PEOPLE NOT ON SAGE'S PLATFORM

FOURTH GRADERS DISCUSS THE NO-VACATION IDEA.

One "Don't Think the Man's Thoughts is Right," Another Feels He's "a Hog"—Then a Millionaire Is "Mostly Always Robbed"—Nine-Year-Olds Have Varying Opinions.

I want to tell you about a man who I very like. He is a very old man, and all the time he has been making and saving money so hard that almost everybody who has ever heard of him has heard of him as a miser.

Now, I want you to tell me whether you think it is right or wrong for a man to have a million dollars or more is enough to pay a boy or girl for giving up vacations all their life.

On the last day of school, with the long vacation looming gloriously before them, the pupils of the Clay and Franklin schools were requested to answer the foregoing question.

Of the 96 pupils who answered the question yesterday, 67 condemned Sage's idea of all work and no rest—16 were in favor of it.

Two ideas seemed to be predominant in the minds of the little ones. One was that a man like that is a hog; the other was that if a million was accumulated no one else would have to work for the final resting place and the coffin.

The answers, however, indicated that the boys and girls thought of many other things in their consideration of the great question. One said of Sage that "a man like him is what we call a hog."

A 9-year old boy wrote that he wouldn't like to be a millionaire "because the millionaires are mostly always robbed and they would not have any money at all."

Another boy wrote that he wouldn't like to be a millionaire "because he would have to work all the time and he would be a miser every way."

"What is the Use?" "Not the man is not right because men have to have vacations sometimes and rest; if they work all the time they will get stupid and hump-backed."

"I don't think the man's thoughts is right when he said that a man should work all his life and don't take any vacations. I think a man like that is a hog."

"I don't think the man is right, because he would have to work all the time and he would be a miser every way."

TO GUARD THE CITY'S REVENUE

Experts Submit Plan for New System to Simplify Accounting and Prevent Loss Through Crookedness by Concentration of Responsibility in the City Treasurer.

Changes of a revolutionary character, intended not only to simplify and perfect the keeping of municipal records, but also to prevent loss to the city thru crookedness of employees, are recommended by Messrs. Casper & Co., in their final report on an accounting system submitted to the city council last evening.

The experts don't want any one to handle any of the city's cash except the city treasurer. They point out the dangers and cumbersome nature of the present method, and say that the money received from all sources should go to the treasurer direct.

Further, they recommend that a system of internal checking be provided by the city auditor, who should check everything under his thumb and defalcation by falsifying accounts will be made almost impossible.

One of the most important changes recommended will be to reorganize the clerical force of the registrar of the waterworks. It is proposed that all the water collections be paid direct to the city treasurer.

The report, which is a voluminous affair, recommends also that an internal checking and auditing system which will reduce opportunities for defalcations by falsifying records be a minimum. Every single department is to have a dog catcher and city weigher is treated fully and all are changed more or less.

AMERICANOS CAN SHOOT STRAIGHT

HONDURAS NATIVES FIGHT SHY OF ARMED AMERICANS.

Geo. W. Scarberry, Formerly of Minneapolis, Explains How They Won Their Reputations as Gunners—He Has Been Thru Two Revolutions Without Harm.

"Honduras is not a poor man's property," he means, but I regard it as a good place for mining," said G. W. Scarberry, who is sojourning in Minneapolis for a few days, settling up business affairs.

"I first tried Alaska, but decided to mine in a country where we could work the year around. I found it in Honduras all right, or have been in Honduras for gold for three years with good success and have sold a mine to a Minneapolis syndicate which will operate it. Labor is cheap in Honduras, in fact if one pays the laborers too much he loses them. When a native gets a sum of money beyond his needs of the day he fills his pockets with native liquor and is worthless for weeks."

"One drawback there is the revolution. I have been thru two of them but never came to any harm. The Spanish in Cuba, a Frenchman or an Englishman, but they fight shy of an 'Americano' since the first revolution. At that time about fifteen gunners assisted the physical director of that school in his work. After his graduation he joined a Brooklyn association as physical director and was successful in his work. Among his pupils were Schwab and Corey the steel magnates and Corey is still a patron of his gymnasium. He made a success of his business and had a fine home in a different line of work and applied for the Minneapolis appointment."

Secretary Goddard expects great results from the work of the new physical director. "He describes him as a clean-cut athlete, 28 years of age, and possessing great physical ability. He is a specialist in any branch of athletics, but is an all-round man. The summer work at the association is light, but immediately upon his arrival Mr. Booth will take up the work of organization and prepare for a busy season."

The government treats miners well. Concessions for mining are granted at a nominal cost and the government establishes a depot when a camp grows large. They build telegraph lines to the mine and send a company of soldiers to establish a post. This is not to protect the mine but to watch out that the hundred miners do not hatch up a revolution. The Spanish in Cuba concentrated the malcontents and watched them. The government at Honduras scatters them as much as possible.

"We pay mine help about 40 cents a day and the men work well if watched. They are treacherous and will steal any small article that they can get their hands on. They are not to be trusted with a gun. The forest will virtually support the population. The country is a rich mining district and the natives since the Spanish occupation have only washed their faces and been abandoned to Mr. Nimmons will go to Honduras in the fall and will be accompanied by Mr. Johnson. I have not found that the climate has injured me, but it does not agree with me and I am leaving."

Mr. Scarberry was formerly a resident of Iowa, but has been mining in all parts of the country for a number of years. He will remain in Minneapolis for several days the guest of George R. Nimmons.

BOY STRUCK BY AN AUTO

FIVE-YEAR-OLD CARL SANDELL SERIOUSLY INJURED IN ACCIDENT ON KENWOOD PARKWAY.

Carl Sandell, a 5-year-old boy whose home is in Amery, Wis., is in Ashbury hospital in a serious condition from injuries received last night when he was struck by an automobile on Kenwood parkway. The physicians have not yet determined whether or not his skull is fractured.

The chauffeur who was visiting at the home of Carl Sandell, 1006 Kenwood parkway, was standing in the street with a number of playmates. The big auto came around the corner just as the lad unexpectedly started to run across the street. He struck the side lamp of the machine and was thrown violently to the ground.

The chauffeur did not stop, but a little later Theodore Anderson, 3254 Bloomington avenue, went to police headquarters and gave himself up, saying that he was driving the machine at the time of the accident.

To-day the boy is resting easily and the hospital authorities expect him to recover.

After staying in Central station all night Anderson was brought into court this morning and discharged, no complaint having been made against him.

GOODNOW CHARGES READY

SHANGHAI ATTORNEY IN MINNEAPOLIS ENROUTE TO WASHINGTON WITH THEM—WHAT IS ALLEGED AGAINST THE CONSUL.

G. F. Curtis, the attorney who has in charge the pushing of the malfeasance charges made some time ago against John Goodnow, consul general in Shanghai, is en route to Washington to file a formal complaint. Mr. Curtis has been a resident of Shanghai for a number of years.

The complaint is a 250-page document, containing many affidavits to show that Goodnow's administration has been one of continual malfeasance.

Among other things, it is charged that T. J. Jernigan, Goodnow's predecessor, was forced, because of Goodnow's displeasure, to pay $5000 to Jernigan had publicly chastised Goodnow for placing him in a false light. Goodnow is alleged to have secured one Rosenthorn to pay charges of $2500 in indebtedness against Jernigan, who paid the amount in preference to the bank for a trial at which Goodnow would preside.

It is further charged that an attorney, Burke, who secured an award of $7500 from the Chinese government against John Goodnow, consul general in Shanghai, is alleged to have secured one Rosenthorn to pay charges of $2500 in indebtedness against Jernigan, who paid the amount in preference to the bank for a trial at which Goodnow would preside.

It is alleged that as postmaster, Goodnow took advantage of his position to open all letters that passed thru his hands. It is also asserted that Goodnow made it a practice to sell passports, and that such practice is generally known thruout Shanghai.
