

"BEN HUR" AS A GREAT DRAMA

Some of the Obstacles Overcome in Dramatizing the Story of Gen. Lew Wallace—Wonderful Piece of Mechanism Necessary to Produce the Chariot Race—The Star of Bethlehem a Striking Feature.

Klaw and Erlanger's beautifully staged spectacular dramatization of General Wallace's impressive romance, "Ben Hur," is beyond doubt the most remarkable production with which the stage is familiar. Its first presentation in New York marked a distinct advance in a new field which had hitherto been unexplored. So-called religious dramas had been presented sixteen feet. This was the first feature of "Ben Hur," absolutely new to the stage, which has never been duplicated or imitated, as Klaw and Erlanger hold its patents. The representation of the interior of a Roman galley was another novel feature, and while it was slow in gaining the attention of the public, its circulation grew until it can now be read in eleven languages.

Some of the Obstacles. The story of "Ben Hur" is particularly strong in dramatic interest, but there appeared to be insurmountable difficulties in the way of its presentation on the stage. The Star of Bethlehem, the galley scene, the chariot race, and last and most important of all, the consideration of the relation of the Nazarene to the play, were its chief obstacles. Lawrence Barrett and others of equal prominence had presented the subject of dramatization to General Wallace, but he had resolutely set his face against any stage presentation. The character of the Christ is so interwoven into the text of the book and so interlocked in its plot that General Wallace could not see how a play could be made without introducing his personality. The author's just and immovable objection stood in the path of such a project.

This was the situation when Klaw and Erlanger, the foremost of all producing managers, approached General Wallace with a proposition looking to the presentation of a dramatic version of "Ben Hur" on the American stage. The author knew and acknowledged that if "Ben Hur" was to appear in dramatic form at all the undertaking would have to be in the hands of Klaw and Erlanger, for this was the only firm possessing the experience born of the production of the very largest spectacles.

A Patented Star. General Wallace was unable to understand how a proper and impressive representation of the appearance of the Star of Bethlehem to the wise men could be made within the limited confines of the modern stage. Klaw and Erlanger exhibited a model of an entirely new electrical device by which a star is first seen about as big as a glow-worm on a summer's night, gradually increasing in intensity until it develops 25,000 candle power with shooting rays extending a distance of was owned by the Boston public library. Artists were sent to Boston and sketches made from this authority.

The Great Chariot Race. The representation of the famous chariot race was then taken up. Not only was it necessary to show the contesting horses running at top speed, but a representation of thousands of excited spectators as well. Again, the smashing of the wheel of Messala's chariot had to be made also. Immense panoramas, thirty-two feet in height, extending around the sides and back of the stage, were built, and they revolved from right to left on massive cylinders. Upon this canvas was painted thousands of Romans wildly cheering. There are 2,006 feet of canvas in these panoramas. Properly to present the race the stage was removed and a substage heavily braced was erected, two feet six inches below the level of the footlights. During the ordinary action of the play the substage is covered with tightly fitting platforms upon which the performers appear. The chariots, driven by Ben Hur and Messala, each have four horses, those of Ben Hur being neater and lighter than those of Messala. A separate treadmill twenty-seven inches wide is provided for each horse. These treadmills are connected with a central shaft which is driven by a motor. As has been said before, four horses are hitched to each chariot. The horses, chariot and treadmill rest on separate platforms, which in turn are on wheels placed on iron railways supported by the concealed sub-stage. To each platform is attached a steel cable running over a pulley and operated by a dynamo in the cellar, when released, sends the wheel to the ground. The horses run from left to right on the stage and the panorama is operated from right to left, the audience is going with the contestants.

Smashing of Messala's Chariot. After all this had been accomplished it was necessary to show the smashing of the wheel of Messala's chariot by Ben-Hur's superior horsemanship. When the two chariots are abreast, Messala's wheel is torn off from its axle. This is accomplished at the moment of contact by a powerful spring which, when released, sends the wheel to the ground. The horses run from left to right on the stage and the panorama is operated from right to left, the audience is going with the contestants.

Presence of the Christ. The chariot race problem having been solved, Klaw and Erlanger then submitted a plan of action whereby the presence of the Christ would not be represented during the action of the play, but his immediate nearness would be felt by all who beheld the drama. This occurs in the last act of the play. Great crowds of people have assembled at Mount Olive, for it is Palm Sunday. Suddenly a peculiar light of purest white, which quivers with silvery glitter, flashes across the scene and rests on the faces of the assembled worshippers. This suggests searched in vain for illustrations from which it was hoped that the artist could obtain an accurate idea of the scene between decks on one of these ancient vessels. Finally A. R. Spafford, then in charge of the congressional library in Washington, discovered that the only illustrated work on the subject was an old German book, and that the only copy in this country of his presence instantly destroyed all of General Wallace's objections, for it has proved to be the powerful and convincing stage pictures of all dramatic versions. These were some of the difficulties which Klaw and Erlanger had to encounter, but not all. The most important question then arose as to the choice of a dramatist. Fortunately they were able to secure William Young, the foremost of all dramatic writers, and he succeeded in compressing in compact form all the essential incidents of the book into a play, but three hours for its presentation.

Klaw and Erlanger's choice of a composer for the music of "Ben Hur" was equally fortunate. Edgar Stillman Kelley, professor of music at Yale university, the greatest living authority on ancient and oriental music, was engaged to write the score. The music of "Ben Hur" is a most important feature of the great play and has attracted the widest attention of the profession, both abroad and at home.

Promise of Big Engagement. Last season "Ben Hur" scored most successfully in this city at the Lyceum theater and its rebooking at the Metropolitan theater for the week, Jan. 4 to 9, with special matinees on Wednesday and Saturday, is a direct result of that success, and from the way the box office attendants have been deluged regarding information when the sale of seats opens it is more than probable another record breaking engagement will mark the week.

"DROWNED IN BEER" Richardson's Drinking Bout Terminated in His Death. Special to The Journal.

Chilax, Wash., Dec. 26.—The effort to show how much beer he could drink at D. Oxford's saloon cost Joseph Richardson his life. Standing before the bar he drank seventeen glasses of beer and then fell dead. Coroner Crawford was summoned, but after learning the facts decided no inquest was necessary and announced that in his opinion the man was simply drowned in beer.

Nothing is known of Richardson's past life nor of his relatives. He was 51 and was slightly crippled in one leg. He has been hanging around Colfax saloons for years. He will be buried at the public expense.

There is no one article in the line of medicines that gives so large a return for the money as a good porous strengthening plaster, such as Carter's Smart Weed and Belladonna Backache Plasters.

How I Cure Weak, Puny People.

Give me a man broken down by dissipation, hard work or worry, from any causes which have sapped his vitality. Let him follow my advice for three months, and I will make him as vigorous in every respect as any man of his age. I will not promise to make a Hercules of a man who was never intended by nature to be strong and sturdy. Even that I can make better than he is; but the man who has been strong and has lost his strength I can make as good as he ever was. I can give back to any man what he has lost, his health and strength. A man who is nervous, whose brain and body are weak, who sleeps badly, awakes more tired than when he went to bed, who is easily discouraged, inclined to brood over imaginary troubles, who has lost ambition and energy to tackle hard problems, lacks the animal electricity which the Dr. McLaughlin Electric Belt supplies. The whole force of vitality in your body is dependent upon your animal electricity. When you lose that in any manner my Belt will replace it, and will cure you.

Dr. McLaughlin— I have used your belt for some time, and it is doing a great thing for me. It gives me new power and more energy. I will recommend it sure, for it is a good thing. Yours truly, MRS. C. M. BURDICK.

Letters like that tell a story which means a good deal to a sufferer. They are a beacon light to the man who has become discouraged from useless doctoring. I get such letters every day. My Belt has a wonderful influence upon tired, weak nerves. It braces and invigorates them and stirs up a great force of energy in a man. I make the best electrical body appliances in the world, having devoted twenty years to perfecting it. I know my trade. My cures, after everything else has failed, are my best arguments.

Dr. McLaughlin— I have received your Belt and I have worn it about one week, and I feel satisfied that it will accomplish all that you claim. I feel a great deal better already. Before I commenced using it I always got up in the morning feeling as if I went to bed, but for the past three or four mornings I feel as bright and fresh as can be. Yours very truly, GUS RIBBERG.

Give me a man with pains in back, a dull ache in his muscles or joints, "come-and-go" pains in his shoulders, chest and sides, Sciatica in his hip, Lumbago, Rheumatism, or any ache or pain, and my Belt will pour the oil of life into his aching body and drive out every sign of pain. No pain can exist where my belt is worn. They come every day from everywhere. There is not a town or hamlet in the country which has not cured by Dr. McLaughlin's Electric Belt. It is a good cure for women as for men. I can make better than he is; but the man who has been strong and has lost his strength I can make as good as he ever was.
