SAYS WEST SWAYS NATION'S DESTINY

Newell Dwight Hillis Declares Future Great Americans Are in the West.

New York, Oct. 24.—In a sermon on the work of missionaries in this country in the next hundred years, Rev. Dr. Newell Dwight Hillis, in Plymouth church, Brooklyn, has declared that the men of the west are the true molders of the nation's destiny. He said: "So accustomed are we to thinking that Athens made Greece, that Rome made Italy, that Paris made France, that England is London, that we believed now as New York goes so goes the destiny of the United States. But I say that as New York goes so does not the destiny and history of the United States. I do not mean that New York has no influence, but we in our self-sufficiency have come to over-estimate ourselves. The boy who is nourished in the city, who all his life has breathed only the tainted air of the city and has been cramped by his surroundings, has no chance. It is the boy who has been reared far from the complexity of city life that does things. Here a man loses his individuality. The men who will make themselves known forty years hence are now husking corn in Nebraska. The real preachers, Dr. Hillis went on, are those whose work is done in the west, and he contrasted their field with his own, saying: "I am a man who spends his time mixing tonics to try to get up an appetite in you who are gorged to the point of gluttony. There is no pessimism beyond the mountains, no talking down of the institutions of this country. Those men have now begun a revival of patriotism to oppose the pessimism of you men of New York. It is the west that has furnished the heroes for the last two or three generations. Here you are eating many kinds of foods, pouring rich wines down your throats, saturating yourselves with all kinds of ease and luxury and then preparing to die out of life when God has put you here for something better. You are not happy, but in seven days I could make you happy. Organize the resources of life in the interest of the poor and weak and for misery you will have happiness, for selfishness that corrodes you will have a blade that flashes more and more and then you will know real luxury, the luxury of service."

CITY NEWS BUT THE DUCKS WOULD NOT 'HALT'

HUGH SCOTT CONFUSED DUCK PASS WITH SENTRY POST.

After Waiting Weary Hours for Game, He Heard a Noise and Promptly Called Out a Challenge—That Sent the Mallards Whistling Toward Florida.

Hugh Scott went hunting last week. He went because in an unguarded moment of confidence he had promised some half dozen of the men who are running his campaign for county auditor a wild duck Sunday dinner at which the final pre-election coups became plain. There was a dinner but that function is a sequel to the hunting trip.

Now the county auditor has a certain modest but his dignity as a Nimrod. In fact, his experience afield, coupled with his training as a military man, has superinduced the idea in the county officer's mind that duck and bagging game are practically equivalent with him.

With this idea he nonchalantly invited his guests for Sunday dinner and Saturday afternoon he started, with a friend, for the Minnesota bottoms. Selecting a likely looking spot among rushes, the two sportsmen became "one with waving things" and silently with shotgun in hand waited for a flight of unsuspecting waterfowl.

"There was nothing but for over an hour. It was just beginning to grow dusk. Suddenly there was a stirring of the wild rice in the marsh overlooked by the water. "Halt! Halt! Halt!" rang out clear on the evening air as Lieutenant Scott jumped to his feet and came to "charge bayonets."

Instead of a halt there was a quacking, a flapping and a whirr as a flock of beautiful mallards sailed into the open air of dawn. Bang! Bang! A double-barreled shotgun was emptied. The shots reverberated across the lonely bottom and among the surrounding hills. The ducks sailed on unmindful and faded into the twilight. "Well, I'll be blamed! You idiot, why didn't you shoot?" indignantly inquired the auditor of his convulsed companion.

"I thought you could halt the squad without me," finally gurgled the companion between laughs. And there the curtain must be drawn.

It was soon dark and the unsuccessful Nimrod sought board and lodging in a neighboring farmhouse. An early morning effort resulted no better. Attempts to buy game failed and the disgraced sportsmen started for Minneapolis empty-handed. On the way, however, they found and bought two tame ducks.

Dinner time came. The guests assembled. The birds were served. "What kind of ducks are these?" inquired one of the republican works, as he picked a piece of the carefully cooked fowl. "Well—well I believe—" began Mr. Scott, "coloring," interrupted the auditor's "companion in crime," "those are regulars; the volunteers refused to obey orders." The cat was out and the county auditor did not hear the last of his hunting trip.

NEED OF BETTER ROADS

FARMERS FIND IT ALMOST IMPOSSIBLE TO GET TO CITY FROM NORTH.

"Ruts, mud, washouts, and marshes render traffic almost impossible on the roads entering North Minneapolis," declared A. F. Fisher, a gardener at the central market, this morning. "I don't believe that the tenth ward has spent five dollars on its roads this year and the roads are in a worse condition than the Minneapolis unless something can be done."

"The gravel roads that have been graded to the city limits are fair, but where they stop there is a struggle of depend which even a Christian has hard work getting thru. This is especially true of the Penn avenue road, and the Osseo road where there are hundreds of teams passing every day. There are holes in the roads big enough to sink a wheel, and the farmers are at a loss to know what to do about it. "The roads have been fierce all summer, running thru marshes where every inch is flat and undrained, but the recent heavy rains have finished the job and they are almost impassable. When they freeze up in the shape they are now in, Providence only can help the teamsters."

TRIUMPH COMPLETE

Minnesota Wins Grand Sweepstakes for Butter at World's Fair.

Minnesota has won the grand sweepstakes for unsalted print butter, at the world's fair for the fourth successive time and this state thus outranks all the states of the union in producing fine butter. This is the first time that the makers of the state as they were competing with the most skillful dairymen in New York, Wisconsin and Iowa.

After Minnesota was shown its supremacy in buttermaking the rival states sought to have the rules covering the points in which Minnesota excelled, changed. The board of the fair, however, was in favor of the Minnesota advantage. It was also urged that the system of scoring should be altered and the plan suggested would have reduced Minnesota's lead. The board, however, the judges decided that the rules were fair to all and Minnesota still retains its rank as the premier butter state of the union.

CHOP SUEY ROWS

Disorder at Three Chinese All-Night Restaurants Call Out Police.

Riot calls were sent in from all of the chop suey restaurants Sunday night and unless better order is maintained by the management of the places the police may take steps that will eventually lead to the closing of all of them. Drunken fights were started in the Mon Fa Low, Shang Hai Low and the International restaurants and the police were called on in each case. The trouble soon blew over, but the police are incensed over the general character of the places.

Number of Horses Increasing.

One would think to see the number of automobiles of every description increasing, but it is not, if we can rely on statistics. The reason seems simple, when you stop to think. The bicycle and the automobile have increased the love for out-of-door enjoyment. The bicycle is too vigorous for some and the auto too expensive for others who naturally turn to the plain, but convenient, method of driving. And, after all, the plain, peaceful pleasures are best and that's why golden grain belt has won its way steadily to the front. It gives a quiet, peaceful enjoyment to the home life that's worth everything. Just try a case yourself.

GARELESS ABOUT MONEY

SOME FOLKS WHO DON'T TRY TO COLLECT BILLS FROM CITY.

It is currently supposed that all claims against the city are promptly collected, as the city is very "good pay" where it comes to bills. It is in favor of J. McLaughlin and William B. Jones, assistant city controller, in going thru a package of old warrants finds that some people have so little regard for their bills that they will not come for it to the city hall.

Many of the warrants are for trivial amounts, but others quite worth the while, and why they have not been collected for would probably disclose some stories.

In a bunch of warrants on the street opening fund is one drawn in 1877. It is in favor of J. McLaughlin and William B. Jones, assistant city controller, in going thru a package of old warrants finds that some people have so little regard for their bills that they will not come for it to the city hall.

Should the prosperous Minneapolis & St. Louis railway company need a few dollars for an emergency, the officers are advised that the controller has three warrants which he will turn over to the proper authorities. They were drawn in 1888 and are worth just $1 each. The amounts represent title to land taken in the opening of Lyndale avenue and Lake street in the eighties. The warrants are for $1 each in favor of the Minneapolis, Lyndale and Minnetonka railway, the old "motor line" to Minnetonka. This company was dissolved years ago.

In the bunch of uncollected warrants is one for the sum of $170 drawn in favor of Anna Mattison in 1890. Antiques Thorne dated the same year on wheat, that is, barley. These warrants were never collected—probably due to the fact that the parties named could not be traced. It is clear to the property taken, and when the true ownership was established the matter was forgotten in some way.

RAILROADS KEEP FAITH

MILLERS GRATIFIED OVER THE ACTION OF THE EASTERN TRUNK LINES RELATIVE TO RATES.

Indications that the eastern lines are keeping faith in the matter of grain rates, eastbound, are pleasing to the flour makers of Minneapolis. Announcement has been made by the trunk lines of Buffalo of another advance on grain rates to the Atlantic seaboard Nov. 1. It amounts to one-half cent a bushel on wheat, that is, rye, barley. These rates will be operative fifteen days only, for Nov. 16 a further advance of a half-cent a bushel will be made on wheat, flour and rye and one-quarter cent on barley.

These successive advances, beginning Sept. 1 with a half-cent, resulted from the conference of representatives of the millers, flour and rye, barley, and the traffic managers, which was attended by C. C. Bovey and Clifford Fairchild of Minneapolis.

Mr. Fairchild of the Pillsbury-Washburn company said today that the latest advance was very gratifying. The advances show that the trunk lines are on the right track and that they propose to stand by their agreement. "And I want to tell you it will be a help to the flour trade," he said. "The roads will get just as much, if not a larger, volume of traffic in the manufactured product than in the raw material. The traffic in the manufactured product is not spasmodic as it is in the raw material, which comes only in the fall while flour moves the year around, and is as steady as can be."

Unfortunately the millers have gotten entirely out of the range of the foreign market, and have done so little export business lately as to have not yet had the opportunity to prove to the trunk lines that figures and arguments advanced for the export of flour are correct. However, the export business will begin soon.

PARK LAWS REVISED

The General Ordinance Redrafted to Remedy Certain Weak Points.

C. J. Rockwood, attorney for the park board at its next meeting, and after being approved by the board will be sent to the city council with the request that it be passed. It is noted that the ordinance still retains several of the general points which have been raised from time to time concerning the jurisdiction and authority of the board. The changes from the ordinance now in force are largely technical, but the effect of the proposed ordinance will be to strengthen the board in the enforcement of its rules and make convictions more certain.

SETTLEMENT ON TAXES

Street Railway Co. Offers Compromise on Last Year's Account.

The board of county commissioners met this morning to consider a proposition of the Minneapolis Street Railway company for the payment of its 1903 personal taxes, fixed by the state board of equalization at $123,000. The matter was taken under advisement. When these taxes came due last year, the company refused to pay and filed an answer in the district court. The case has never come to trial. Now the company is willing to pay the amount assessed without the 10 per cent penalty attached, but offers to pay the daily balance.
