

TOWN DAYS' TROPHY FOR THE NORTHWEST

MINNESOTA TOWNSMEN AT RICHARDS WIN

SECRETARY OF INTERIOR RULES THEY MAY HOLD LAND.

Order Came Just as They Were to Be Expelled from the Proposed New Town by the Indian Authorities—Improvements Will Be Started in Earnest and a Boom Is Expected the Coming Spring.

Special to The Journal. Cass Lake, Minn., Dec. 3.—There is great rejoicing among the occupants of the new townsite of Richards, the first station east of Cass Lake, on the Eastern Minnesota railway, because of the decision of the secretary of the interior, holding that their contention that they were entitled, under the townsite law, passed last March, to the land occupied as a townsite, is valid.

The news came on Monday, just in time to prevent the Indians from forcibly ejecting from the land, Captain C. H. Beaulieu, acting Indian agent in charge at Bena, had made all preparations to order the settlers off, and if he had not been obeyed would undoubtedly have used force to carry out his orders. In fact, verbal orders had been issued to call out all the Indians on the reservation, if the settlers did not leave peacefully.

This would not have been at all necessary, as the settlers would have left the premises, but not without protest. As it was the order for Major Scott were not transmitted to Captain Beaulieu until Tuesday noon.

Now that the Indian authorities have been instructed not to interfere with the occupants of the townsite, the matter of making improvements will be rushed, and soon houses will dot a large portion of the 200 acres taken for a townsite. As it will be the only townsite authorized in the recently-created forest reserve, the development will be watched with much interest.

FELL DOWN A SHAFT

Jacob Brezler, an Anoka Grocer, Injured and Made Unconscious.

ANOKA, MINN.—Jacob Brezler fell down the elevator shaft of his grocery store in the basement and was picked up unconscious. His arm and left leg were hurt.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Dyer celebrated their twentieth anniversary in the presence of sixty friends. They were remembered with a china dinner set.

The Woman's club meets on Friday with Mrs. B. B. Benedict.

The Hatwath Literary society is preparing a Longfellow.

Ward Atkinson died Tuesday at the home of O. H. Brown, in Maple Grove, Hennepin county. The remains were sent to Cornhusk, Shawansee county, Mich.

DEATH IN A STATE SCHOOL

Girl Scolded at Faribault—News Withheld by the Officials.

FARIBAULT, MINN.—Mary Ziegler, whose mother resides in St. Cloud, was scolded to death at the state school for the feeble-minded. According to the report which reached the public, the girl died of a heart ailment. Her mother, Mrs. J. W. Ziegler, of St. Cloud, Minn., is a well-to-do woman and the girl was a favorite of the family.

The superintendent asserts the accident was accidental, but the mother insists that she was scolded to death.

The superintendent furnished the following facts: The girl was scolded to death by her mother, Mrs. J. W. Ziegler, of St. Cloud, Minn.

The superintendent furnished the following facts: The girl was scolded to death by her mother, Mrs. J. W. Ziegler, of St. Cloud, Minn.

The superintendent furnished the following facts: The girl was scolded to death by her mother, Mrs. J. W. Ziegler, of St. Cloud, Minn.

The superintendent furnished the following facts: The girl was scolded to death by her mother, Mrs. J. W. Ziegler, of St. Cloud, Minn.

The superintendent furnished the following facts: The girl was scolded to death by her mother, Mrs. J. W. Ziegler, of St. Cloud, Minn.

The superintendent furnished the following facts: The girl was scolded to death by her mother, Mrs. J. W. Ziegler, of St. Cloud, Minn.

The superintendent furnished the following facts: The girl was scolded to death by her mother, Mrs. J. W. Ziegler, of St. Cloud, Minn.

The superintendent furnished the following facts: The girl was scolded to death by her mother, Mrs. J. W. Ziegler, of St. Cloud, Minn.

The superintendent furnished the following facts: The girl was scolded to death by her mother, Mrs. J. W. Ziegler, of St. Cloud, Minn.

The superintendent furnished the following facts: The girl was scolded to death by her mother, Mrs. J. W. Ziegler, of St. Cloud, Minn.

The superintendent furnished the following facts: The girl was scolded to death by her mother, Mrs. J. W. Ziegler, of St. Cloud, Minn.

The superintendent furnished the following facts: The girl was scolded to death by her mother, Mrs. J. W. Ziegler, of St. Cloud, Minn.

The superintendent furnished the following facts: The girl was scolded to death by her mother, Mrs. J. W. Ziegler, of St. Cloud, Minn.

The superintendent furnished the following facts: The girl was scolded to death by her mother, Mrs. J. W. Ziegler, of St. Cloud, Minn.

The superintendent furnished the following facts: The girl was scolded to death by her mother, Mrs. J. W. Ziegler, of St. Cloud, Minn.

The superintendent furnished the following facts: The girl was scolded to death by her mother, Mrs. J. W. Ziegler, of St. Cloud, Minn.

IOWA AFTER THE SPOOR TROPHY AGAIN

Team Which is Representing the State College in the Stock Judging Contest at Chicago.

Reading from left to right the men are Professor W. J. Kennedy, C. E. Howard, New Providence, Iowa; E. A. Stout, Iowa; H. Ellerberg, Ames, Iowa; W. A. Tener, Brevard, N. C.; F. M. Hanson, Goldenfield, Iowa.

Ames, Iowa, Dec. 3.—Iowa State College is confident of winning again the Spoor trophy for stock judging at the Chicago Livestock exposition. The men have all talent, the regular class work under Professor W. J. Kennedy and Professor Ruthford of the animal husbandry department. They were selected from their standings in class work in stock judging, and were chosen for the coveted places on the team.

The team was unusually keen, and strong men have been selected to represent Ames college. Joint instructions with the auxiliary, the R. N. A. is talked of.

SOUTH DAKOTA STOCK A PREY OF FIERCE WINDS

THOUSANDS OF CATTLE WERE AT POINT OF PERISHING.

Great Congestion Along the Belle Fourche River because of Cold and Lack of Water—Usual Dringling Holes Frozen Solid—What the Irrigation Scheme for the Hills Will Do for Agriculture and Mining.

Special to The Journal. Belle Fourche, S. D., Dec. 3.—Probably the drifting of range stock is the best indication of short pasture. During the late cold snap, lasting one week, with almost continuous northwest winds, cattle drifted in many instances fifty miles. About the close of the cold weather 15,000 head of cattle had to be driven back from the settlements along the Belle Fourche river, where they had congregated. These cattle had been grazing all over a large V-shaped tract of land between Belle Fourche and Indian creek. During the storm they kept moving until they came together at the point of the "V," where they were really helpless and would have died by the thousands had they not been driven back to the river.

The extreme cold weather has frozen up all drinking holes and as there is no snow, range cattle are suffering severely for lack of water.

The Belle Fourche Irrigation Ditch. The agitation for national irrigation is attracting many settlers into western South Dakota. Some have filed homesteads under the projected government ditch, which is to be known as the Belle Fourche project, upon which a corps of surveyors worked thru the entire summer.

Butte county is bigger than the state of Connecticut, and when this program is carried out, it will give the state a new outlet for its surplus produce.

Butte county is bigger than the state of Connecticut, and when this program is carried out, it will give the state a new outlet for its surplus produce.

Butte county is bigger than the state of Connecticut, and when this program is carried out, it will give the state a new outlet for its surplus produce.

Butte county is bigger than the state of Connecticut, and when this program is carried out, it will give the state a new outlet for its surplus produce.

Butte county is bigger than the state of Connecticut, and when this program is carried out, it will give the state a new outlet for its surplus produce.

Butte county is bigger than the state of Connecticut, and when this program is carried out, it will give the state a new outlet for its surplus produce.

Butte county is bigger than the state of Connecticut, and when this program is carried out, it will give the state a new outlet for its surplus produce.

Butte county is bigger than the state of Connecticut, and when this program is carried out, it will give the state a new outlet for its surplus produce.

Butte county is bigger than the state of Connecticut, and when this program is carried out, it will give the state a new outlet for its surplus produce.

Butte county is bigger than the state of Connecticut, and when this program is carried out, it will give the state a new outlet for its surplus produce.

Butte county is bigger than the state of Connecticut, and when this program is carried out, it will give the state a new outlet for its surplus produce.

Butte county is bigger than the state of Connecticut, and when this program is carried out, it will give the state a new outlet for its surplus produce.

Butte county is bigger than the state of Connecticut, and when this program is carried out, it will give the state a new outlet for its surplus produce.

Butte county is bigger than the state of Connecticut, and when this program is carried out, it will give the state a new outlet for its surplus produce.

Butte county is bigger than the state of Connecticut, and when this program is carried out, it will give the state a new outlet for its surplus produce.

Butte county is bigger than the state of Connecticut, and when this program is carried out, it will give the state a new outlet for its surplus produce.

Butte county is bigger than the state of Connecticut, and when this program is carried out, it will give the state a new outlet for its surplus produce.

Butte county is bigger than the state of Connecticut, and when this program is carried out, it will give the state a new outlet for its surplus produce.

Butte county is bigger than the state of Connecticut, and when this program is carried out, it will give the state a new outlet for its surplus produce.

Butte county is bigger than the state of Connecticut, and when this program is carried out, it will give the state a new outlet for its surplus produce.

Butte county is bigger than the state of Connecticut, and when this program is carried out, it will give the state a new outlet for its surplus produce.

Butte county is bigger than the state of Connecticut, and when this program is carried out, it will give the state a new outlet for its surplus produce.

Butte county is bigger than the state of Connecticut, and when this program is carried out, it will give the state a new outlet for its surplus produce.

Butte county is bigger than the state of Connecticut, and when this program is carried out, it will give the state a new outlet for its surplus produce.

Butte county is bigger than the state of Connecticut, and when this program is carried out, it will give the state a new outlet for its surplus produce.

Butte county is bigger than the state of Connecticut, and when this program is carried out, it will give the state a new outlet for its surplus produce.

AFTER THE PRESIDENT'S OWN HEART

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Claude of Woodstock, Iowa, and Their Seventeen Children.

Special to The Journal. Woodstock, Iowa, Dec. 3.—It is learned on excellent authority that Heinze has decided not to contest seriously the passage for the fair trials bill which has been introduced at the extraordinary session of the legislature. Neither will he oppose the adoption of the measure which gives the supreme court power to review facts in equity cases.

INDICTMENT OF MAJOR MURPHY

LEADING FLICKERTAIL POLITICIAN ACCUSED BY GRAND JURY.

Special to The Journal. Grand Forks, N. D., Dec. 3.—Much more than a passing interest is taken in the indictment of Major J. S. Murphy, a prominent politician, former government official and a pioneer resident of Minot, by the United States grand jury on a charge of perjury. The fact was telephoned to The Journal yesterday afternoon, and later Major Murphy furnished a bond of $2,000 and was released from restraint.

The charge preferred against Major Murphy is that he made a false statement in connection with a pension voucher in favor of Mrs. Josephine Grinnell, in which he took oath that he knew of his own knowledge that she had not remarried.

As a matter of fact, Mrs. Grinnell had been married after the death of her soldier husband and had been divorced at Minot three years before she was granted a pension.

"The Woman in the Case." Mrs. Grinnell, who is a half-breed Indian, her parents sent her to school at Hampton, Va., where she remained for three years, being among the first of the western Indians to enter an eastern school.

Upon her return from Virginia her mother arranged for her marriage to George W. Grinnell, a civil war veteran of the Sixth United States infantry. This agreement was in the form of the usual Indian purchase, but the father demurred.

At the time of this marriage she was only 14, and after the departure of Morris her parents sent her to school at Hampton, Va., where she remained for three years, being among the first of the western Indians to enter an eastern school.

Upon her return from Virginia her mother arranged for her marriage to George W. Grinnell, a civil war veteran of the Sixth United States infantry. This agreement was in the form of the usual Indian purchase, but the father demurred.

At the time of this marriage she was only 14, and after the departure of Morris her parents sent her to school at Hampton, Va., where she remained for three years, being among the first of the western Indians to enter an eastern school.

Upon her return from Virginia her mother arranged for her marriage to George W. Grinnell, a civil war veteran of the Sixth United States infantry. This agreement was in the form of the usual Indian purchase, but the father demurred.

At the time of this marriage she was only 14, and after the departure of Morris her parents sent her to school at Hampton, Va., where she remained for three years, being among the first of the western Indians to enter an eastern school.

Upon her return from Virginia her mother arranged for her marriage to George W. Grinnell, a civil war veteran of the Sixth United States infantry. This agreement was in the form of the usual Indian purchase, but the father demurred.

At the time of this marriage she was only 14, and after the departure of Morris her parents sent her to school at Hampton, Va., where she remained for three years, being among the first of the western Indians to enter an eastern school.

Upon her return from Virginia her mother arranged for her marriage to George W. Grinnell, a civil war veteran of the Sixth United States infantry. This agreement was in the form of the usual Indian purchase, but the father demurred.

At the time of this marriage she was only 14, and after the departure of Morris her parents sent her to school at Hampton, Va., where she remained for three years, being among the first of the western Indians to enter an eastern school.

Upon her return from Virginia her mother arranged for her marriage to George W. Grinnell, a civil war veteran of the Sixth United States infantry. This agreement was in the form of the usual Indian purchase, but the father demurred.

At the time of this marriage she was only 14, and after the departure of Morris her parents sent her to school at Hampton, Va., where she remained for three years, being among the first of the western Indians to enter an eastern school.

Upon her return from Virginia her mother arranged for her marriage to George W. Grinnell, a civil war veteran of the Sixth United States infantry. This agreement was in the form of the usual Indian purchase, but the father demurred.

At the time of this marriage she was only 14, and after the departure of Morris her parents sent her to school at Hampton, Va., where she remained for three years, being among the first of the western Indians to enter an eastern school.

Upon her return from Virginia her mother arranged for her marriage to George W. Grinnell, a civil war veteran of the Sixth United States infantry. This agreement was in the form of the usual Indian purchase, but the father demurred.

At the time of this marriage she was only 14, and after the departure of Morris her parents sent her to school at Hampton, Va., where she remained for three years, being among the first of the western Indians to enter an eastern school.

Upon her return from Virginia her mother arranged for her marriage to George W. Grinnell, a civil war veteran of the Sixth United States infantry. This agreement was in the form of the usual Indian purchase, but the father demurred.

At the time of this marriage she was only 14, and after the departure of Morris her parents sent her to school at Hampton, Va., where she remained for three years, being among the first of the western Indians to enter an eastern school.

Upon her return from Virginia her mother arranged for her marriage to George W. Grinnell, a civil war veteran of the Sixth United States infantry. This agreement was in the form of the usual Indian purchase, but the father demurred.

At the time of this marriage she was only 14, and after the departure of Morris her parents sent her to school at Hampton, Va., where she remained for three years, being among the first of the western Indians to enter an eastern school.

Upon her return from Virginia her mother arranged for her marriage to George W. Grinnell, a civil war veteran of the Sixth United States infantry. This agreement was in the form of the usual Indian purchase, but the father demurred.

At the time of this marriage she was only 14, and after the departure of Morris her parents sent her to school at Hampton, Va., where she remained for three years, being among the first of the western Indians to enter an eastern school.

Upon her return from Virginia her mother arranged for her marriage to George W. Grinnell, a civil war veteran of the Sixth United States infantry. This agreement was in the form of the usual Indian purchase, but the father demurred.

At the time of this marriage she was only 14, and after the departure of Morris her parents sent her to school at Hampton, Va., where she remained for three years, being among the first of the western Indians to enter an eastern school.

Upon her return from Virginia her mother arranged for her marriage to George W. Grinnell, a civil war veteran of the Sixth United States infantry. This agreement was in the form of the usual Indian purchase, but the father demurred.

At the time of this marriage she was only 14, and after the departure of Morris her parents sent her to school at Hampton, Va., where she remained for three years, being among the first of the western Indians to enter an eastern school.

Upon her return from Virginia her mother arranged for her marriage to George W. Grinnell, a civil war veteran of the Sixth United States infantry. This agreement was in the form of the usual Indian purchase, but the father demurred.

At the time of this marriage she was only 14, and after the departure of Morris her parents sent her to school at Hampton, Va., where she remained for three years, being among the first of the western Indians to enter an eastern school.

Upon her return from Virginia her mother arranged for her marriage to George W. Grinnell, a civil war veteran of the Sixth United States infantry. This agreement was in the form of the usual Indian purchase, but the father demurred.

At the time of this marriage she was only 14, and after the departure of Morris her parents sent her to school at Hampton, Va., where she remained for three years, being among the first of the western Indians to enter an eastern school.

Upon her return from Virginia her mother arranged for her marriage to George W. Grinnell, a civil war veteran of the Sixth United States infantry. This agreement was in the form of the usual Indian purchase, but the father demurred.

At the time of this marriage she was only 14, and after the departure of Morris her parents sent her to school at Hampton, Va., where she remained for three years, being among the first of the western Indians to enter an eastern school.

Upon her return from Virginia her mother arranged for her marriage to George W. Grinnell, a civil war veteran of the Sixth United States infantry. This agreement was in the form of the usual Indian purchase, but the father demurred.

At the time of this marriage she was only 14, and after the departure of Morris her parents sent her to school at Hampton, Va., where she remained for three years, being among the first of the western Indians to enter an eastern school.

AFTER THE PRESIDENT'S OWN HEART

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Claude of Woodstock, Iowa, and Their Seventeen Children.

Special to The Journal. Woodstock, Iowa, Dec. 3.—It is learned on excellent authority that Heinze has decided not to contest seriously the passage for the fair trials bill which has been introduced at the extraordinary session of the legislature. Neither will he oppose the adoption of the measure which gives the supreme court power to review facts in equity cases.

INDICTMENT OF MAJOR MURPHY

LEADING FLICKERTAIL POLITICIAN ACCUSED BY GRAND JURY.

Special to The Journal. Grand Forks, N. D., Dec. 3.—Much more than a passing interest is taken in the indictment of Major J. S. Murphy, a prominent politician, former government official and a pioneer resident of Minot, by the United States grand jury on a charge of perjury.

The charge preferred against Major Murphy is that he made a false statement in connection with a pension voucher in favor of Mrs. Josephine Grinnell, in which he took oath that he knew of his own knowledge that she had not remarried.

As a matter of fact, Mrs. Grinnell had been married after the death of her soldier husband and had been divorced at Minot three years before she was granted a pension.

"The Woman in the Case." Mrs. Grinnell, who is a half-breed Indian, her parents sent her to school at Hampton, Va., where she remained for three years, being among the first of the western Indians to enter an eastern school.

Upon her return from Virginia her mother arranged for her marriage to George W. Grinnell, a civil war veteran of the Sixth United States infantry. This agreement was in the form of the usual Indian purchase, but the father demurred.

At the time of this marriage she was only 14, and after the departure of Morris her parents sent her to school at Hampton, Va., where she remained for three years, being among the first of the western Indians to enter an eastern school.

Upon her return from Virginia her mother arranged for her marriage to George W. Grinnell, a civil war veteran of the Sixth United States infantry. This agreement was in the form of the usual Indian purchase, but the father demurred.

At the time of this marriage she was only 14, and after the departure of Morris her parents sent her to school at Hampton, Va., where she remained for three years, being among the first of the western Indians to enter an eastern school.

Upon her return from Virginia her mother arranged for her marriage to George W. Grinnell, a civil war veteran of the Sixth United States infantry. This agreement was in the form of the usual Indian purchase, but the father demurred.

At the time of this marriage she was only 14, and after the departure of Morris her parents sent her to school at Hampton, Va., where she remained for three years, being among the first of the western Indians to enter an eastern school.

Upon her return from Virginia her mother arranged for her marriage to George W. Grinnell, a civil war veteran of the Sixth United States infantry. This agreement was in the form of the usual Indian purchase, but the father demurred.

At the time of this marriage she was only 14, and after the departure of Morris her parents sent her to school at Hampton, Va., where she remained for three years, being among the first of the western Indians to enter an eastern school.

Upon her return from Virginia her mother arranged for her marriage to George W. Grinnell, a civil war veteran of the Sixth United States infantry. This agreement was in the form of the usual Indian purchase, but the father demurred.

At the time of this marriage she was only 14, and after the departure of Morris her parents sent her to school at Hampton, Va., where she remained for three years, being among the first of the western Indians to enter an eastern school.

Upon her return from Virginia her mother arranged for her marriage to George W. Grinnell, a civil war veteran of the Sixth United States infantry. This agreement was in the form of the usual Indian purchase, but the father demurred.

At the time of this marriage she was only 14, and after the departure of Morris her parents sent her to school at Hampton, Va., where she remained for three years, being among the first of the western Indians to enter an eastern school.

Upon her return from Virginia her mother arranged for her marriage to George W. Grinnell, a civil war veteran of the Sixth United States infantry. This agreement was in the form of the usual Indian purchase, but the father demurred.

At the time of this marriage she was only 14, and after the departure of Morris her parents sent her to school at Hampton, Va., where she remained for three years, being among the first of the western Indians to enter an eastern school.

Upon her return from Virginia her mother arranged for her marriage to George W. Grinnell, a civil war veteran of the Sixth United States infantry. This agreement was in the form of the usual Indian purchase, but the father demurred.

At the time of this marriage she was only 14, and after the departure of Morris her parents sent her to school at Hampton, Va., where she remained for three years, being among the first of the western Indians to enter an eastern school.

Upon her return from Virginia her mother arranged for her marriage to George W. Grinnell, a civil war veteran of the Sixth United States infantry. This agreement was in the form of the usual Indian purchase, but the father demurred.

At the time of this marriage she was only 14, and after the departure of Morris her parents sent her to school at Hampton, Va., where she remained for three years, being among the first of the western Indians to enter an eastern school.

Upon her return from Virginia her mother arranged for her marriage to George W. Grinnell, a civil war veteran of the Sixth United States infantry. This agreement was in the form of the usual Indian purchase, but the father demurred.

At the time of this marriage she was only 14, and after the departure of Morris her parents sent her to school at Hampton, Va., where she remained for three years, being among the first of the western Indians to enter an eastern school.

Upon her return from Virginia her mother arranged for her marriage to George W. Grinnell, a civil war veteran of the Sixth United States infantry. This agreement was in the form of the usual Indian purchase, but the father demurred.

At the time of this marriage she was only 14, and after the departure of Morris her parents sent her to school at Hampton, Va., where she remained for three years, being among the first of the western Indians to enter an eastern school.

Upon her return from Virginia her mother arranged for her marriage to George W. Grinnell, a civil war veteran of the Sixth United States infantry. This agreement was in the form of the usual Indian purchase, but the father demurred.

At the time of this marriage she was only 14, and after the departure of Morris her parents sent her to school at Hampton, Va., where she remained for three years, being among the first of the western Indians to enter an eastern school.

Upon her return from Virginia her mother arranged for her marriage to George W. Grinnell, a civil war veteran of the Sixth United States infantry. This agreement was in the form of the usual Indian purchase, but the father demurred.

At the time of this marriage she was only 14, and after the departure of Morris her parents sent her to school at Hampton, Va., where she remained for three years, being among the first of the western Indians to enter an eastern school.

Upon her return from Virginia her mother arranged for her marriage to George W. Grinnell, a civil war veteran of the Sixth United States infantry. This agreement was in the form of the usual Indian purchase, but the father demurred.

At the time of this marriage she was only 14, and after the departure of Morris her parents sent her to school at Hampton, Va., where she remained for three years, being among the first of the western Indians to enter an eastern school.

Upon her return from Virginia her mother arranged for her marriage to George W. Grinnell, a civil war veteran of the Sixth United States infantry. This agreement was in the form of the usual Indian purchase, but the father demurred.

At the time of this marriage she was only 14, and after the departure of Morris her parents sent her to school at Hampton, Va., where she remained for three years, being among the first of the western Indians to enter an eastern school.

Upon her return from Virginia her mother arranged for her marriage to George W. Grinnell, a civil war veteran of the Sixth United States infantry. This agreement was in the form of the usual Indian purchase, but the father demurred.

At the time of this marriage she was only 14, and after the departure of Morris her parents sent her to school at Hampton, Va., where she remained for three years, being among the first of the western Indians to enter an eastern school.

Upon her return from Virginia her mother arranged for her marriage to George W. Grinnell, a civil war veteran of the Sixth United States infantry. This agreement was in the form of the usual Indian purchase, but the father demurred.

At the time of this marriage she was only 14, and after the departure of Morris her parents sent her to school at Hampton, Va., where she remained for three years, being among the first of the western Indians to enter an eastern school.

HEINZE NOT IN FIGHTING MOOD

EXPECTS NEW FAIR TRIALS BILL TO BE UNCONSTITUTIONAL.

Special to The Journal. Helena, Mont., Dec. 3.—It is learned on excellent authority that Heinze has decided not to contest seriously the passage for the fair trials bill which has been introduced at the extraordinary session of the legislature. Neither will he oppose the adoption of the measure which gives the supreme court power to review facts in equity cases.

INDICTMENT OF MAJOR MURPHY

LEADING FLICKERTAIL POLITICIAN ACCUSED BY GRAND JURY.

Special to The Journal. Grand Forks, N. D., Dec. 3.—Much more than a passing interest