WARSHIPS AT CHEMULPHO

A Strong Russian Squadron Threatens the Port of Korea's Capital City.

Eight Warships, Including Two Battleships, Are There and Threaten to Land Troops.

Move May Precipitate the Long-Pending War Between Russia and Japan.

Tokio, Dec. 9.—A strong Russian squadron, consisting of eight warships, including two battleships, has arrived at Chemulpho, Korea, the port of Seoul, the capital, to support Russia's opposition to the proposed opening of Yonampoh to the commerce of the world.

Washington, Dec. 9.—It has been reported repeatedly that the Russians have been fortifying Yonampoh on the Yalu river but the reports appear to have been greatly exaggerated.

Korea was then said to have strongly objected to Russia's interference as being a violation of Korea's national rights.

A dispatch from St. Petersburg Nov. 27 said Russia was willing to concede something but she opposed the opening of Yonampoh on account of its proximity to the mouth of the Yalu river.

Korea Embarrassed. A dispatch to the Associated Press from Seoul, Korea, Dec. 5, announced that Minister Alexieff, the Russian viceroy in Korea, had sent a number of warships to Chemulpho.

RUSSIA MAGNANIMOUS

Willing to Concede Something for Acknowledgement of Claims.

St. Petersburg, Dec. 9.—After conferring with the czar yesterday, Foreign Minister Lamsdorf telegraphed to Baron de Rosen, the Russian minister in Japan, and Admiral Alexieff, viceroy in the far east, proposals for modifications in the basis of settlement suggested by Japan with reference to Korea.

Russia will agree to acknowledge Japan's predominance in Korea amounting virtually to protectorate, subject to certain reservations regarding coast defenses or stations, to prevent any interruption of Russian sea communication with Vladivostok and Port Arthur.

All Russia agrees in return is that Japan will seek to leave the question of the evacuation of Manchuria in abeyance and recognize Russia's special position and interests there.

SHOULD TEACH PATRIOTISM

Senator Beveridge Says Schools and Universities Should Include It in Curricula.

Advocates Also the Teaching of Conservatism as Necessary in a Republic.

Indianapolis, Dec. 9.—Dr. Edwin Depauw was inaugurated president of Depauw university at Greencastle today.

"We expect our nation to lead the world. But America will not lead the world unless the sense of civic duty is as keen as instinct, as exalted as faith. To make it so is the duty of every teacher in a republic, in short, civic education is the soul of the school."

"And patriotism can be taught. Other nations are teaching it. Education is the finest thing in the world if it increases interest in the nation—if it produces brave and effective citizens. Education is the beautiful thing if it destroys interest in citizenship."

"Our institutions of learning, from the humblest country school house to the greatest university, ought to give some portion of an hour each day to the teaching of civics, to instruction in the pricelessness of our institutions, to exhortation that the highest duty of every boy and girl is to live and die for the republic."

"In a republic, too, the school must teach conservatism. Conservatism, instruction in the spirit of moderation, is the second great duty of the school as an agency of our national life."

TAWNEY STICKS TO LOWER HOUSE

Winona Congressman Reconsiders His Intention to Run for Governor.

Recent Flying Trip to Minnesota Was Taken to Discuss It With Friends.

They Told Him They Could Not Support Him in His Senatorial Ambition.

Congressman James A. Tawney of Winona spent three days in Minnesota last week canvassing the political situation. He came out with the idea of announcing himself as a candidate for governor if he found the conditions right.

Mr. Tawney was in St. Paul Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. During that time a score of prominent politicians from all sections of the state came in to see him and discuss his chances.

At this meeting nearly all present informed the Winona statesman that they would support him for governor if he ran and that they believed his chances for the nomination good.

However, for him to become a candidate for the senate meant to bring him in opposition to both Senators Nelson and Clapp.

Mr. Tawney said he had given up any idea of running. His only object in running for governor was to use the office as a stepping stone to the senate.

COLOMBIAN TROOPS ARE OFF FOR PANAMA

Army of 1,100 Men Forms Advance Guard in Attempt to Reach the Isthmus Overland—Others to Follow.

The Advance Guard Is Landed Near the Atrato, on the Gulf of Darien Coast, and Will Seek a Way Thru the Mountains—The Whole of Colombia Is Under Arms—Serious Fighting Likely.

La Guatra, Venezuela, Dec. 9.—The French steamer Versailles, which has arrived here from Savannah, reports that Colombian vessels have landed 1,100 men from Cartagena, near the mouth of the Atrato river, on the Gulf of Darien, to open a way over the Darien mountains into Panama.

Other troops from the department of Cauca, Colombia, are said to be converging on Panama and from all parts of Colombia troops are reported to be marching or awaiting the result of General Reyes' mission to Washington.

Position of the United States Has Been Clearly Stated. Washington, Dec. 9.—Dr. Herran, the Colombian charge, to-day authorized the statement that if troops from Cartagena have landed near the mouth of Atrato river it is directly in opposition to the policy of both himself and General Reyes.

General Reyes stated that the La Guayara dispatch was the first information received by the Colombian troops. He declared, however, that if it is true, as stated, that such a movement has taken place it was without any orders from direct, but from the government at Bogota.

General Reyes confirmed the statement recently made by Admiral Coghlan in a report to the navy department that prior to his departure for Washington he had given instructions to the Colombian troops to make no hostile demonstration until he was heard from, and said that these troops were now awaiting orders, which, however, would not come from Bogota, but from the government at Bogota.

Asked as to the probable length of his stay in the United States, he replied that it was indefinite. He would, he said, hold another conference with Secretary Hay in the course of the next few days.

Will Protect Isthmus. The general has been fully informed by the president himself as to the intentions of the navy department in the United States respecting the Isthmus. He was told by the president that the United States had determined to maintain the Isthmus as a neutral zone against all comers.

While this guarantee is contained in a treaty now pending before the United States senate and as yet unratified, the administration has for some time past been acting upon the theory that the United States is in a position to enforce all necessary preparations have been made to exert whatever physical force may be necessary to protect the Isthmus against any invasion of confining military and naval operations to the narrow strip of the right of way across the Isthmus it has been decided that the United States requires the extension of the protected zone to include the entire territory of the republic of Panama.

Consequent upon this decision, the United States will be allowed to cross the frontier to Panama; or, if they cross, they will be ejected in due time.

Newspapers reaching Washington of the reported movement of Colombian troops toward the Isthmus but the reports come in a roundabout manner which throws doubt on their reliability.

The point on the Gulf of Darien where the Colombian troops are reported to have landed is believed to be near the mouth of the Atrato river, between the territory of Panama and Colombia, and it is probable the character which he assumed that we did not press the matter of looking up his references, even when his marriage to Miss Hinkle was proposed.

"Most of the time, we have heard from Mr. and Mrs. Carlisle at least twice a week since they have been away and such was the character of the correspondence that we had every reason to believe that the marriage which might have been unfortunate in its beginning would lead to the continued happiness of all concerned."

Debralls was a friend of mine and we were associated in an occult science institute. I sold out my interest because I thought it would be advantageous in a business way for the institute. As to taking a cash bond from the academy treasurer, I don't believe Debralls did any such thing. I didn't know there was such an officer. If they have indicted me as Debralls they will have to prove my identity as soon as I can get assistance I will take steps to secure my release. I am amazed that any one could have confounded me with Debralls."

Carlisle claims that he and Debralls used to meet each other in Minneapolis at the West hotel, where they played billiards together. His description of the indicted man agrees with his own appearance.

Carlisle is a tall, rather thin young man, apparently between 25 and 30, smooth faced, with dark eyes and hair, the latter brushed in a fashionable way with the part on the extreme left side. A small lock hangs over his forehead.

He vigorously denied ever having claimed to be a nephew of Former Secretary Carlisle. When told that his wife claimed such relationship for him, he said that could not be accepted, that he hadn't made any such claim on his own account. When asked to what branch of the Carlisle family he belonged, he replied rather brusquely: "I don't see what that has to do with the case."

Carlisle claims to be a newspaper man, and said he had worked on various New York, San Francisco and Chicago papers. He was married, and to know about his wife's condition, she saw him after he was arrested last night, when he had her send a telegram to her stepfather, M. J. Scanlon, asking him to withdraw the charge on which he was arrested, assuming that Scanlon instigated the arrest.

Mrs. Carlisle was visited at an early hour to-day by Mrs. Lind, wife of the Minneapolis congressman, but refused to see other callers. She has been suffering with an asthmatic affection ever since she arrived here with her husband and is not yet recovered, although her condition is not serious.

To Mrs. Carlisle's credit, she had telegraphed to her stepfather to know the meaning of the arrest. Mrs. Carlisle saw her husband at the station at noon.

Mrs. Carlisle was with her husband about an hour. At the conclusion of the interview she said she had heard from her husband about the arrest. She said she had heard from her husband about the arrest. She said she had heard from her husband about the arrest.

"I do not know anything whatever about my husband's connection with a hypnotic institution in Minneapolis," she said. "He could hardly have taken any time for that business, as he was with me all the time he was in Minneapolis. Scantling and I believe he is Debralls. He mentioned Debralls to me several times, but that's the only knowledge I have of such a man."

Mrs. Carlisle also said her husband had not claimed to be a nephew of Former Secretary Carlisle. "He never made any such claim to me, and I never said that he did, nor did I make such a claim myself," said the young lady.

Mrs. Carlisle's friends have advised her to leave the hotel in which she is now living, but she has determined to remain here until she has heard from home.

Prisoners Denies Duality. Says He Was Simply an Associate of Debralls.

From the Journal Bureau, Colorado Building, Washington.

Washington, Dec. 9.—J. J. Carlisle, who was believed to be the recipient of the Minneapolis police last night, denies that he is J. J. Debralls, late promoter of occult science.

"My name is Carlisle and I never have gone under any other name," he said to-day to a Journal man at the police station where he is confined. "Debralls was a friend of mine and we were associated in an occult science institute. I sold out my interest because I thought it would be advantageous in a business way for the institute. As to taking a cash bond from the academy treasurer, I don't believe Debralls did any such thing. I didn't know there was such an officer.
