HIS FOUR WIVES SOUGHT PENSION

THE MINNEAPOLIS WIDOW WINS AND THEN LOSES.

After Mrs. A. G. Bartley Had Been Granted Allowance, It Is Learned that a New Jersey Woman Has a Prior Right—Bartley Had Been Frigidate with His Affections.

Lying on the desk of H. L. Roethe, special examiner of pensions, is a huge envelope filled with papers which tell of a family skeleton unearthed. These papers will be filed in the archives at Washington among thousands of similar documents. They bear witness to the fact that danger lies in the application for pension there are any facts in the lives of the applicants which they might wish to conceal from the world. Armed with the resources of the United States government, the special examiners rarely fail to probe every effort at fraud.

In the case upon which Mr. Roethe has been working the woman who will suffer if innocent of trying to obtain money illegally. Mrs. A. G. Bartley, formerly of Minneapolis, has been drawing a pension since her husband died in 1898. In filing her petition for a pension after his death, she stated that she had no knowledge of his having previously been married. There was no evidence to show that he had and a pension was granted. Not long afterwards papers were filed by a woman in New Jersey, who insisted that she was the legal widow of A. G. Bartley. She said that he deserted her in the middle years of the civil war. She had had six children before the desertion. Before the inquiry was completed a third widow appeared from Arkansas, and shortly afterwards another from New York.

The idea that there must have been two men in the same regiment developed into the theory that there must have been four. This was obviously unlikely and it was found that the soldier had four wives, every one of them ignorant of the existence of her rivals. As the Jersey woman seemed to have the prior claim, the pension went to her and it became the duty of the special examiners to inform the other wives of the impossibility of their obtaining help from the government.

MAKING CLAY BOWLS POPULAR WITH PUPILS

Modeling and decorating clay bowls, an innovation in the sixth grade drawing departments of ten Minneapolis schools, is proving popular with the pupils, and it is likely that it will become a permanent feature of the curriculum. Authorized by the board of education as an experiment in handwork, it has become the most popular feature with pupils, and the teachers who have had to do with it are unanimous in their praise. The pupils take pride in thinking of original designs and in doing good work. The only objection raised against making clay work a permanent feature seems to be that it takes too much time, and this is met with the argument that the pupils take so much interest in the work that they do their best work in it. In many cases, the pupils take pride in thinking of original designs and in doing good work. The only objection raised against making clay work a permanent feature seems to be that it takes too much time, and this is met with the argument that the pupils take so much interest in the work that they do their best work in it.

THE NEW AUDITORIUM HAS WIDE REPUTATION

"Just another bouquet for the auditorium," said Franklin Johnson, advance manager of the "Everyman" company today. "I suppose that in the last six months I have visited nearly every city between San Francisco and New York, that boasts of a theater or main hall, and Minneapolis bears the palm."

"My opinion is shared by Herr Conried of the grand opera company. I met him recently in Chicago, and he had nothing but praise for the auditorium and the city."

Mr. Johnson has had a wide experience in managing dramatic companies. While an undergraduate he was instrumental in launching the dramatic club, and managed the plays for three years. The club is now one of the most successful college institutions in the country, and plays to full houses in New York and other eastern cities.

ST. PAUL IN THE DUMPS

NOTHING THERE TO OFFSET THE NEW AUDITORIUM IN MINNEAPOLIS.

Nowhere is the new Minneapolis auditorium more fully appreciated than in St. Paul. That it is not a thoroughly correct appreciation, is indicated by the following from yesterday's St. Paul Dispatch:

Ben Greet's famous company of Shakespearean players is coming soon to the new auditorium at Minneapolis.

Once more hundreds of St. Paul residents will attend the performances, too good to be missed, that are not to be witnessed in St. Paul.

The recent lesson of the Conrad grand opera season will be repeated—that large sums of St. Paul money must continue to be spent in the sister city until St. Paul secures an auditorium of its own.

The "Everyman" company, presenting the annual morality play, "Everyman," that succeeded so remarkably in other cities, will bring not only a noted medium, but an artistic prestige recognized equally in London and New York.

There were rains in nearly all parts of the state on April 1, 2 and 3, and a few scattering rains or snows on the morning of April 4, 5, 6, 7, 8 and 10. The winter's frost is generally well out of the ground, but the low temperatures in the middle and latter parts of the week froze the surface soil so that no field work was possible till toward noon.

Wheat seeding has begun on the higher lands of the northern third of the state; in central portions wheat seeding is farther advanced, and some cuts are being seeded, while in the south central and southwestern portions wheat seeding is nearing completion, and oat seeding is well advanced, and in some places a little barley has been seeded. Some of the early seeded wheat is coming up. Only the fall plowed lands is being seeded up to this time. Much more attention than usual is being paid to the quality of the seed used. Early potato planting and gardening are begun. Winter rye, winter wheat and clover seem to be doing well.

ONE STRIKE ENDED

Plaster Tenders Return to Work at the Old Scale.

The plaster tenders who have been on a strike since April 1 for an increase of 40 cents a day, have decided to go back to work at the old scale. The strikers reported for work yesterday and, according to the agreement with the employers, were carried for a complete surrender on the part of the tenders was arranged by officers of the building trades organizations, who secured from the employers the agreement to take back all old men at the old scale. The tenders, in their strike, have been entirely alone, as other organizations felt that they had no case and were getting fair wages.
