SHATTERS LAKE RECORD

The Wolvin goes to Lake Erie. The largest previous cargo carried was that of the William Edenborn, amounting to 8,997 gross tons, from Escanaba to South Chicago last year.

EXCITEMENT THROUGHT EUROPE

Entire Continent Laboring with the Dogs of War.

The entire eastern hemisphere seems to be trembling in anticipation of a general war which now seems inevitable. Late advices state that the royal house of Europe is laboring under the fever heat of excitement. Armies are being mobilized. Navies are being strengthened and battleships are being stationed at points that will be of vantage in event of war. Commissioners are being accumulated in order to facilitate matters. Every monarch has an ear to the ground to catch the first vibrations that would indicate that the time to strike the first blow has come.

As a matter of dollars and cents, this means much for the United States, as all these armies must be fed, and no country is so well prepared to do it as this. But we Americans are of an excitable temperament, which is shown by the war now raging in the far east between Russia and Japan, where we have nothing at stake. There are many people laboring under the excitement and are on the verge of collapse. While the human system feeds upon excitement yet it is far from being nourishing. On the contrary, it undermines the entire system. There are many small evidences indicative of such conditions. One of the best tonics for toning up the entire system and permanently building up the constitution is Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. It purifies and makes blood, aids the digestion so that the blood may get every particle of nourishment that passes into the stomach. It can be had in two sizes, 50 cents and $1.00, either being sufficient to show immediate results. Voegel's Drug Stores, Washington and Hennepin, Nicollet and Seventh streets.

ROTH IS SLIPPERY

Three Escapes in Seven Days by a Youthful Offender.

Albert Roth, a 16-year-old youth of this city, recently sent to the state training school for larceny, has proved the source of much trouble to the Red Wing authorities. By making three escapes in one week he has established a new record. After his first "get away" he was recaptured the next day. Two days afterward he escaped again. This time he was picked up and placed in the Wahabasha jail, from which he shortly afterward escaped. He was captured at La Crosse and taken back to Red Wing, where he is now carefully guarded.

LIFE LINE HYMN

G. L. MORRILL'S THRILLING PRELUDE TO CASINO SERVICE.

While Waiting for the Hour of the Service He Assisted in the Rescue of Two Ladies in Dire Distress and Turned It to Account.

Not because he feared the water—for he is an inveterate swimmer—Rev. G. L. Morrill sacrificed the pictures for the practice of his evening, and, lying flat on an Excelsior dock, drew two distressed ladies out of the lake.

Ten minutes later, in opening his regular Sunday evening service at the Casino, he appropriately announced as the first song: "Throw Out the Life Line."

The incident followed a poor landing made by Isaac Kauffman, who had come to Excelsior in a rowboat accompanied by his wife and daughter. In jumping from the boat to the dock, Mr. Kauffman reached the planks, and in so doing shoved the craft further from the shore.

Kauffman made a frantic reach for the landing, caught hold of one of the posts, but, in doing so, pushed the boat still further away and was drawn into the water. Miss Kauffman, seeing the precarious situation of her mother, made an effort to save her and herself was thrown into the lake.

The situation was rapidly becoming critical when Mr. Morrill appeared on the way to his Sunday evening service. He saw the boat, however, he threw off his coat and hat and prepared to leap into the cold water.

The women had succeeded in catching hold of the dock, however, and their rescuer saw that he could save them more promptly without getting wet. Catching the unfortunate's hands, he kept the ladies from sinking, and, after having arrived, they were soon lifted to the dock.

SUMMER TERM OPENS

Art School Students Register for the Vacation Work.

The regular summer term at the Minneapolis School of Fine Arts at the public library building was opened last week and there was a good attendance. The studies embrace painting from the cast and still life and out-of-door sketching in any medium, and will be under the personal care of Robert Koehler, the director of the school.

Decorative design, which opened Monday, will be in charge of Miss Edna Layman during Miss Cheney's absence. Students who do not expect to remain in the city all summer may enter the classes for half a term if they so desire. A special Saturday afternoon sketch class will also be formed, providing a sufficient number of students register for it. The director will be in attendance at the schoolrooms every Monday and Thursday.

OLD MAN AND BOY SAVED

Two Rescued from Drowning—One at Harriet, the Other at Tonka Bay.

John Colbjornson and little Jennie O'Reilly saved two persons from drowning Saturday afternoon. Colbjornson was standing on the shore of Lake Harriet when he noticed an old man struggling in the water a hundred feet out. He immediately plunged in and brought him to shore after a hard struggle. Several men had made a raft of logs and were rowing it about the lake, when, in a friendly scuffle between two of them, the older one was thrown into the water.

Jennie O'Reilly, whose home is in Twenty-third avenue N., attended a picnic at Tonka Bay Saturday and, while she was fishing, a small boy of the party fell into the lake. Jennie immediately ran to his assistance, held the pole out to him and pulled him to shore.

HE "OPENED" MINNEAPOLIS

First Salvation Army Worker in Minneapolis is Dead.

The death of Colonel Richard Evans, who opened the Salvation Army work in this city, is chronicled by eastern papers. Colonel Evans came to Minneapolis in 1888, where two corps were organized, with two officers in each. At that time his headquarters were in Chicago, and his son was in charge of the southwestern district, which comprised Minnesota, South Dakota, northern Michigan and Wisconsin. A few years later he took his son's place as provincial officer, but he had occupied that position only a short time when he was called to the New York and New Jersey district. Since that time he has worked with his son on the Pacific coast and in Boston, where he was at the time of his death.

DECISION IS A BOOMERANG

RULING ON TAX FOR IMPROVEMENTS WORKS BOTH WAYS.

Substitution of Graduated for Flat Rate Benefits Some Property Owners But Hits Others, Who May Appeal to the Courts for Remedy.

There seems to be two business ends to the new famous Pillsbury decision which, by responsible and some reforms in the process for levying and collecting assessments for permanent street improvements. It compelled municipal authorities to abandon their custom of making a flat assessment for sewers and watermain regardless of cost of construction, and to base the assessment on the actual cost as determined after the work was completed.

The decision caused an upheaval in the offices of the city engineer and the controller, as every taxpayer who had paid special taxes in excess of the actual cost of the improvements was entitled to a rebate. These rebates aggregated hundreds of thousands of dollars and they will not be disposed of for many years.

In view of the decision the authorities made the assessments on the basis of the expense of construction, but now the method is being altered so that those who are required to pay more than the long established flat rate of $1.50 per foot for sewer and $1.00 per foot for watermain.

They point to the Pillsbury decision and the law which says that benefits must be considered in making assessments, and that no one shall be charged for more than the cost of an ordinary improvement. It was with this understanding that a flat rate was made. An ordinary sewer for instance, was found to be a 24-inch sewer and the cost being about $1.50 a foot, and it was held that the property owner was benefited to that extent.

In some parts of the city it costs from $2 to $7 a foot or even more to build a sewer. The decision will not benefit any more by the improvement than those whose sewers are only $1 a foot. So they are up in arms and have applied through C. A. Nimocks for rebates, which will aggregate $35,000. Appeal to the court was made Saturday afternoon, but did not act on the petition now before that body.

LIBRARY DEDICATED

Gift of Former Minneapolis Woman to Whitewater, Wis.

Special to The Journal.
Whitewater, Wis., June 20.—The White memorial library building was dedicated Friday afternoon. The building, which cost $15,000, was a gift of Mary Flavia White, late of Minneapolis and a daughter of Judge Samuel Austin White, formerly of Whitewater.

The building is of gray brick and Bedford dressed stone, located in a beautiful park in the principal residence district. It was presented by N. M. Littlejohn, president of the board of trustees, and accepted by Dr. Salisbury, president of the state normal school at Whitewater. Judge Eli Torrance, representing the family, delivered the address. Mr. and Mrs. Cook contributed $3,000 for books.

In the evening a reception was given. The guests of honor were Miss Katherine L. White of Minneapolis, a sister of the donor.

STILL UNIDENTIFIED

Victim of Sunstroke May Be Buried in the Potter's Field.

No one has identified the man who died at the city hospital yesterday morning from sunstroke. He was picked up unconscious on Sixth street S., Saturday afternoon, while he was going home from his work.

He had his dinner pail in his hand and was dressed as a laborer. Papers on his person would indicate that his name is J. B. Johnson, but the police have been unable to find that anyone of that name is missing.

The body is at the county morgue, and, unless identified, will be buried in the potter's field.

DOESN'T REMEMBER FALL

Amy Olson, Who Tumbled from Train, is Brought Home.

Miss Amy L. Olson, who fell from the Minnesota Editorial excursion train near Millard, Mo., returned to her home in St. Paul yesterday, accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Frances Buell Olson, and Mrs. W. A. Potter of St. Paul.

Miss Olson says she can remember nothing about her fall from the train. After stepping on the railroad car platform, the next thing she remembers is being nursed back to consciousness by her mother, Mrs. Potter and several physicians in the little hotel at Millard, Mo.

Miss Olson seems to be little the worse for her terrible experience. Her worst injury was a deep cut on the left temple, which is now almost healed.

MORE SEATS FOR SCHOOL CHILDREN

ASSEMBLY HALL AT CENTRAL HIGH SACRIFICED.

Improvements at East Side High and In Grade Schools in All Parts of the City—Accommodations for All Pupils Next Fall.

Central high school hereafter will have no assembly-room. The old hall in which for nearly a score of years has been held commencements, teachers' meetings, class functions, lectures, entertainments and the countless gatherings more or less necessary in a big educational plant, is now in process of transformation into school-rooms. When these are finished, sittings will be provided for 200 pupils.

The sacrifice of the hall is necessitated by the increase in the school population of Minneapolis, which is more rapid proportionally than the increase of revenue of the board of education. With the new rooms the Central high school will accommodate 1,600 pupils. The work of alteration will cost about $3,000.

Work has already begun on the remodeling of the third floor of the East high school. This building was never entirely completed, the work being left for an emergency, which has now arrived. The East Side schools are showing indications of overcrowding, and annexes have been called into use in several districts. The completion of the third floor of the East high school will furnish accommodations for 250 pupils, which will help considerably in relieving the conditions over the river. The expense of the work will be about $5,000.

For the relief of the North Side several minor arrangements have been ordered, chief of which is the construction of an annex at the Lowry school. This will cost about $2,000 and will seat 100 pupils.

With the big additions to the Clay and the rebuilding of the Adams school, and the moving about of the portable annexes, the school directors hope to be able to take care of every child asking admission next September. It will be necessary, of course, to make use of a number of vacant stores, basement rooms and other temporary arrangements, but it will be a long time before the city council does not act on the petition now before that body.

The young people from the academy have been rehearsing the play for some time and an excellent production is assured, with elaborate stage settings and costumes. A matinee performance was given this afternoon and was witnessed by a large audience of friends of the academy and young performers.

The machine struck the rig with a crash and the occupants were thrown to the pavement. Labey, who was injured, was taken to his home, where he was attended by a physician.
