

Cured of Asthma

After Years of Terrible Suffering. Mary Josephine Bezy, Floyd Knob, Ind., writes: "After suffering untold agonies for 33 years from Asthma, I was cured by Schiffmann's Asthma Cure. I used to be so bad that I could not move without help, but I can now do all my own work."

AMERICAN JACKIES IN OLD CHRISTIANIA

Visit of the European Squadron to the Norwegian Capital the Signal for Many Gracious Exchanges of Hospitality—Incidents of the Visit.

Christiania, Norway, Sept. 24.—More than two years had passed without Christiania having had the honor to receive Uncle Sam's bluejackets. This year our short Norwegian summer was almost gone before they decided to visit the Land of the Midnight Sun. But they came at last. Mrs. D. C. Harms, Elbow P. O., Va. Mr. W. Scerius, Cavalier, N. D., says: "I was troubled with asthma for 20 years, about 8 years ago I started to use your Asthma Cure, and have not had an attack for six years."

made to European ports. These expressions, I believe, were not made simply to please the Christiania people, but were really sincere. Attraction for Sailors. To start with, the Norwegian capital and its surroundings are exceptionally attractive to him, who, as vice president, the latter attended the banquet in Minneapolis, shortly before the assassination of McKinley. In effect, "Northrup" may be counted on one thing: I shall never do anything of which you will need to be ashamed. The officers make their lady acquaintances at the different entertainments in their honor, where some of the best of society of the city was assembled. Christiania has years of experience in entertaining naval visitors, and has the thing down to an exact science. In the entertainment of the Americans, the United States Consul General Henry Bordewich comes in for a full share of credit. Like the city, he has become an experienced host, as in the last five summers there have been not less than eleven American warships here. This year he drove the admiral and the captains of the ships to Holmenkollen, where a fine dinner was spread. They were all delighted with the trip and the magnificent view of the city and its surroundings which may be had from this famous spot. Admiral Borresen of the Norwegian navy was also in the party. Mr. Bordewich also gave a dinner for some of the officers from each ship at the Freemason hall. Ladies were invited, and when the dinner was over and coffee had been served the dance ing with his comrades for Old Glory. Now he walked the same deck, a stranger among strangers, an invalid for life. Still, if you asked that man whether he would like to have that war record cut out of his life's history, he would be sure to answer "no" with all his heart. While the principal aim of the officers, when ashore, was to amuse themselves, they also found time for work of more serious nature. A number of officers, accompanied by Norwegian colleagues, went down to Horten, the principal naval station in Norway. There they took a look at everything of naval interest, and for their benefit trials with dirigible torpedoes were made, and the successful results seemed to delight them much. The dirigible torpedo, as used in the Norwegian navy, is, by the way, the invention of Admiral Borresen. Luncheon was given for them by the United States on board the Norwegian battleship Eidvold.

The early hours of the 23d saw the squadron quietly steam out from Christiania, bound for Trondheim, England, where the ships will remain for about a month while the Olympia is having some new condensing tubes put in. At the beginning of November they will proceed to the Mediterranean, where they will spend the winter. Next spring they are scheduled to be back in American waters, and the European squadron will be composed of whether officers and men from all the ships to attend the performance. The piece was Bjornson's historic drama, "Sigurd Jorsalfar." About thirty officers, including the admiral and the three captains, were in the orchestra seats, about the same number of petty officers in the parterre, and about fifty sailors in the second balcony. They all wore full dress uniform. Before the curtain went up Bjorn Bjornson, director of the theater, from his box proposed three cheers for the American nation and the stars and stripes. The cheers were given in the most hearty manner. Then the orchestra played "The Star Spangled Banner" and "Ja vi elsker" (the Norwegian national hymn). Both numbers were listened to by the audience standing. Admiral Jewell then requested his men to give three cheers for the kingdom of Norway, and certainly it cannot be said that the manner in which they were given was lacking in vigor and enthusiasm.

The Americans seemed to enjoy the play as well as the beautiful scenery and Grieg's music. Admiral Borresen, who was seated alongside Admiral Jewell, had ordered some Norwegian naval officers to act as guides for their American colleagues. Admiral Borresen also gave a reception for a large number of officers at his home. In return for these courtesies the officers of the squadron gave a reception on board the Cleveland to which about a hundred persons, mostly ladies, were invited, by the assistance of the consul. While the band played and the dance went on on the after deck, which was

There is a good deal of encouragement in the fact that the returns from the exhibition are so good. The date for the opening evening has been changed from Nov. 7 to Nov. 5, in order not to conflict with election day. The exhibition is to be held on the Saturday evening previous to election, and if the letters already sent out to the members of the society show the amount of interest in the exhibition, the result is hoped for, there will be a large attendance on the opening night. The proposed grouping of pictures by the individual work of the painters who contribute has met with the enthusiastic approval of all the artists who have responded to Professor Koehler's appeal. The exhibition is not intended to represent of eastern artists might have been included, had there been more wall space. The limits of the art gallery have been enlarged to include the work of those artists who first replied to the requests for paintings.

Increase of Membership. There seems to be some misunderstanding, however, in some quarters as to the purpose of this circular letter. The exhibition is not intended for renewing old memberships, but for the gain of new names. There are now about five hundred members in the art society. Each member will thus secure one other member of the society who will be able to carry out a number of plans for the entertainment of the members during the coming season. A membership of 1,000 will put all these enterprises on a paying basis, and lift the burden of support from those few Minneapolis citizens who are now the guarantors of the society's work. A thousand members is a moderate number to represent the artistic spirit of a city like Minneapolis.

Mission of the Fine Arts. At the next meeting of the Westminster club P. V. Collins, a well-known member, has announced that he will give a paper on "The Mission of the Fine Arts," in which he will discuss the much-vaunted question of whether art should be for art's sake, or whether it should be for the benefit of the people. Mr. Collins will write from the inside of his subject. In his early years his bent was toward art and he studied both here and in Paris. He will take the ground generally that the artist's mission is ethical first and artistic second. The Westminster club is likely to have an exciting discussion if it will enlarge its list of invited guests for the next meeting, and call in some of the local artists to combat Mr. Collins' heresy.

The Poster Competition. The art school itself is pretty busy just now in preparing original designs for a poster competition in connection with the exhibition. A prize of $5 has been offered for the best design submitted to the judges. Not only Miss Cheney's class, but various students from the other classes of the school have entered the competition, which is open to the whole school. The design will be printed in one color, with two colors run in by hand. The state flower is in evidence in some designs. Minneapolis Artists' Boston Success. John Rich, a former Minneapolis boy, has been getting some laurels of his own in the Boston Museum school. A letter from Herman Dury Murphree, one of the artists requested to exhibit in November, gives generous praise to Mr. Rich, who was a pupil of his for some time. Mr. Murphree says he is doing capital work in Boston. "In the Museum school last winter he carried off three concours in painting, and will probably win the Paige scholarship next year, which will enable him to spend two or three years in Europe."

FINE RALLY AT GANBY

TORCHLIGHT PROCESSION AND BANQUET FOR MESSRS. JOHNSON AND WINSTON.

Canby, Minn., Oct. 15.—Canby and the surrounding country last night gave John A. Johnson the most enthusiastic reception of the campaign. The meeting was attended by as many people as could be crowded into the opera-house, every inch of standing room being utilized. The band headed a monster torchlight procession thru the streets, and both Mr. Johnson and Mr. Winston spoke. Republican business men were prominent factors in the affair. On the journey here stops were made at Tyler, Arco, Ivanhoe and Hendricks. The return trip to Hendricks the people of Ivanhoe were again at the station, 175 strong, and such strong pressure was brought to bear that the train was held ten minutes while Mr. Johnson spoke from the station platform. Enthusiastic applause greeted his brief remarks. At Tyler a noon meeting was held, the hall being well filled by voters. At Minnesota 150 persons who had gathered at the station were addressed by Mr. Johnson.

DUNN HAS A NEW LEAD

All the Corporations, He Says, Are Working for His Defeat. Breckenridge, Minn., Oct. 15.—Robert C. Dunn and T. J. Caton opened the campaign in this county last night at a meeting attended by a large audience. In his speech Mr. Dunn declared for lower railroad rates and the 4 per cent gross earnings bill and said: "The representatives of the great corporations are fighting me with all the viciousness and bitterness they can command. Every newspaper owned and controlled by a great moneyed corporation is against me, but they cannot fool the people. With these interests fighting me, my opponent should maintain a discreet silence concerning my influence in the campaign." Professor Caton made the closing address.

SENATORS ON THE STUMP

Clapp Speaks at Hinckley and Nelson at St. James. Special to The Journal. Hinckley, Minn., Oct. 15.—Senator Clapp spoke here last night to an enthusiastic audience of over 400. Pine City sent a delegation of about eighty and many came from Sandstone and other neighboring towns. The visitors were met at the station by the Hinckley coronet band, which with the Pine City band and the Princeton Glee club furnished music for the evening. Senator Clapp spoke briefly upon state issues and confined himself to national questions. He had the undivided attention of his audience and was frequently interrupted by applause. Every mention of President Roosevelt's name aroused the enthusiasm of the audience. C. A. Dickey of Princeton, followed Senator Clapp and denied the charges made by opponents of Dunn. After the speaking, music was furnished for a dance and a banquet was served at the Phoenix hotel that, like the dance was free for all. Interest in the state election is growing here. There is more and more disappointment among the republicans in regard to Dunn's nomination. Probably 50 per cent of the republican vote here will go to Johnson.

St. James, Minn., Oct. 15.—Senator Knute Nelson spoke last night before the largest gathering of people ever seen at a political rally in Watonwan county. After the rally he was banqueted by the business men of St. James, more than 200 persons being present.

LUVERNE CANNOT FORGET

Chilly Reception for McCleary at Home of Miller. Special to The Journal. Luverne, Minn., Oct. 15.—If Congressmen are to be judged by the accuracy of the reports sent from this city in the recent primary election contest, relative to the sentiment aroused by the unwarranted attack upon the private character of his opponent, Senator H. J. Miller, by his circular letter headed, "Miller a Self-Confessed Promoter of Gambling Dens," that the citizens of Luverne certainly have been swept away today when, in his itinerary, it was necessary for him to spend a few hours in this city while transferring from one road to another. Citizens of Luverne are courteous to strangers, and, therefore, no insult was offered to Mr. McCleary. Yet he was shown in many ways that the people of this city have not forgotten the unwarranted attack made by him in the primary campaign on his opponent, Mr. Miller. The members of the general assembly among men of all parties, and it is universally displayed by the cold civility accorded one who heretofore has been greeted with the utmost cordiality. In a few instances Mr. McCleary was taken severely to task by Mr. Miller's friends, whose indignation was so great to permit them to refrain from expressing their disapproval of his style of campaigning.

NORTHROP AT GRINNELL

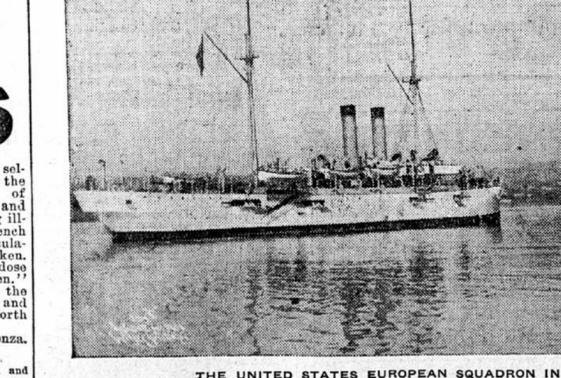

Inspiring Address Before College Men and Members of Mission Board. Special to The Journal. Grinnell, Iowa, Oct. 15.—The students of Iowa college and 200 members and visitors of the American Board of Foreign Missions filled the chapel here yesterday to hear an inspiring address by President Cyrus Northrop of the Minnesota state university. On the platform with him, besides the college professors, were Dr. MacKenzie, president of Hartford Theological Seminary; "Father Endeavor," Clark, President King of Oberlin and President Bradley of Grinnell. President Northrop's address was an expression of good will to Iowa college and an emphasis on the need of missionary work not only in foreign fields, but at home, in promoting honesty and patriotism in political and business life. In closing he quoted the words of Roosevelt to him, when, as vice president, the latter attended the banquet in Minneapolis, shortly before the assassination of McKinley. In effect, "Northrop" may be counted on one thing: I shall never do anything of which you will need to be ashamed.
