RENEW CALL FOR APPEAL TO PEOPLE

Orangemen Condemn Sbaretti and Urge Manitoba's Premier to Summon Assembly.

Special to The Journal.

Winnipeg, Man., April 7.—There was a remarkable manifestation of public feeling last night regarding the provincial deadlock and Sbaretti incident, the occasion being a special meeting of the L. O. L., convened by Grand Master Saunders for the purpose of considering the situation as affecting western Protestant interests. W. T. Edgcombe, secretary of the district, moved a resolution condemning the interference of Mgr. Sbaretti the Italian priest, as manifested thru Laurier, in the affairs of the province and calling on the government to quash the public sentiment by a dissolution and general election. Referring to a report that the outgoing governor had refused to grant dissolution, being no doubt instigated by Laurier, the resolution called on the provincial government to end the deadlock by summoning the assembly and thus give the people a chance to make their voice heard in unmistakable accents.

In moving the adoption of this resolution Edgcombe made an impassioned speech, asking the members should tamely submit to coercion by the pope at Rome, or whether they should not assert their manhood and show themselves not unworthy of the great deeds of their past by rising as one man in protest and by fighting again the battle of religious freedom until there should be no doubt as to the issue. "Shall we," he cried, "for whom our fathers have fought and bled, allow our sons to be robbed of our great heritage? Are we not agreed that a broad national system of schools is the only effective safeguard for our youth against the effective buffer to the insidious machinations of our enemy? Shall we now sit with folded hands and see the rape of our most precious privilege and the destruction of all we hold most sacred?" The speaker was carried away by his enthusiasm, which, however, was fully shared by the audience, and the motion was carried unanimously. It was decided to send the resolution to the provincial and dominion governments.

SAYS COLUMBUS CAME TOO SOON

Prof. J. Paul Goode Thinks that America's Discovery Should Have Been Postponed.

New York Sun Special Service.

Chicago, April 7.—"One of the greatest misfortunes to America," said Professor J. Paul Goode of the University of Chicago, to the junior college students in a meeting yesterday, "is that Columbus' discovery was made too soon. It would have been immeasurably better for the western hemisphere if it had not been heard of for a hundred years after 1492."

A century later, the professor explained, the days was advanced further than in Finney county, adjoining Grant, and the women there are well enough acquainted with conditions in southwestern Kansas to know what they are being called upon to face. Most of Grant county is barren and waterless, and the a branch of the Cimarron river and one or two smaller streams run thru it, irrigation is necessary in most sections before the country can be of great value even for grazing purposes.

Once a Wild Land. From the days of the pioneers it has been left alone, for, in addition to its natural difficulties it was exposed to Indian raids long after the center and eastern parts of the state were settled. The Kiowas, Comanches and Southern Cheyennes infested its boundaries, and it was thru here that their line of march lay when they set out north on the warpath or on raiding parties. Custer finally beat the Indians back on this side, but for years after they were supposed to be concentrated in their reservations in what is now Oklahoma, these southwestern prairies were their continual ranging ground. Grant county has many stories of fights within its limits, but the tales made it a picturesque field for the historian, they served to keep settlers away for many years after real danger from the Indians was over.

It is this bleak country that is to be the scene of wholesale wooing which, for all its businesslike atmosphere, is not without romance. Women, in some way or another, is at the back of every enterprise, but this is the first time she has been asked to lead the development of a new country by setting herself up as the prize.

PLANS COLONY FOR WOULD-BE BRIDES

Southwestern Kansas Land Owner Has Novel Project for Attracting Immigrants.

Topeka, Kan., April 7.—Good news for the widows and marriageable maidens whose affinities have kept out of their way comes from Grant county, in the southwestern part of this state. They are invited to come to a new land as a lure to impressionable young ranchmen. The country is so sparsely populated that T. M. Henthorn, one of the principal land owners, has decided something must be done to add to its attractions and encourage settlers. He has hit on the idea of getting some unattached women and locating them in Grant county long after the center and eastern parts of the state, who will draw farmers, cowboys and ranchmen from all parts of the state, who will choose wives from among them, and with a gentle feminine hand to guide them, settle down to the raising of cattle and the cultivation of the land. The first step has been marked with no little success. In a group of four thirty-eight women who are willing to take a chance, and, rather than remain spinsters at home, go out in the wilds and see what fortune will do for them in the way of husbands. Whether the few men in Grant county will look with favor on the land and a comely wife offer which Mr. Henthorn is preparing for them cannot be determined until spring. By that time the little colony will be established near Ulysses, the county seat, and if the brave prove brave enough they will find the fair waiting for them.

No Adamless Eden.

The population of Grant county is less than four hundred, and nearly all is centered in and close around Ulysses. It is a wise precaution that has led Mr. Henthorn to plant his colony where it will be within reach of civilization if his plans miscarry, for if the women are unwed, in spite of their having to come to the place with the object of tempting suitors, they will be able to return from their Adamless Eden to haunts where they can be sure of finding men.

But, judging from the interest which the project had aroused among the Kansas ranchmen who hitherto have gone fancy free, the settlement will have no lack of visitors after the colonists arrive. The fact that a substantial dower, in the form of a claim of land, goes with each bride is likely to prove an additional inducement to cowboys who are tired of bachelor life and want to set up homes of their own. Careful measures have been devised to protect members of the colony from the designs of wooers who would take advantage of their innocence. Garden City, on the Arkansas River,

STATE BIDS IN BONDS
Offers of Outsiders Rejected by Montana Land Board.

HELENA, MONT.—Rejecting all bids submitted in response to its advertisements for the sale of $25,000 worth of normal school bonds, the state land board decided to buy the same on behalf of the state on a basis that will yield the state a per cent net.

The bids were authorized by the recent legislature, in order to erect additional buildings at educational institutions, and are based upon a land grant made by the national government to the state upon its admission, and are to run for twenty years, but may be redeemed at the end of ten. The board decided upon the purchase after a somewhat protracted session in which State Treasurer Elze was called upon to prepare a statement as to the amounts in the several funds.

The purchase by the state was made possible by the fact that the trustees of the institutions will not need the money in a lump sum, and incidentally it will effect a neat saving in interest.

have wandered so far from the ordinary walks of womankind largely with the object of avoiding the sex, and these say it is tempting providence to contemplate the marriage of men who are well enough satisfied with their present conditions.

Henthorn is an optimist. He expects to have his first batch of thirty-eight married off before the colony is a month old, and as soon as allotments of land are made to them he will have a second and larger contingent of eager would-be brides ready to follow in the footsteps of the pioneers of his matrimonial venture.
