HARRISON MUST BE REINSTATED

PRACTICALLY WINS APPEAL FROM ARCHBISHOP'S ORDERS.

The Case Was Heard Before Mgr. Falco at Washington, Who Directs Father Harrison's Restoration to the Priesthood—Removal Is Approved but Suspension Order Is Reversed.

Rev. J. T. Harrison, former pastor of St. Joseph's Catholic parish of St. Paul, has practically won his appeal taken from the decision of Archbishop Ireland suspending him from the priesthood on account of his refusal to submit to the archbishop's authority in transferring him from St. Joseph's parish to St. Stephen's in Minneapolis.

The case was heard this week in Washington before Archbishop Falco, apostolic delegate, Archbishop Ireland and Father Harrison appearing in person to present their contentions. Word received today shows that the archbishop has decided in favor of the priest on every point except one.

Archbishop Ireland's authority in ordering the transfer of Father Harrison is upheld, but he is reinstated to the priesthood and will be eligible to appointment in the first vacancy in a parish of equal rank with St. Joseph's.

The decision settles a rather bitter controversy, early in the spring St. Joseph's, which is a large, prosperous parish, had well under way a project to build a new church. It had $70,000 contributed and other pledges that insured the erection of a fine church.

Archbishop Ireland, who was planning a new cathedral for St. Paul, decided that it was for the interest of the church to combine the two plans and to merge St. Joseph's with that of the cathedral. Father Harrison entered a strenuous protest in which he was supported by a strong element in his church.

While there was much sympathy in the church with Father Harrison's protest, it was not sufficient to overcome the archbishop's authority and refused to accept the change. He was then suspended and the appeal which has just been settled.

MURDER SUSPECTS READY FOR WORST

SCRAWFORD PRACTICALLY ADMITS HE EXPECTS CONVICTION.

He Still Denies Killing Lundeen, but Admits that He and His 'Pal' Saw the Party in the Fatal Car—Full Admission Believed to Have Been Secured.

"They seem to have us dead to rights. At any rate, I wish they would have the trial, and if they would have to hang us, get thru with it and leave room for others."

This pessimistic utterance was made this morning by Scrawford, who, with Charles E. Palmer, is closely confined in the county jail on the charge of murdering Heine Lundeen in cold blood near Elk River last Sunday morning.

The prisoner said, in answer to questions: "We were just coming from the west. We were an unlucky number and happened to be near the scene of the murder. We saw Lundeen and his party, but were not at the time of the shooting."

"Are you going to prove an alibi?" was asked. "I guess we will try," was the unenthusiastic response. "It is sometimes pretty hard to prove that you were not in a certain place at a certain time. Whatever happens, we'll keep our nerve. A fellow asked me this morning if I could sleep. I answered that of course I knew I was to be hung tomorrow. There's no use of being a baby."

The prisoner told something of his history. He said that he was a member of the Fourteenth infantry, went to Manila and after his return spent some time in San Francisco and later went north to Portland and stopped at different western towns. He said he was on his way east for the first time since his Philippine trip.

It is said upon good authority that since the arrest of Scrawford and Palmer, it has been believed that the two men were the actual confessors to the murder. He has described his part in it. He is said to have admitted that Lundeen was the only one of the boxcar party that did not get up. He said that the robbers opened the door; that Palmer said, "Oh, shoot the fellow if he gets up. He's only shamming," and that when Lundeen moved to rise Scrawford shot him.

It is also understood that in an unguarded moment Scrawford admitted having been implicated in the North town Junction affair, when Leonard Dare was murdered. This morning he denied having made any such admissions.

MINNESOTA WINS, AFTER A BATTLE OF PROTESTS

Both Teams Were Disqualified and the Game Was Finally Played by Members of the Faculty—Thrilling Account of a Gridiron Contest Six Years Hence.

Chicago Beach Hotel, Chicago, Ill., Nov. 19, 1910.—The goppers arrived here this morning for the annual game with Northwestern and were met at the station by the protest committee of the Evanston school. The Minnesota men were Evanston students made a rush to tear these off so that the attorneys and faculty committees would administer affairs righteously.

The maroon and gold, except to their carriages in comparative safety, also two were compelled to reveal their identity and were protested on the spot. It was charged that "Sluggsy" Swats had played hockey with MacMaster in 1908, and that "Bitter" Billson had played in the twin city college football team in 1909.

There were many special Thanksgiving services today in various churches, and at nearly all meetings collections were taken for charity. The contributions were large.

A union service was held at Park Avenue Congregational church in which Trinity Baptist, Central Baptist, Portland Avenue Church of Christ and the Park Avenue Congregational churches joined.

At a special service at Andrew Presbyterian church there were present Rev. C. F. Hubbard, the pastor, Messrs. J. E. Rasmussen, L. N. Hallok, A. J. Frost and Waterman.

RARE PRINTS ARE NOW AT LIBRARY

ARUNDEL CHROMO-LITHOGRAPHS SOON TO BE EXHIBITED.

Aside from Their Artistic Excellence They Are of Interest from Their Historical Associations and Their Rarity—The Collection Is the Only Subscribers' Set Sold for Twenty Years.

The set of Arundel chromo-lithographs of the old masters, which the Athenaeum recently ordered from London, has been received at the Minneapolis public library.

There are few complete sets of the Arundel chromo-lithographs in the United States. The very existence of such a collection is probably unknown not only to the average library patron, but to many students especially interested in art matters.

The Arundel society organized in 1845, was named at the suggestion of Sir Charles Eastlake, after Thomas Howard, an art collector, best known in the possession of Oxford university.

The originator of the society was Belandier Kerr, a well known lawyer of that time who had taken an active part in the Society for the Diffusion of Knowledge, and was anxious to introduce some similar agency into the domain of art.

The first attempt at a reproduction of the Arundel marbles, in the possession of Oxford university. The principal object of the society was to reproduce in correct form and color the decorations of the Vatican, comprising in one great epoch all that was most divine in pictorial art.

The 200 pictures reproduced include the two series by Giotto in the upper chapel at Assisi, and the Arena chapel at Padua; the works of Fra Angelico in the chapel of the Vatican; specimens of Botticelli from Florence; of Filippo Lippi from Prato, and from Rome; the series of frescoes by Florentine and Umbrian artists, on the walls of the Sistine chapel; the beautiful series by Ghirlandajo, which adorn the walls of S. Novati at Florence, etc.
