

Millions for a Cure for Dyspepsia

A New York Millionaire Offers a Fortune for a Stomach Which Will Digest His Food.

The fact that money alone cannot give happiness was never more fully illustrated than in the case of the famous New York millionaire who offered a fortune to any one who would cure him of dyspepsia without harsh, unpleasant dieting.

These tablets absolutely cure any stage of dyspepsia by relieving the overworked stomach and intestines of the burden of digestion and allowing them to recuperate naturally and without the artificial and harmful stimulus given by drug compounds and so-called tonics, which really depend upon alcohol for their efficiency and in the end do far more harm than good.

A true tonic is something which will renew, replenish, build up the exhausted nervous system and assist the body in its work, something which will enrich the blood and endow it with the proper proportions of red and white corpuscles which prevent or destroy disease germs. This is what a real tonic should do, and no drug or alcoholic stimulant will do it.

The only true tonic in nature is wholesome food, thoroughly digested. Every particle of nervous energy, every minute muscle fiber and drop of blood is created daily from the food we digest.

The mere eating of food has little to do with the repair of waste tissue, but the perfect digestion of the food eaten has everything to do with it.

The reason so few people have perfect digestion is because from wrong habits of living the stomach has gradually become a genuine tonic, which is the gastric juice, peptones and acids in sufficient quantity.

To cure indigestion and stomach troubles it is necessary to take after meals some harmless preparation which will supply the natural peptones and stomach acids which every weak stomach lacks, and probably the best preparation of this character is Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, which may be found in every drug store, and which contain in pleasant, palatable form the wholesome peptones and stomach acids which nature requires for prompt digestion.

One or two of these excellent tablets taken after meals will prevent souring, fermentation and acidity and insure complete digestion and assimilation.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are equally valuable for little children as for adults, as they contain nothing harmful or stimulating, but only the natural digestives.

One of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will digest 1,800 grains of meat, eggs or other wholesome food, and they are in every sense a genuine tonic because they bring about in the only natural way a restorative of nerve power, a building up of lost tissue and appetite, in the only way it can be done, by the digestion and assimilation of wholesome food.

When the stomach won't work the whole body suffers, as every tissue or structure of the body depends on the stomach for nourishment and renewal.

If the stomach is weak, inactive and unable to properly digest food it not only subjects the body to a state of chronic semi-starvation or a habitually half-fed condition that weakens it and renders it less productive of accomplishment and less resistant to disease, but it allows of the ab-

WASHINGTON GOSSIP ORIGIN OF THE DAY

Petitions Aimed Against Senator Reed Smoot Merely a Waste of Time.

Changes Proposed in the Army Uniforms—Legislation for the Old Pensioners.

Washington, Nov. 26.—Secretary Hitchcock is much interested in the bill which he introduced in the speaker of the house, providing for the control of grazing in forest reserves. The bill provides for the punishment of those who graze their stock on public lands within forest reserves, without first having obtained permission to do so under rules and regulations prescribed by the interior department. In view of the extreme importance of the matter as an aid in the protection of forest reserves, the department interests, Mr. Hitchcock earnestly recommends that the bill be enacted into law at an early date.

To Aid Old Soldiers.

A few days after Representative Marshall of North Dakota had introduced his bill providing that old soldiers shall have the franking privilege when returning their pension vouchers, a similar bill, but less carefully worked out, was introduced by Representative Dick of Ohio. It is regarded as probable that legislation of this sort will be heard of in the present congress. It is favored by the pension office and by the postoffice department, and will save something like $75,000 a year to the old soldiers who are on the pension lists. Besides, it will make the return of their vouchers more prompt. Under the present system, these old pensioners frequently write the wrong address, and their letters are sometimes a month reaching their proper destination. With the franked envelopes introduced by the printer, such delays would be avoided.

Army Uniform Changes.

The quartermaster general of the army is at work on some important changes in the army uniform. One is the substitution of metal for cloth chevrons on the sleeves of enlisted men's uniforms. It is found practically impossible to find a color of cloth which will not fade. The metal chevron will be fastened to the sleeve and will be detachable. The samples on which the proposal is based are much smaller than the old cloth ones and much more attractive. Another innovation is the introduction of a so-called "V" on the collar of the uniform. This device contributes to the appearance and comfort of the garment. It is also proposed to give the collar a buttonhole effect, imparting greater capacity to the pocket, which will be "choked off" near the collar to protect the contents of the pocket from loss.

The quartermaster general is also considering the advisability of changing the present hat that when it is wet it becomes soft and does not retain its shape. An ingenious device will probably be brought in the shape of a woven cord which will run through a perforation in the rim on each side of the crown. This cord will be attached to the rear of the hat to secure it on his head by bringing the cords into a knot at the back of the neck, or, if he prefers, using the cord for the same purpose by bringing one end of it down to a buttonhole. Hitherto, this security has been obtained by means of a strap sewed to the lining of the hat and passing over the crown, which is continually breaking away from the hat and rendering itself a nuisance rather than a thing of use.

Moody on Western Seaports.

As showing something of the practical character of the work to be done by the new naval training station, to be located somewhere on Lake Michigan, near Chicago, the following from the report of the committee on the submitting the report of the commission selected to choose a site, will be interesting:

"At the present time a large number of recruits for the naval service are obtained from the states, of which Lake Michigan is the center. These men are of high quality in every respect, and after observation and service either in the navy or the merchant marine, and in many cases become well fitted for responsible positions in private business. It is respectfully recommended that the commission to congress the report of this board and the establishment of a naval training station on the great lakes in accordance with its recommendations."

Fight Against Smoot.

Nearly every state in the union has protested to the senate, thru religious and patriotic societies, against the presence of Senator Reed Smoot in the senate, on account of his connection with the Mormon church. These protests have all been put on file. They will have the slightest influence on the senate in the determination of the case; in fact, Senator Hoar of Massachusetts and several of his colleagues on the floor of the senate, considering the case, resent this interference by the public with what they regard as a judicial question purely. The facts will be brought out by hearings before the committee, and the findings will be made under them, without regard to petitions. It is very freely said at the capitol that the Smoot petition is a waste of good time, pens, ink, paper and postage stamps. Perhaps a hundred church organizations in Minnesota, almost a score of them in Minneapolis, have come to the front with these protests.

COLORADO GETS GUNS

War Department Honors Governor's Request for Militia Supplies.

Washington, Nov. 26.—The war department has honored the requisition of the governor of Colorado for 1,000 long-john rifles and clothing supplies and other equipment for 1,000 men. The supplies will be issued under the provisions of the Dick bill for the arming of volunteer organized militia of the states and territories.

It is stated at the war department that the state of Colorado is entitled under the law and they undoubtedly are issued at this time because the Colorado militia had been organized and equipped for the purpose of maintaining order in the districts affected by labor strikes.

All the supplies asked for are in stock and will be delivered to the state authorities at once. This action has no direct relation to the visit of Major General Bates to Colorado to investigate the labor troubles for the reason that no report has yet been received from him on the subject.

SEPTUAGENARIAN A SUICIDE.

Port Wayne, Ind., Nov. 26.—John J. P. Schiel, aged 74, killed himself yesterday because of despondency. His wife says he revealed all day about his horse, which was owned by him, and was no longer able to help him earn a living. He was too poor to buy another horse.

First Thanksgiving Day Was Observed Just One Hundred and Fourteen Years Ago.

Holiday Was Due to a Proclamation Issued by President George Washington.

Washington, Nov. 26.—By a peculiar coincidence, Thursday, the 26th of November, the day on which the first Thanksgiving falls this year, was set apart by George Washington in the first year of his administration as a national day of thanksgiving. "Whereas" recited the duty of all mankind to be thankful, while his second read:

"Both houses of congress have, by their joint committee, requested me to recommend to the people of the United States a day of public thanksgiving and prayer, to be observed by acknowledging with grateful hearts the many and signal favors of Almighty God, especially by affording them an opportunity peaceably to establish a form of government for their safety and happiness."

Now, therefore, do I recommend and assign Thursday, the 26th day of November next, to be devoted by the people of these states to the service of God and the glorious Being who is the beneficent author of all the good that was, that is, or that will be; that we may then all unite in praising His great goodness and humble thanks for his kind care and protection of the people of this country previous to their becoming a nation; for the signal and merciful interpositions of His favorable interpositions of His providence in the course and conclusion of the late war; for the great degree of tranquillity, union and plenty which we have since enjoyed; for the peaceable and rational manner in which we have been enabled to establish constitutions of government for our safety and happiness; and for the national one now lately instituted; for the civil and religious liberty with which we are blessed, and the means we have of acquiring and diffusing useful knowledge; and, in general, for all the great and various favors which he has been pleased to confer upon us.

The Second Thanksgiving.

But Washington not having had a New England rearing, was not impressed with the necessity of an annual day of thanksgiving. In 1795, congress failed to request him to call one, for there was no proclamation of this sort again issued for five years. On the 26th of November, 1795, he issued a proclamation naming Thursday, Feb. 19, as a day of public thanksgiving and prayer, chiefly on account of the overture of the whiskey rebellion in eastern Pennsylvania, as certain passages of the paper show, as follows:

"When we review the calamities which afflict so many other parts of the Union, the condition of the United States affords much matter of consolation and satisfaction. Our exemption hitherto from foreign wars, the tranquillity of our domestic affairs, the recent confirmation of that tranquillity by the suppression of an insurrection which so wantonly threatened it, the happy course of our public affairs in general, the unexampled prosperity of all classes of our citizens, and the circumstances which peculiarly mark out the situation with indications of the divine beneficence toward us."

The Adams Thanksgiving.

The next presidential Thanksgiving maker was John Adams, and his traditional observance of a national day of the old fast day spirit with that of thanksgiving. He issued a proclamation which recited, among other things, that "his duty, at all times incumbent, is so especially in seasons of difficulty or of danger, when existing or threatening calamities, the just judgment of God against the nation, and the solemn call to repentance and reformation."

As the United States of America is at present placed in a hazardous and unfavorable position, conduct and demands of a foreign power, evinced by repeated refusals to receive our messengers, and the presence and the infliction of injuries on our commerce, and the infliction of injuries on many of our fellow-citizens while engaged in their lawful business on the sea—under the shadow of a flag, and the presence of the old fast day spirit with that of thanksgiving. He issued a proclamation which recited, among other things, that "his duty, at all times incumbent, is so especially in seasons of difficulty or of danger, when existing or threatening calamities, the just judgment of God against the nation, and the solemn call to repentance and reformation."

I have therefore thought fit to recommend, and I do hereby recommend, that Wednesday, the 26th day of May, be observed throughout the United States as a day of solemn humiliation, fasting and prayer; that the citizens of these states, abstaining from that day from their customary worldly occupations, offer their devout addresses to the father of mercies.

And finally, I recommend that on the said day the duties of humiliation and prayer be performed with fervent thanksgiving to the bestower of every good gift, not only for his having hitherto protected and preserved the people of these United States in their independent enjoyment of their religious and civil freedom, but also for having prospered them in a wonderful progress of population, and for conferring on them many and great favors conducive to the happiness and prosperity of a nation.

Given under my hand and the seal of the United States of America, at Philadelphia, this 23d day of March, A. D. 1798, and of the independence of the said states the 22d.

The following spring President Adams appointed another fast day, alluding in his proclamation to "the most precious interests of the people of the United States, still held in jeopardy by the hostile designs and insidious acts of a foreign nation, as well as by the dissemination among them of those principles subversive of the moral and social obligations, that have produced incalculable mischief and misery in other countries."

Madison's Proclamations.

Madison four times issued proclamations setting apart days for religious observances. In July, 1812, he designated Thursday, Aug. 3, "as a day of public humiliation and prayer." A year later, in pursuance of a joint resolution of congress he appointed the second Thursday of September as a Thanksgiving. In the autumn of 1814 congress gave him the
