DUNN IS SILENT ON WITHDRAWAL

REPUBLICAN NOMINEE ADDRESSES MINNEAPOLIS AUDIENCES.

He Admits Writing the Heatwole Letter, but Says Conditions Have Changed Since It Was Written—His Addresses Make Elaborate Explanations of Numerous Charges Against Him.

At two out of three Minneapolis meetings Robert C. Dunn addressed last evening, he fully admitted the writing of the letter to Joel P. Heatwole which was published in Thursday's Journal, and which told of his agreement to defeat Moses E. Clapp for the senate.

"I wrote the letter," said Heatwole which has been published in The Minneapolis Journal," he said, "and I'm not ashamed of it. I do not deny it in the least. This was before the state convention, and I had not pledged myself to support anybody for the senate. The letter does not show I had entered into any agreement to elect Heatwole as senator and defeat Clapp. But I had said right along I was going to stand on the platform adopted by the state convention. The state convention decided in resolutions for Clapp, and ever since I have stood by the thus expressed desire of the republican party of this state, for Moses E. Clapp for re-election to the United States senate."

Mr. Dunn then rubbed it into Mr. Heatwole for giving out a personal letter for publication, asserting that such an act "might be a sign of good breeding down among the hoosiers, but it is not in Minnesota."

In the tent at Franklin and Seventeenth avenues, where he first spoke, the eighth ward wigwag, 2950 Nicollet, and at the fifth ward house, 510 Eleventh street S, he lamented the way most of the twin city papers were opposing him.

"Never has such a campaign of vilification been waged against a gubernatorial candidate in Minnesota," he said. "Emisaries are in every part of the state abusing me. In the Irish wards of St. Paul they are telling I'm an A. P. A., in the Scandinavian wards they tell that I'm an Irish Catholic, in the German districts I am cited as a Hamline prohibitionist, and among the best of people the tale is told that I'm a drunkard."

Dunn took up the charges made by Lind in the new famous Lind-Peterson debate in which some of Dunn's land clerks are charged with taking mineral leases out for themselves and opposing him. "I did not know any clerk of mine had taken out any mineral leases," he said, "and I don't know if I'd of objected if I had. There is nothing in the state law governing to whom leases shall be given, nor saying who shall not be privileged to take them out."

"John Lind in buying state lands when he was governor, was certainly no better than my clerks in taking out mineral leases. If he had paid for these lands in full at the time he would have had to issue a patent by himself, as governor, to himself as purchaser. But I say here and now, as was the case with the clerks that took out mineral leases, John Lind had a perfect right to buy that land if he wanted to."

He then administered a roast to John Lind for having so frequently changed his opinions; first being a rabid republican, one of the bitterest in his speech against democrats. Then he became a democrat, finally going to the extreme of the Bryan silver faction. Now he has switched back to being a Cleveland-Parker gold-democrat. "And the Lord only knows," said Dunn, "what he will be another four years from now."

Dunn recited to prove that he was not a corporation candidate, the lack of funds on the part of his state committee.

"Never was a state campaign run on such small capital as mine," he said. "Up to 2 o'clock Monday afternoon, the exact amount of the money of the state committee was but $14,700, this including all candidates' contributions. In the Eustis campaign, $38,000 was spent. In the campaign when I sent you first elected governor, $100,000 was spent, and in his second campaign over $50,000. The democratic state committee is now putting out literature costing more than our entire campaign fund."

TAKEN ANOTHER VIEW

Judge Torrance Does Not Share Dunn's Sentiments As to the Veterans.

A few inmates of the Soldiers' home got together the other day at Gardner's pavilion and passed resolutions renewing their fealty to R. C. Dunn and indignantly finding fault with Judge Torrance for opposing Mr. Dunn on the ground that when elected commander-in-chief of the G. A. R., he assumed some sort of obligation to favor and support every candidate nominated on the republican ticket.

This is drawing it pretty strong on the judge, for of all Grand Army men in the country no one has more consistently and earnestly insisted on an absolute divorce between politics and the Grand Army of the Republic than he. His views on this subject were very forcibly expressed when as judge advocate general, he declared that political associations of Grand Army men were detrimental to the welfare of the order and were objectionable for the same reasons and to the same extent that political clubs composed exclusively of Presbyterians and Catholics would be.

When asked today what the subject of Mr. Dunn's attitude toward the old soldiers, he replied that the sentiments expressed by Daniel Webster at the laying of the cornerstone of Bunker Hill monument, when, in the name of Liberty, he thanked the surviving Revolutionary soldiers present for their great service they had rendered to their country and tenderly invoked the Divine blessing upon their declining years, were more in accord with his feelings than the suggestion of the republican candidate at Alexander's hall, that the old soldier had earned the right to do as he pleased with his pension and could fill his skin with whiskey if he wanted to.

Said Judge Torrance: "From my point of view the old soldier has by reason of the great service rendered his country, forever foreclosed his right to do anything discreditable or by his conduct forfeit the respect and veneration of his countrymen. The pension is a sacred fund to be squandered in saloons, and such use of it should not be encouraged."

TONIGHT'S REPUBLICAN MEETINGS. Republican meetings are announced for this evening as follows: The Third Ward Scandia Republican club will meet in the third ward wigwag. The speakers will be G. W. Armstrong, J. G. Lund, David E. Jones, T. J. Cato and Claus Munn. Sixth ward, in Woodmen's hall. L. C. Stevenson will be the principal speaker. Paul Fontaine and others will speak at a mass meeting at 2904 Emerson avenue N. Mass meetings will also be held at the College Inn, University and Fourteenth avenues SE, at 1401 Spring street, and at 3532 Snell street.

A large country meeting will be held at Hamlin, Till the Charters of G. Layburn, David Gehman and others.

GREAT FORESIGHT. Chicago Journal. She—Do you think that you can support me? He—If I will be a clerk I can vote your four papers into a few more games of poker.

THE TRUTH. Detroit Free Press. Dick—Do you know that you are taller in the morning than you are at night? Rick—Well, I know that I am "shorter" at night.

UNACCOUNTABLE. Houston Chronicle. "Strange," murmured the man, "that I have no appetite for breakfast. Here I've only eaten an ordinary meal. And me to be hanged this morning, too."

INHERITED. Philadelphia Press. "It's all well enough for Van Astorbilt to talk about the stepping-stones to success," but he had 'em to begin with.

NO ARGUMENT THERE. Chicago Journal. Mick—My new boss is a warm proposition. Jimmie—I should say so, judging from the way he was roasting yours yesterday.

Mrs. Fairbanks tells how neglect of warning symptoms will soon prostrate a woman. She thinks woman's safeguard is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Ignorance and neglect are the cause of untold female suffering, not only with the laws of health but with the chance of a cure. I did not heed the warnings of headaches, organic pains, and general weariness, until I was well nigh prostrated. I knew I had to do something. Happily I did the right thing. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound faithfully, according to directions, and was rewarded in a few weeks to find that my aches and pains disappeared, and I again felt the glow of health through my body. Since I have been well I have been more careful. I have also advised a number of my sick friends to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and they have never had reason to be sorry. Yours very truly, Mrs. MARY FAIRBANKS, 216 South 7th St., Minneapolis, Minn." (Mrs. Fairbanks is one of the most successful and highest salaried travelling saleswomen in the West.)

When women are troubled with irregular, suppressed or painful menstruation, weakness, leucorrhoea, displacement or ulceration of the womb, that bearing-down feeling, inflammation of the ovaries, backache, bloating (or flatulence), general debility, indigestion, and nervous prostration, or are beset with such symptoms as dizziness, faintness, lassitude, excitability, irritability, nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholy, "all-gone" and "want-to-be-left-alone" feelings, blues, and hopelessness, they should remember there is one tried and true remedy. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, at once removes such troubles. Refuse to buy any other medicine, for you need the best.

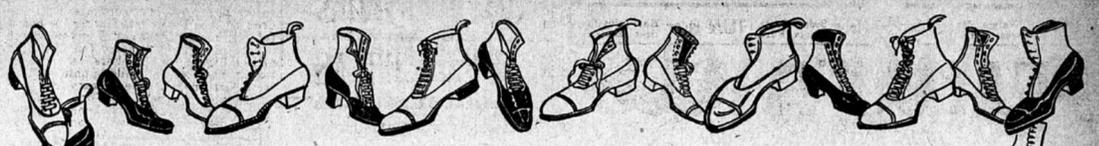

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—For over two years I suffered more than tongue can express with kidney and bladder trouble. My physician pronounced my trouble catarrh of the bladder, caused by displacement of the womb. I had a frequent desire to urinate, and it was very painful, and lumps of blood would pass with the urine. Also had backache very often. After writing to you, and receiving your reply to my letter, I followed your advice, and feel that you and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound have cured me. The medicine drew my womb into its proper place, and then I was well. I never feel any pain now, and can do my housework with ease."—Mrs. ALICE LAMON, Kincaid, Miss.

No other medicine for female ills in the world has received such widespread and unqualified endorsement.

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health. Address, Lynn, Mass.

$5000 FORFEIT If we cannot forthwith produce the original letters and signatures of above testimonials, which will prove their absolute genuineness. Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

POLITICIANS AT U. OF M.

HOW SOME STUDENTS MANAGE TO CONNECT OCCASIONALLY WITH CAMPAIGN FUNDS.

The announcement at the university that there will be no classes on Tuesday, election day, has been hailed with joy by the university politician. He has visions of reaping a harvest, for on the day of primary election many university students went home with enough money in their pockets to pay expenses for a week and have spending money left over.

There are more ways than one in which the university student can earn the money of the seeker for office. Most of the candidates have university managers—men selected among the students, who are supposed to deliver the student vote, so far as they are able, and who watch the situation and report to their chiefs.

Then there is the student who is chosen by the state central committee to organize student clubs at the university and at other colleges in the state. In addition, the list of speakers for the different parties include some students of the university. The work is confined to the country districts exclusively, but there are several students out in the state delivering lengthy discussions on state and national issues.

Card distributing is, however, the most popular and profitable mode of university electioneering. Students who get jobs of this character make on the average about $8 a day. They make all they can. One of the students not yet a voter stood all day in front of the polling place at a rural district on the primary election and displayed $18 as the result.

Union Vets Indorse Jones.

D. P. Jones has been heartily indorsed by the Union Veteran league. A report had been received by the league that Jones was instrumental in getting a man named Wallace discharged from the city water department. Wallace was a veteran. The league appointed a committee to investigate and found that the discharge had been made, but that the reinstatement was thru the instrumentality of Mr. Jones, and the meeting ended with Mr. Jones being fully indorsed for mayor.
