

WRONG IDEA.

Don't get the wrong idea into your head that starvation is good for Dyspepsia. It's not. Those who have not studied the subject very deeply, or with trained scientific minds, might think so. But facts prove otherwise. All specialists in stomach and digestive disorders know that it is best for dyspepsia to be well fed. Why, dyspepsia is really a starvation disease! Your food doesn't feed you. By starvation, you may give your bowels and kidneys less to do, but that does not cure your digestive trouble—simply makes you weaker and sicker; less likely to be permanently cured than ever. No, the only right way to permanently cure yourself of any form of dyspepsia or indigestive trouble is to eat heartily of all the food that you find best agrees with you, and help your digestion to work with Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. This is a safe, certain, scientific, reliable method of treatment, which will never fail to cure the most obstinate cases if persevered in. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets have a gentle, tonic, refreshing effect on the secretory glands of the entire digestive tract. They gently force the flow of fresh digestive juices. They contain, themselves, many of the chemical constituents of these juices, thus when dissolved they help to dissolve the food around them in the stomach or bowels. They therefore quickly relieve all the symptoms of indigestion, and coax the glands to take a proper pleasure in doing their proper work. No other medical treatment of any sort nor any fad system of "Culture" or "Cure" will give you the solid, permanent, curative results that will Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. A ROYAL MATCH MADE FOR GUSTAF

SWEDISH PRINCE TO MARRY OLGA OF BRUNSWICK.

The Marriage Will Mark the Last of the Most Desirable Unions Made by the Duke of Cumberland's Daughters—A New Plan in Nobel Prize Award.

Prince Gustaf Adolf of Sweden and Norway is reported to be engaged to Princess Olga of Brunswick and Great Britain and the official announcement is expected at any time. Unlike any of the Bernadotte rulers of the brother kingdoms, Prince Gustaf Adolf has the royal blood of Vasa in his veins, for his mother, a princess of Baden, is the great granddaughter of Gustaf IV., next to the last of the long line of Vasa rulers. On that account he is possibly a little nearer to the Swedish people at least, altho the present king is thoroughly in accord with his subjects.

The engagement of Prince Gustaf Adolf and Princess Olga marks the last of the wonderfully successful marriages made by the three daughters of the Duke of Cumberland. For, altho the latter has lost the crown of Hanover, to which he was born, and is debarred from taking possession of his throne as sovereign duke of Brunswick, which is admittedly his by right of inheritance, yet one of his girls already occupies a throne as consort of the reigning Grand Duke of Mecklenburg-Schwerin, and, while the eldest is destined to become eventually reigning Grand Duchess of Baden, the youngest, by her marriage to Prince Gustavus Adolphus, Duke of Scania, will in course of time be crowned as queen of Sweden and Norway.

Princess Olga is, like her future husband, a Lutheran, good looking, and will inherit a considerable share of the colossal private fortune of her father, the extent of whose wealth may be appreciated when I mention that on the occasion of his last visit to England, when he spent a few weeks at Claridge hotel, he brought along with him no less than fourteen tons of gold and silver plate for use during his stay.

The marriage will be very popular in Sweden, for not only is the princess, as a grandchild of the king of Denmark, in a measure a Scandinavian, but she is likewise destined to bring some gaiety and brilliancy to the rather gloomy court of Stockholm, where, owing to the continual absence thru ill health of both the queen and the crown princess, the feminine element, at any rate as far as the royal family are concerned, is sadly lacking, Princess Charles being, indeed, the solitary representative thereof.

NEW NOBEL PRIZE PLAN

This Year's Award Goes to an Institution, Not to Individuals.

Instead of awarding the Nobel prize to an individual as in former years, the Nobel committee of the Norwegian storting has awarded the 1904 prize to L'Institut de Droit International. The prize this year is worth 140,556kr or something over $38,000.

This institute for international rights has no official character, but is a voluntary organization of men interested in the furtherance of international peace. The institute's great influence is due principally to the fact that only leading jurists and statesmen are admitted.

It was organized in 1873 and its work has been of the most practical character. As early as 1875 it planned for an international court of arbitration and its plan has recently been adopted in the Hague conventions and tribunal. It has labored hard to advance the idea of neutrality and it was mainly thru its efforts that the neutralization of the Suez canal and the Congo river has been recognized by the nations of the earth. It has sought with good success to mitigate the horrors of war, many humane restrictions in the use of explosives and rules for care of the dead and wounded. It has also given careful attention to the preparation of a series of international private laws regarding marriage and divorce. Many of the institute's ideas have been adopted by the Scandinavian countries, particularly the exchange and marine laws.

So wide has been the field of the institute's work and influence that it would be impossible to make any estimate as to what it has accomplished, but it is well known that it has been the most effective agency for international peace. That the Nobel prize will be well spent is of course foregone.

HONORED IN PARIS

Scandinavians Were the Lions of the Peace Congress.

The acknowledged lions at the international peace congress at Paris were the Scandinavian delegates. They were treated with such marked consideration that the German delegates were plainly disconcerted and the German press has sought to belittle the gathering. A whole book could be written of the array of receptions, banquets, dinners and entertainments supplied to the Scandinavians, not only in Paris, but in Lille, Ghent, Brussels, Nice, Monte Carlo and other places.

The most distinguished people in the country attended the festivities. King Oscar and King Christian, King Bjornsen, Ibsen, Norden-Skjold, Nansen, Finsen, Nobel and many other illustrious northern personages were lauded everywhere.

NEW DANISH NAMES

There Will Now Be Some Others Besides the "Sens."

The privilege granted by the Danish government regarding the changing of patronymics is reported to be having the effect expected.

It is a necessary piece of legislation for the Danes, it seems, as the entire population is divided into several great clans, such as the Jensens, the Hansens, the Petersens and the Sorensens. Besides any one of these familiar Smiths and Joneses of Anglo-Saxon origin would be in an absurd minority. One town of 25,000 inhabitants there are about twenty surnames to go round, and the trouble experienced by the postman almost drives him to drink. Consequently this granting of a new name privilege will be a matter of rejoicing in the Danish postoffice, if nowhere else.

BISHOP SKAAR DEAD

Leader of Norway's Established Church Goes to His Reward.

Bishop Johannes Nilsson Skaar, bishop of Thronhjelm diocese and one of the leaders of the established church of Norway, died at Thronhjelm on Dec. 13 of heart disease. He was born of peasant parents on the Skaar farm near Fiskeundet, Hardanger, in 1828. He was raised to be a bishop in 1885, his first diocese being Tromsø, but in 1892 was transferred to Thronhjelm. In Bishop Skaar became well known in America for his efforts to relieve the famine distress in northern Norway last year.

Didn't Need to, Here.

Lektor Waldenstrom has made himself disliked by the Lund students by accusing members of the chorus of having attracted public attention by hammering at a door of a saloon in New Haven one Sunday morning. Knut Barr, a member of the chorus, in a reply, simply states that the chorus arrived in New Haven Thursday, June 16, in the afternoon, and left on Friday, June 17, at noon.

Hands Across the Sea.

A Swedish-American organization has been formed in Gothenborg, Sweden, with the name of the "Svensk-Amerikanska Sällskapet," for the purpose of maintaining relations between Sweden and the people of Swedish descent in America. Among the members of the directory are Otto Elander and Dr. Elander, former residents of Minneapolis.

His Eighth Shipwreck.

Mate Henningsen of the Swedish schooner Jonne, sailing from Norrkoping, Sweden, to Denmark, was the only survivor when the vessel struck on a reef and was wrecked. He is a Norwegian and has been shipwrecked eight times, but has no desire to give up his hazardous life.

Was Norge Case Whitewashed?

Many newspapers stamp the decision of the marine court at Copenhagen in the investigation of the loss of the steamship Norge as a "whitewash." The court in its decree of Dec. 21, absolved Captain Gundell and the directors of the steamship company from all blame.
