COSTLY THIMBLES

The Queen of Siam Possesses a Valuable Trinket.

The costliest thimble in the world is undoubtedly one possessed by the queen of Siam. It was presented to her by her husband, the king, who had it made at a cost of rather more than $15,000. This thimble is quite an exquisite work of art. It is made of pure gold in the fashion or shape of a half-opened lotus flower, the floral emblem of the royal house of Siam.

It is thickly studded with the most beautiful diamonds and other precious stones, which are so arranged as to form the name of the queen, together with the date of her marriage. She regards this thimble as one of her most precious possessions.

Not long since a Paris jeweler made a most elaborate thimble to the order of a certain well-known American millionaire. It was somewhat larger than the ordinary thimble, and the agreed price was $5,000. The gold setting was scarcely visible, so completely was it covered with diamonds, rubies and pearls in artistic designs, the rubies showing the initials of the recipient.

Five or six years ago a jeweler in the West End of London was paid a sum of nearly $3,000 for a thimble which the pampered wife of a South African Cress insisted on having made for her. This was one mass of precious gems, diamonds and rubies, which a thimble ornaments seem to almost monopolize feminine taste.

WOMAN'S ODD MISSION

English Girl Will Study Possibilities for Cotton Growing.

It is rather an odd mission for a woman which is being undertaken by Miss Gwendolyn S. Hamilton, who has gone to Kingston, Jamaica, at the behest of Sir Alfred Jones—head of the new British Cotton Growing association—to report on the possibilities for cotton growing in the West Indies. Miss Hamilton is only 24. She was educated in Liverpool and Oxford. She is a daughter of J. Lawrence Hamilton, M. R. C. S., who is so well known on both sides of the Atlantic for his work on fishery matters, and who is an honorary member of the American Fishing society. Since her graduation Miss Hamilton has written considerably on scientific topics. She is one of the most prominent members of the recently formed Lyceum club for women workers.

GOLDEN WEDDING CELEBRATION

WHAT WOMEN WANT TO KNOW Table Flowers.—How shall I arrange the flowers for a luncheon? I haven't one of the baskets that are so popular and am at a loss what to use as a substitute?—Hostess.

QUESTION FOR TOMORROW. Middle Aged Habits.—How can I overcome the tendency to settle into middle-aged habits? To be sure I am 45 years old, but I don't look my age and I don't want to, altho I feel myself growing indolent and careless.—Spinster.

THE FIRST STARCHER Flanders Women Used Colored Starch to Tint the Linen.

Starch originated in Flanders. It was introduced into England, with the big red hair of Queen Elizabeth. It was like our starch of today, except that it was made in colors—red, yellow, green and blue. The effect of this was to tint delicately the white linen to which the starch might be applied.

Before Queen Elizabeth's time ruffles were made of fine holland, which required no starching. Then the ruffs of cambric came, and these must of necessity be starched. It is recorded that when the queen had ruffs made of lawn and cambric for her own royal wear, she was so fond of them that she could tell how to starch them, but the queen made special inquiries, and Mrs. Guilham, wife of the royal coachman, was the first starcher.

In 1694 a Flanders woman, Frau Van der Plasse, came to London and established there a school for the teaching of starching. The school succeeded and the Flanders starch grew rich. She charged 25 a lesson and an extra 10 shillings for a recipe for the making of starch out of wheat flour, bran and roots.

UZARINA A NOVELIST Her Story of Russian Life Is True and Daring.

The czarina has written a novel. The title is "Princess Tola's Model," and in form it is a graphic story of Russian life in which the rampant militarism of Russia is scornfully depicted. The "model" was a young Russian peasant who posed for the princess and was forgotten for a season. When the princess remembered she found he had been taken to death in a Siberian prison.

SURPRISE FOR THE EMPRESS Kaiser Secretly Has a Life-Size Statue Made.

The kaiser has surprised the empress with a life-size statue of herself in marble.

Two years ago his majesty commissioned a well-known sculptor, Professor Beggs, with the work, ordering him to keep the secret carefully from the empress. The sculptor was given every opportunity to make the necessary sketches at public festivities, unobscured by his imperial sister, and the result is stated to be entirely to the satisfaction of both their majesties.

The empress is represented in a close-fitting costume decorated with lace that wraps around the neck, holding a rose in the right hand, and carrying a silk shawl over the left arm.

"Electric Handshaker." This article of amusement has been devised by a man in Waterson, N. J. The battery and coil is concealed in the inside breast pocket or other convenient hiding place on the person intending to operate the toy. The two wires are run down the sleeve of the operator and the ring slipped on one of his fingers, the two contact buttons being toward the wrist. When the hand is raised, the operator shakes hands or otherwise brings the two buttons of the ring in contact with another person's hand, thus receiving a most surprising and effective electric shock. Simply ask the operator to give you Main Double Three and order a case of golden grain belt beer. It will tone you up if you are suffering from the effects of that big Thanksgiving dinner.

A CLEVER PRINCESS

Famous Beauty Invents New Utensils for Her Guests.

A fad that makes people comfortable is surely to be commended. The Princess of Pless, in studying forks, knives, spoons, etc., insists that she does it solely in the interest of her guests. She never allows a high centerpiece on her table, for instance, she permits only the necessary things at each place, with lobster in a changing dish she has a special combination spoon and fork, so that her guests may have not only their lobster, but gravy, too; for cutting up lettuce and spaghetti she has a combination fork and scissors. The princess is credited with introducing a fashion at her table that she insists was a necessity. On the occasion of a certain great banquet that she gave not long ago, her guests were confronted with what looked like a couple of primitive thimbles, fashioned of rare old silver, with the Pless crest engraved on the sides of them. The princess' invention enables one to hold the leg of any bird with safety and style and at the same time to keep the fingers from getting greasy.

MISS GALBREATH'S REWARD

President Sends Picture to the Woman Who Rebuked Hobson.

Miss Ida Galbreath, the Columbia City, Ind., schoolteacher who rebuked Captain Richmond P. Hobson for abuse of President Roosevelt, has received a note from President Roosevelt, with his photograph, which she asked her to accept as an evidence of his appreciation of her words in his behalf. Captain Hobson spoke in Columbia City in his closing days of the campaign, and in his speech referred to President Roosevelt as a man who assumed the role of a dictator and one who, if allowed, would bring untold miseries on the people.

Miss Galbreath was in the audience, and at the close of the speech she advanced to the platform with the crowd. As she approached Hobson was shaking hands with admirers, but she withheld hers and, looking him in the eye, said that he had slandered the president and that he should not make such assertions when he knew there was no truth in them. He only replied that he was sorry they did not agree, and Miss Galbreath turned away. By the mail of today she received the following from the president: "Will you allow me as a token of appreciation to inclose herewith my photograph. Sincerely yours, Theodore Roosevelt."

ART OF DISHWASHING

To Secure Good Results Use Plenty of Materials.

A dish well-scraped is half-washed. Scrape and stack dishes carefully. When knives, forks or plates are greasy or fatty from the serving of fish, wipe them off with pieces of paper which are easily burned. Keep the grease out of the pan and away from the dishcloth.

The dishcloth be of linen if possible, and always hemmed. An unhemmed washcloth or wiper leaves the dishes covered with lint and particles of the frayed edges stop up the sink drain.

Wash the silver first, using plenty of hot water and soap.

Two pans are necessary to wash dishes properly. One for the washing, another large one for rinsing. Into the bottom of the rinsing pan fit a wooden strainer, two or three inches from the bottom of the pan, that the water turned over the dishes may drain thru it and leave them free of water. This saves dish towels. Use hot water for rinsing.

Wash the glasses after the silver, and then the cups and saucers, plates, etc. When the dishes are washed throw the water out. Don't wash tinware or kettles in thick water. Have a separate dishcloth for pans and another for kettles.

Plenty of scraping, plenty of water.

plenty of soap, plenty of pans, plenty of towels and washers, make dishwashing what it should be.

NO BEAUTY IN PARIS. Marcel Prevost, the well-known French novelist and dramatist, has raised a storm of protest here by making the following assertion: "French women are never beautiful."

now. Many of them are pretty and one never sees a plain Parisienne, but their prettiness is due to their toilets. They have engaging looks that are well manipulated. Color comes and goes, but their maids can fetch and carry it." M. Prevost declares that there is no such thing in Paris as masculine beauty.
