

Soon Was Himself Again.

Eating everything, putting on flesh and looking strong and well.

ERVIN BERNHARD ANDERSEN.

The case to which we wish to bring your attention today is of common occurrence in nearly every household where there are children, and yet it is impossible to overestimate its importance. There is nothing simpler about it. It is simply where a little boy, who had been a healthy child from birth up to two years old, had then begun gradually to fall in health. The father, in writing of the case cannot tell definitely the cause of this decline in health, and we here introduce his letter for you to read:

710 Racine St., Racine, Wis.

Dear Sir: Our little boy, now two and a half years old, was a very healthy child from birth up to last March. At that time, however, he began to gradually fall in health. Whether it was the strain of winter or not I could not say, but at any rate, we noticed that he was losing in flesh and we could get nothing that he would eat. He fretted and cried a good deal at night, so that his rest was broken and almost before we knew it he was in a very poor state of health. After trying various remedies, we finally decided to give the child a treatment of Ozonulium. One thing that pleased us with this preparation was that our child became very fond of it, and would remind us when it was time to give it to him. The result of the treatment has been most surprising. After two or three weeks the boy was himself again, eating everything, putting on flesh, and looking strong and well. We could not believe that a remedy would have such good results in so short a time. It is no exaggeration to say that our boy had been completely restored to health by Ozonulium.

Very sincerely yours,
(Signed) N. Andersen.
Does not the foregoing letter appeal to mothers? Is it not humanly interesting? And is there not a kernel of good suggestion in it? How can we learn of the good things of this life any better than by experience?

And is there not a kernel of good suggestion given Ozonulium to children that this preparation produces more remarkable results than any other children's remedy in the market. You will notice in the foregoing letter that a special point is made of the palatability of Ozonulium. It is always a pleasure to take, and this is one phase of the Ozonulium treatment which certainly speaks greatly in its favor. You do not have to force children to take Ozonulium, because they like its taste, and in the case of very young infants they seem to know, quite as well as parents, the good that Ozonulium does to them. When you see a baby reach its little arms out to show its eagerness to take Ozonulium, and afterwards notice the splendid improvement in the baby's health, you will certainly have from this experience the good that Ozonulium does and the favor which it finds with children. Ozonulium is the best possible form of cod-liver oil that was ever devised. It is far superior to any other emulsion and it gives its most potent good in the human system. It does not emphasize too strongly the beneficial properties of Ozonulium. It overcomes the aversion of flesh and strength in adults, it cures coughs and colds, and by enriching the blood with the most essential properties of nourishment it gives to the system that strength and relative power which is absolutely necessary to health.

Free Sample Bottle

If your druggist does not keep Ozonulium in stock, he can easily order it for you, or if you desire a small sample to see what it is like, you can obtain the same by mentioning the name of this paper in which you read this advertisement, and sending your name and address to the OZONULIUM CO., 98 Pine St., New York City.

DR. SWENSSON'S LOSS KEENLY FELT

BETHANY'S PRESIDENT A WORKER IN MANY FIELDS

The Funeral Will Take Place Next Tuesday at Lindsborg, Kansas, and Will Be Attended by Leaders of the Augustana Synod.

By the death of Dr. Carl A. Swenson, president and founder of Bethany college, Lindsborg, Kan., a useful citizen is cut down in the full vigor of mental and physical strength. The loss will be keenly felt in Kansas, in which state the school is one of the great institutions. No less will the loss be felt by all Swedish people for treatment which combined the nobler qualities of a splendid race. The work he accomplished in his lifetime was marvelous, and one can but wonder what he would have done in a larger field. In the southwest where his people are comparatively few his genius and capacity for promoting, established a great denominational school. What would he have done in the northwest? In the little town of Lindsborg he presented the great oratorical duties of a college president, and he was a liberal contributor to the periodical press, a prolific author, active in scientific and historical societies and always active in politics.

Dr. Swenson enjoyed the friendship of President Roosevelt and other distinguished men. He had been selected by President Francis of the Louisiana Purchase exposition to offer the invocation at the opening of the world's fair at St. Louis. His patriotic and his Americanism he was no less loyal to Sweden, the home of his ancestors, and always sought to foster what was best in Swedish literature, music and art. Blessed with great gifts he realized the responsibilities imposed upon him and labored incessantly with voice and pen for the good of humanity. Untainted by selfishness he never sought anything for himself, tho his services to the republican party would have secured for him high honors with rich emoluments had he desired them. This spirit of self-denial was shown in 1900 when he was called to the presidency of Augustana college and theological seminary, the largest Swedish institution in America. He pondered over the matter for several days and then announced for inasmuch as Eng. G. von Schede represented the king. This order was founded in 1748 and to be thus signally distinguished pleased Dr. Swenson greatly.

The funeral of Dr. Swenson, which will be held at Lindsborg, next Tuesday, will be attended by the dignitaries of the Augustana synod and the prominent men of Kansas.

FINLAND'S TROUBLES GROW

The Northerners Hoping for Benefits from the War.

Not even in Japan will any more heartfelt prayers follow the Japanese army than in many of the Russian provinces, such as Poland, the Caucasus and Finland. These may not obtain liberty, but should the war become general and extend over a period of time, it may mean the withdrawal of troops and gendarmes, who in particular are notoriously busy and are tormenting the people to desperation with their espionage, suspicions and interference in all the daily affairs of life. It is the duty of the gendarmes to eliminate and eradicate everything that is Finnish and substitute Russian. The libraries, closed some time ago so that they could be purged of damaging literature, have not been reopened. It is feared that schools in which Finnish is taught will be deprived of their share of the taxes. The Russian government is now preparing to introduce another measure, which is of larger significance than the previous ones. It is the introduction of a direct blow to the finances of the country, and undoubtedly means the final overthrow of its monetary system. It is the introduction of a subvention of the Bank of Russia. The scheme emanates from Governor General Bobritzkoff, that powerful and unscrupulous Russian who has already done so much towards the Russification of the country. The introduction of the National Bank of Russia into Finland, which is an independent vassal, with a constitution of its own, is a direct violation of this constitution and an infringement upon the privileges which were accorded to the National Bank of Finland. And of all the violent measures which Russia has introduced into Finland, none has been received with greater anxiety than this, especially by the moneyed classes, who rightly fear that it ultimately means the depreciation of their wealth, if not worse. The result is that large sums have already been removed and put into the Swedish banks. Many of the Finnish capitalists have also emigrated to Sweden, among others, the head of the nobility, a multimillionaire.

Was in Torture all the Time. Had Pains in His Back.

Dr. Fenner, Fredonia, N. Y.

Dear Sir:—Some six months ago a friend recommended to me your justly celebrated Kidney and Backache Cure. I was at that time suffering intensely from pains in my back.

My work daily aggravated the complaint and I was in torture all the time. After taking two bottles of your medicine I was relieved and two more completely cured me. I feel like a new man now, thanks to your Remedy, and unhesitatingly recommend it to those suffering as I was.

Sincerely yours, district. Each ant took a grain of sand, carried it up the tree and placed it on the tar. After several hours of incessant work a road a third of an inch wide, paved with grains of sand laid as regularly as paving blocks, was constructed across the tar band, and communication with the upper part of the tree was re-established.

A Find of Relics. Farm laborers stripping a mound near Ganttrup, Denmark, in search for stone, uncovered an ancient grave in which they found a gold ring, some buttons and other articles. The authorities of the national museum are much pleased with the articles, which date from the first century B. C. and are very characteristic.

Work for Unemployed. A motion has been made in the Norwegian storting to make an immediate appropriation of 300,000 kr. so that the public works planned for this year may be started at once. This is done with a view to relieving the distress among the unemployed, who are suffering greatly.

Fedramine Translated. Scores of translations were made of Asmund Vinje's poem, "Fedramine," in an attempt to win the prize offered by Elias Steenerson. Some were excellent, some clever and some peculiar. To the latter class belongs one made by a resident of Decorah and printed by Posten. Two stanzas are quoted:

That dad was such a hustler And hero in the strife— A rough and ready ruster Who led a strenuous life; This ever should remind me To hump, to beat the band, That I may leave behind me Some footprints in the sand.

HUSTLING THE WORK Federal Building Contractors Must Be Thru by March 15.

That there is a race against time in finishing the repairs at the federal building is manifest to every visitor. Painters, decorators, plumbers and carpenters are everywhere in evidence. The contractor has until March 15 to complete his task, but the time is growing short. In order to complete the work in time and avoid any penalty, the contractor has largely increased the number of workmen. The clerks of the offices are making small bets as to the finish of the work, but from the present activity the contractor appears to be the favorite.
