WHICH WILL BEAR THE PARTY NAME

Continued from Page Eight.

He said the present occasion was sad, but an inevitable parting of the ways. He arraigned Governor La Follette for stirring up factional strife and shutting out and ignoring a large element of the party, and bitterly condemned the conduct of the state central committee. "If the Czar of Russia could understand how potent a piece of machinery the committee is," he said, "he would transport it immediately to Manchuria and the defeat of the Yalu would be transformed into a glorious victory. He said that he and Senator Spooner would not always recognize this convention organization as the republican party of Wisconsin.

Did Right, Says Babcock.

Congressman Babcock, who was next called on, said he had come to Madison to work for harmony, for Roosevelt needed Wisconsin. But the delegates had done only their duty, and used the only remedy in their power. "I have been once more charged," he said, "with the duty of electing a republican majority in congress. I believe we will, but I will give all the time I can to help you and your ticket in Wisconsin."

Congressman Edward Milor followed, addressing the delegates as "the legally constituted republican convention." The La Follette delegates were good citizens misled, he said, and he advised them not to go out with clubs, but with the olive branch, and win the "erring one's" back.

Ex-Congressman Barney said the republican party had just had a new birth, and it needed to be born again. Judge Emil Baensch of Manitowoc, who was Mr. Cook's rival for the favor of the stalwarts, was called out, and said he was disappointed in his efforts at harmony, as he had been once before. He had come to the conclusion that the only way to have peace is through war.

Former Governors Upham and Scofield pledged their support to the ticket and endorsed the convention's action. John M. Whitehead of Janesville, who was La Follette's opponent for the nomination two years ago, pleaded for united support for the cause.

A telegram from 600 La Crosse citizens was read, urging the delegates to stay till they had named a state ticket.

A recess was taken till 8 o'clock. At the evening session the state ticket was completed as given above, and the delegates who will contest for seats at the national convention were named.

Jeffris Alternates for Spooner.

Chairman Jeffris refused to accept a place as one of the delegates at large, saying he preferred to be a private in the ranks, but he was prevailed on to accept a place as alternate to Senator Spooner, who preferred to have a good strong substitute to argue their cause before the national convention. The "big four" slate was then put thru.

By resolution the convention endorsed Edward Scofield of Oconto, former governor, for vice president. M. B. Rosenberry was recommended for national committee man.

Same Electors Chosen.

General Winkler read the list of candidates for presidential electors named at the La Follette convention, and moved their nomination, urging that there must be no division of the presidential vote. This carried, although the point was raised that these names could only go on the ballot in one place, under the law.

The list of electors so endorsed by the two conventions was: J. A. Sherron, Green county; second, J. A. Batten, Columbia; third, James H. Cabanis, Grant; fourth, Fred C. Lorenz, Milwaukee; fifth, Fred W. Cordis, Milwaukee; sixth, Arthur Dodge; seventh, H. A. Bright, Black River Falls; eighth, T. M. McGlachlin, Portage; ninth, George Meyer, Oconto; tenth, M. D. Foster; eleventh, Edward L. Peet, Burnett.

LABOUCHERE'S LIBEL SUITS

Henry Labouchere, the stormy petrel of British journalism, has just fought his forty-fourth action for libel and he lost, being condemned to pay $5,000 damages for saying that a certain physician was not duly qualified and that he was a quack. This is the heaviest verdict ever brought against the editor of Truth, but as he is a very rich man, it is possible he thinks the fun worth the money. Of the forty-four suits, he won nineteen, lost eight, in two the juries failed to agree, five were settled out of court and ten were withdrawn by plaintiffs who did not care to face trial.

May Live Inside the Grounds

World's Fair Visitors Have a Privilege That Has Never Been Given Before. High-Grade Accommodations at Less Than Downtown Rates.

Many people will visit the world's fair with only a brief period for enjoyment, and will naturally desire to see as many of the wonderful sights as they can in as short a time as possible. This class of visitors especially will appreciate the departure which the management has made in providing a great hotel within the fair grounds, "The Inside Inn." The hotel is managed under the official direction of the exposition authorities. This is a sufficient guarantee that the guests at this hotel will be treated fairly and considerately in the matter of rates.

This hotel has a most advantageous location in the southeast corner of the grounds, near the Flatland of the States and not far from the Festival Hall, Art Palace, Cascade Gardens and other parts of the main picture of the exposition. The Intramural railroad runs by its doors and will carry visitors to all the main points of interest in the exposition. The hotel is also of easy access to street car lines, that run direct to and from the union station down town. The Inside Inn has 2,257 sleeping rooms, a dining room and cafe that seat 2,500 persons, and is well appointed in the way of elegant parlors, waiting rooms, baths and all the features of an up-to-date, metropolitan hotel. It is three stories high, and is 400 feet wide by 800 feet long. The visitors stopping at this hotel can obtain rooms at $1.50, $2.00, $2.50 and up to $5.00 per day per person. The accommodations are equal to those of any outside hotel with the added privilege that the hotel rates cover the daily admission to the grounds. When a visitor becomes a registered guest at the Inside Inn he remains as long as he wishes and is not bothered with the payment of a daily admission fee to the exposition.

THE BULL PUP WAS TO BLAME

KID PROVES HE WAS NOT PINING AWAY. Lively Sunday Up-river, in Which Figures a Dog Fight, a Trout Hunting Trip, a Porcupine Chase and Trouble for the Principals.
A boy'll butt into things, 'd scare the devil, 'd come out all right, an' but your neck. Falloos, phiz of Colonel Wheaton.
I had not seen my esteemed friend the Kid for a long time. He has been very steady in his attendance at school, has actually made a record of three straight months' attendance in his Sunday school class, and behaved generally of late in a way to lead his friends and well-wishers to fear that he is not long for this world. But I am glad to say that that fear is groundless. He came down to the mill a day or two ago, and favored me with a recital of his latest exploit, which goes to show that he is the same old Kid, and beyond doubt, has a long career of more or less usefulness before him. After the usual greetings had been exchanged, the Kid broke out in a way that was likely to light into a feller 'f somebody he likes is round to see him. 'What'd I do?' O, nothin' much. You see, my father he come home Thursday, an' first thing he got his tackle out, an' oiled up his reel, an' I just knew he meant to go after trout on Sunday. My father he never says who he is going to do, but goes right ahead an' does it, an' it ain't safe to ask him questions, for a feller can give himself away too easy that way. So I wait along, an' see where he put the rod, reel an' tackle box when he got 'em fixed up all right, an' when he got a letter to go up river Friday, I don't say nothin' to my mother, but just hooked father's tackle, an' piked out to Billy's house 'fore daylight Sunday mornin'.
