Should Be in Every Home

You need to pay only a little money each week or month, as you prefer, and we will place in your home to-day a piano—any piano you may select from our stock, and it includes the Steep, McPhail, Crown, Sterling and others. There are no better. It only requires a little time to pay for a piano—the small amounts you don't miss, and you have the use of the piano while you are paying for it. You are not paying for something you have not got, nor for something used and gone. It is only the start which is hard to make. It is not because you can't, it is because you think you can't. Pledge to your home and your family all you can in the way of pleasure, happiness and education, and the start will have been made, and we are certain you will never regret the move; rather you will wonder how you got along without a piano so long. Surely it will be satisfying to know just what you could do. Come in and talk it over with us. Don't put it off until to-morrow or next week or next month. Come to-day. Make the start at once. Do it now.

MUCH WEALTH IN RIVER'S BED

MILLIONS IN SUNKEN LOGS CAN BE RECOVERED.

In a Space 12x60 Feet in North Minneapolis, Logs Worth $105 Were Taken Out in Putting Down Caisson for the New Bridge.

The Mississippi river bed from St. Cloud to Minneapolis is literally paved with money, or its equivalent. Millions of feet of lumber are yet to be saved from the sunken bed between the camps and the mills. In sinking a caisson for the Thirty-second avenue N bridge, the workmen were obliged to clear the river bed of a space measuring 12x60 feet was needed for the beginning of work, and in this small area, sixty-three logs, scaling over 7,000 feet were taken out.

A low figure would place the value of the lumber in these logs at $15 a thousand feet—a total of $105 for the space cleared. These logs are as good as any for lumber, and such logs can lie in the bed of the river for years without damage. Many of the logs taken out are of great size, averaging larger, in fact, than the logs which have been sent down for the last few years. Those who are familiar with the logs which are taken out of the river know that the same conditions exist between the mills and the head of the boom at St. Cloud.

"Such logs are private property, bearing the marks of the owners," said a representative of the Mississippi and Rum River Boom company this morning. "We know that the logs are the property of the owners, and we are careful about tampering with them."

It was further declared that the logs were in layers in some pools and would probably not be disturbed until the logging was at an end, when they would be taken up and the question of ownership determined. Many of the logs must belong to firms long since out of business, but it was declared that title still held good. If the original owners of the logs are dead, their heirs are entitled to the value of the logs, and if they are raised. Logs, it is said, can remain in the river for a hundred years without losing their value for lumber.

An experienced lumberman, in talking of the condition of the river, running down logs from up river, the loss amounts to from 5 to 10 per cent. I think it is heavier now than formerly. This would appear strange in light of the fact that there is less stealing of logs now than there was in the early days. I attribute it to the fact that more of the Norway pine is being cut now, and these logs are heavier and sink quicker. It is my belief that the river bed between St. Cloud and Minneapolis is literally paved with sunken logs, runken logs. The value of such logs, in dollars, would, in my estimation, run into the millions. I presume that title would rest with the original owners.

TO PRESERVE ORDER

Chief Conroy Says Organized Labor Can Help Authorities.

The preservation of law and order depends largely on the attitude and conduct of organized labor, in the opinion of Chief of Police Conroy, who addressed a neighborhood meeting in the Trades and Labor assembly in Alexander's hall last night on the subject of "Law and Order." He maintained that industrial peace was to the advantage of laboring men as well as other classes, and he also insisted that the preservation of law and order was best for all classes.

WHEAT GERM OIL HAS SOME VALUE

BOSSIE CAN'T KICK ANY MORE

MAY BECOME A VALUABLE BY-PRODUCT OF THE MILLS.

Minneapolis Men Have Manufactured Three Gallons of the Oil—Method of Its Extraction Is Still Too Expensive to Make Its Production Profitable.

Attached to the Legs of a Light-Heeled Cow, There Is No Danger to the Milker or the Lamp—Patent Just Secured by Mr. Casey of Casey, Minn.

John Casey of Casey, Minn., has circumvented the roan cow who has been wont to attempt to kick the milkmaid "out of the hitherwhere into the yon." Kicking cows are no longer to be feared any more than cooing doves. The life of the hired man on a dairy farm will become more or less of a rambles thru Elysian fields. It will be impossible for "Boss" to insert her unmaneuvered hoof into the bucket and spoil the prospects of the cats and pigs for skimming milk. She will be denied the time-honored privilege of leaving hoofprints in the ribs of the sundown milker or awakening the drowsy swain in the morning with a job in the forehead. The kicking cow is a thing of the past, and those who are accustomed to daily with the loving kine will call John Casey blessed.

Casey is the inventor of an "anti-kicker," Williamson & Marchant, patent attorneys, have acted as a guide for Casey thru the maze of the patent office, and Casey has just been awarded a patent upon his humane invention. It is an invention, simple, but answering a demand of agrarian circles. It consists of a bent strip of steel strapped to the devastating leg of the cow. It is strapped into place in a few seconds and not only prevents an increase in the death rate of the milkers' union, but does not injure the cow in any way. It acts as a splint and effectively prevents the cow from taking liberties with the advance agent of the creamery.

The leg is virtually made jointless for the time being. The only thing left for the cow is to refuse to "give down," and with the Casey anti-kicker in place the hired man can slug her in the flank and use such other moral suasion as he sees fit to compel her to take a philosophic view of the situation and allow him to fill the pail.

IN A PASTOR'S MEMORY

Rev. G. L. Morrill's Tribute to Rev. William Schiller.

Rev. G. L. Morrill conducted services in the Masonic Temple at Hopkins Sunday afternoon in memory of the late Rev. William Schiller, former pastor of the Bohemian Presbyterian church. There was a large attendance, and the speaker gave a high tribute to the character and work of the dead pastor. He also took occasion to speak of Rev. Father Daney, whose place he recently took in the Washington's birthday exercises at the Clinton school. He praised the qualities of the dead pastor's head and heart and mourned with others his loss to St. Stephen's church and to the city.

ARTISTIC HANDICRAFT

Central Thought of Coming Drawing Teachers' Meeting.

The meeting will be a joint meeting of teachers of drawing and of manual training, and it is proposed to include in the association in the future both classes of teachers. In recognition of the widespread and growing interest in handicraft, and the presence of the manual training teachers, the central thought of the program will be artistic handicraft.

SCHOOL AS SOCIAL CENTER

Public School Superintendents Favor Idea—Minnesota System Praised.

J. W. Olsen, state superintendent of public instruction, has returned from Atlanta, Ga., where he attended the convention of the department of superintendents of the National Educational association. In the discussion at this meeting Minnesota's plan of state aid for the schools was highly commended, and there was also favorable comment on the policy of rural school consolidation. The educators present were favorably impressed with the new idea, started in New York, of making the school the social center of the community by means of a series of school lectures and entertainments. Mr. Olsen heartily favors the idea, and hopes to see it adopted in many Minnesota villages.
