigorous efforts to persuade northern farmers to settle along their lines.

Nothing was done, however, and the republican majority in the legislature failed to take any interest in the measure, Chairman Plummer of the committee, to which the bill had been referred, even going so far as to say that none but professional farmers favored the measure.

There is no doubt that the republican machine, which represents about as much political iniquity as Tammany does in New York, opposed the measure because it does not desire honest elections.

The committee will continue its work for this rudimentary reform measure, but the outlook is discouraging, because laws are made for the republican machine.

An Englishman who saw the Yale-Harvard football game was amazed at the grief of the defeated Harvard men, who

The democrats are talking of introducing Jim Crow cars into Maryland. If this is done, the trunk lines running through the state will be put to a good deal of annoyance.

The Tribune's football poet, after declaring against the Wisconsin game, says: "So before the time to play we have not a word to say."

The camera proves it. Photographs of the city taken twenty-five years ago and reproduced in The Journal to-day afford the clearest and strongest evidence of the wonderful progress the city has made during that time.

The history of Minnesota, which Dr. W. W. Folwell contributes to this issue of The Journal, is the best brief and convenient history of the state in print.

You will enjoy the reminiscences of the early settler in this silver anniversary edition.

People who have things to say to the public that ought to be said, are invited to use this column.

Dr. Abbott inconsistent. Dr. Lyman Abbott's somewhat threadbare argument is that women ought not to vote because they do not fight.

At the theaters. Foyer Chat. That Blanche Walsh will be greeted by a large and expectant audience on her return to the Metropolitan.

To-morrow is ladies' day at the Dewey, and the manager of the hotel has arranged for each lady patron a handsome souvenir.

It is seldom that an ordinary dramatic production carries with it so many juvenile performers as "The Power of the Press."

The latter part of next week, Clyde Fitch's drama of "The Girl with Green Eyes" will be acted for the first time at the Metropolitan.

Next week the Ferris Stock company will present a grand scenic production, "The Power of the Press."

The pope has refused to accept an estate willed him by an admirer, and in this particular is somewhat different from William Jennings Bryan.

Some of the Canadians are shivering for fear that American manufacturers are about to make a slaughter market of their country.

The Tribune's football poet, after declaring against the Wisconsin game, says: "So before the time to play we have not a word to say."

The camera proves it. Photographs of the city taken twenty-five years ago and reproduced in The Journal to-day afford the clearest and strongest evidence of the wonderful progress the city has made during that time.

The history of Minnesota, which Dr. W. W. Folwell contributes to this issue of The Journal, is the best brief and convenient history of the state in print.

You will enjoy the reminiscences of the early settler in this silver anniversary edition.

People who have things to say to the public that ought to be said, are invited to use this column.

Dr. Abbott inconsistent. Dr. Lyman Abbott's somewhat threadbare argument is that women ought not to vote because they do not fight.

At the theaters. Foyer Chat. That Blanche Walsh will be greeted by a large and expectant audience on her return to the Metropolitan.

To-morrow is ladies' day at the Dewey, and the manager of the hotel has arranged for each lady patron a handsome souvenir.

It is seldom that an ordinary dramatic production carries with it so many juvenile performers as "The Power of the Press."

NEWS OF BOOK WORLD

How a 200-Year-Old Faded Book-Quick in Modern Times—The "Get-Rich-Up" Discoverers of America—Points on Getting One's Bearings.

Aquila Kempster in The Mark gives two persons hardly a "fair shake." If the basis of his story were true, a man would not be safe from the machinations of a villain either in life or in the next.

But there are trying and bloody times ahead for the prince, his love, and, indeed for almost everybody else in the story.

We submit that this is hardly fair either to the doctor or the prince, and that it is working the reincarnation racket with a vengeance—overworking it, in fact, for it is in a way a combination of reincarnation with possession which is not familiar to us as a part of Hindu mysticism.

W. H. Johnson's second volume on the discoverers of gold, Pioneer Spaniards in North America, contains fine sketches of Ojeda, Amerigo Vesputi, Cortez, Ponce de Leon, Cortez Coronado and others who, in the spirit of adventure and lust for gold, sought to find a western Eldorado.

The camera proves it. Photographs of the city taken twenty-five years ago and reproduced in The Journal to-day afford the clearest and strongest evidence of the wonderful progress the city has made during that time.

The history of Minnesota, which Dr. W. W. Folwell contributes to this issue of The Journal, is the best brief and convenient history of the state in print.

You will enjoy the reminiscences of the early settler in this silver anniversary edition.

People who have things to say to the public that ought to be said, are invited to use this column.

Dr. Abbott inconsistent. Dr. Lyman Abbott's somewhat threadbare argument is that women ought not to vote because they do not fight.

At the theaters. Foyer Chat. That Blanche Walsh will be greeted by a large and expectant audience on her return to the Metropolitan.

To-morrow is ladies' day at the Dewey, and the manager of the hotel has arranged for each lady patron a handsome souvenir.

It is seldom that an ordinary dramatic production carries with it so many juvenile performers as "The Power of the Press."

The latter part of next week, Clyde Fitch's drama of "The Girl with Green Eyes" will be acted for the first time at the Metropolitan.

Next week the Ferris Stock company will present a grand scenic production, "The Power of the Press."

The pope has refused to accept an estate willed him by an admirer, and in this particular is somewhat different from William Jennings Bryan.

Some of the Canadians are shivering for fear that American manufacturers are about to make a slaughter market of their country.

The Tribune's football poet, after declaring against the Wisconsin game, says: "So before the time to play we have not a word to say."

The camera proves it. Photographs of the city taken twenty-five years ago and reproduced in The Journal to-day afford the clearest and strongest evidence of the wonderful progress the city has made during that time.

The history of Minnesota, which Dr. W. W. Folwell contributes to this issue of The Journal, is the best brief and convenient history of the state in print.

You will enjoy the reminiscences of the early settler in this silver anniversary edition.

People who have things to say to the public that ought to be said, are invited to use this column.

Dr. Abbott inconsistent. Dr. Lyman Abbott's somewhat threadbare argument is that women ought not to vote because they do not fight.

At the theaters. Foyer Chat. That Blanche Walsh will be greeted by a large and expectant audience on her return to the Metropolitan.

To-morrow is ladies' day at the Dewey, and the manager of the hotel has arranged for each lady patron a handsome souvenir.

It is seldom that an ordinary dramatic production carries with it so many juvenile performers as "The Power of the Press."

The latter part of next week, Clyde Fitch's drama of "The Girl with Green Eyes" will be acted for the first time at the Metropolitan.

Next week the Ferris Stock company will present a grand scenic production, "The Power of the Press."

The pope has refused to accept an estate willed him by an admirer, and in this particular is somewhat different from William Jennings Bryan.

TRIALS OF A PEACEMAKER

Walt Mason in Lincoln Journal. Two merry old ladies who were next door neighbors had their backyard row every day, as regularly as the day came.

But there were really no malice back of it, and the ladies were in fact the best of friends. But a strange woman moved into a neighboring house, a woman of high and haughty demeanor, and she soon came to the conclusion that these back-yard rows were a disgrace to the town, and its civilization.

She went down the alley, and when she came within fifteen feet of the warring females she began delivering her little lecture. The ladies naturally resented such impudence, and they were not long enough, and patry enough, at best, and they would stand no interference.

By a certain squire of the city, who betrays his patriotism by presiding in a small office painted red, white and blue and located along the Panhandle tracks, had a case before him the other day which attracted an unusual crowd to the temple of justice.

Before the case opened the noise and confusion became so great that his honor declared that the next man to indulge in any unusual outbreak would be ejected from the courtroom.

"Put him out!" roared the court, and in another instant the young man found himself being rushed to the door. Order having been restored, his honor ordered that the prisoner be brought before the bar for trial.

"Can't do it, your honor," he replied. "The young fellow you just put out was the prisoner."

The Ottawa Herald speaks of the funeral ceremonies over the body of Miss Anna Downey, a unique and beautiful girl, and gives the following account of what took place:

Dr. McFarland sat at the foot of the open casket and the other friends sat around it. Besides Dr. McFarland, short talks were made by Miss Ewing, Mrs. Adams of Topsham, Dr. A. J. H. Porter of Baldwin, Rev. Mr. Nisbaum and other friends, each one relating some item of experience connected with Miss Downey's life.

The Ottawa Herald speaks of the funeral ceremonies over the body of Miss Anna Downey, a unique and beautiful girl, and gives the following account of what took place:

Dr. McFarland sat at the foot of the open casket and the other friends sat around it. Besides Dr. McFarland, short talks were made by Miss Ewing, Mrs. Adams of Topsham, Dr. A. J. H. Porter of Baldwin, Rev. Mr. Nisbaum and other friends, each one relating some item of experience connected with Miss Downey's life.

The Ottawa Herald speaks of the funeral ceremonies over the body of Miss Anna Downey, a unique and beautiful girl, and gives the following account of what took place:

Dr. McFarland sat at the foot of the open casket and the other friends sat around it. Besides Dr. McFarland, short talks were made by Miss Ewing, Mrs. Adams of Topsham, Dr. A. J. H. Porter of Baldwin, Rev. Mr. Nisbaum and other friends, each one relating some item of experience connected with Miss Downey's life.

The Ottawa Herald speaks of the funeral ceremonies over the body of Miss Anna Downey, a unique and beautiful girl, and gives the following account of what took place:

Dr. McFarland sat at the foot of the open casket and the other friends sat around it. Besides Dr. McFarland, short talks were made by Miss Ewing, Mrs. Adams of Topsham, Dr. A. J. H. Porter of Baldwin, Rev. Mr. Nisbaum and other friends, each one relating some item of experience connected with Miss Downey's life.

The Ottawa Herald speaks of the funeral ceremonies over the body of Miss Anna Downey, a unique and beautiful girl, and gives the following account of what took place:

Dr. McFarland sat at the foot of the open casket and the other friends sat around it. Besides Dr. McFarland, short talks were made by Miss Ewing, Mrs. Adams of Topsham, Dr. A. J. H. Porter of Baldwin, Rev. Mr. Nisbaum and other friends, each one relating some item of experience connected with Miss Downey's life.

The Ottawa Herald speaks of the funeral ceremonies over the body of Miss Anna Downey, a unique and beautiful girl, and gives the following account of what took place:

Dr. McFarland sat at the foot of the open casket and the other friends sat around it. Besides Dr. McFarland, short talks were made by Miss Ewing, Mrs. Adams of Topsham, Dr. A. J. H. Porter of Baldwin, Rev. Mr. Nisbaum and other friends, each one relating some item of experience connected with Miss Downey's life.

The Ottawa Herald speaks of the funeral ceremonies over the body of Miss Anna Downey, a unique and beautiful girl, and gives the following account of what took place:

Dr. McFarland sat at the foot of the open casket and the other friends sat around it. Besides Dr. McFarland, short talks were made by Miss Ewing, Mrs. Adams of Topsham, Dr. A. J. H. Porter of Baldwin, Rev. Mr. Nisbaum and other friends, each one relating some item of experience connected with Miss Downey's life.

The Ottawa Herald speaks of the funeral ceremonies over the body of Miss Anna Downey, a unique and beautiful girl, and gives the following account of what took place:

Dr. McFarland sat at the foot of the open casket and the other friends sat around it. Besides Dr. McFarland, short talks were made by Miss Ewing, Mrs. Adams of Topsham, Dr. A. J. H. Porter of Baldwin, Rev. Mr. Nisbaum and other friends, each one relating some item of experience connected with Miss Downey's life.

The Ottawa Herald speaks of the funeral ceremonies over the body of Miss Anna Downey, a unique and beautiful girl, and gives the following account of what took place:

Dr. McFarland sat at the foot of the open casket and the other friends sat around it. Besides Dr. McFarland, short talks were made by Miss Ewing, Mrs. Adams of Topsham, Dr. A. J. H. Porter of Baldwin, Rev. Mr. Nisbaum and other friends, each one relating some item of experience connected with Miss Downey's life.

The Ottawa Herald speaks of the funeral ceremonies over the body of Miss Anna Downey, a unique and beautiful girl, and gives the following account of what took place:

Dr. McFarland sat at the foot of the open casket and the other friends sat around it. Besides Dr. McFarland, short talks were made by Miss Ewing, Mrs. Adams of Topsham, Dr. A. J. H. Porter of Baldwin, Rev. Mr. Nisbaum and other friends, each one relating some item of experience connected with Miss Downey's life.

The Ottawa Herald speaks of the funeral ceremonies over the body of Miss Anna Downey, a unique and beautiful girl, and gives the following account of what took place:

Dr. McFarland sat at the foot of the open casket and the other friends sat around it. Besides Dr. McFarland, short talks were made by Miss Ewing, Mrs. Adams of Topsham, Dr. A. J. H. Porter of Baldwin, Rev. Mr. Nisbaum and other friends, each one relating some item of experience connected with Miss Downey's life.

THE NONPAREIL MAN

Discussion of the Thesis of a Massachusetts Professor That Love is Likely to Be Felt in the Breast of a Child of Three Years—Early Remembrances of the "Grand Passions" of Youth—The Little Girl of Eight with Two Pigtails Down Her Neck and the Blue Devotion Her Arched in Our World-Wearied, Ennued Boom at the Age of Ten.

According to a Massachusetts professor, love begins, or is liable to begin, at the age of 3, or nearly so, we can remember, we didn't have an "excutive" best girl until we were 7. There were several touches of the grand passion before this date, but they were crowded out by Baseball, Kick the Stick, Shinney, Three Old Cat, Barn Tie, Scrub, Jesse James, Moccasin Mose and Raw-Head-and-Bloody-Bones. Boy of 7 cannot have much to do with the women when there is so much excitement going on in the schoolhouse yard and in the barn.

At the age of 10, however, we can remember, we didn't have an "excutive" best girl until we were 7. There were several touches of the grand passion before this date, but they were crowded out by Baseball, Kick the Stick, Shinney, Three Old Cat, Barn Tie, Scrub, Jesse James, Moccasin Mose and Raw-Head-and-Bloody-Bones. Boy of 7 cannot have much to do with the women when there is so much excitement going on in the schoolhouse yard and in the barn.

At the age of 10, however, we can remember, we didn't have an "excutive" best girl until we were 7. There were several touches of the grand passion before this date, but they were crowded out by Baseball, Kick the Stick, Shinney, Three Old Cat, Barn Tie, Scrub, Jesse James, Moccasin Mose and Raw-Head-and-Bloody-Bones. Boy of 7 cannot have much to do with the women when there is so much excitement going on in the schoolhouse yard and in the barn.

At the age of 10, however, we can remember, we didn't have an "excutive" best girl until we were 7. There were several touches of the grand passion before this date, but they were crowded out by Baseball, Kick the Stick, Shinney, Three Old Cat, Barn Tie, Scrub, Jesse James, Moccasin Mose and Raw-Head-and-Bloody-Bones. Boy of 7 cannot have much to do with the women when there is so much excitement going on in the schoolhouse yard and in the barn.

At the age of 10, however, we can remember, we didn't have an "excutive" best girl until we were 7. There were several touches of the grand passion before this date, but they were crowded out by Baseball, Kick the Stick, Shinney, Three Old Cat, Barn Tie, Scrub, Jesse James, Moccasin Mose and Raw-Head-and-Bloody-Bones. Boy of 7 cannot have much to do with the women when there is