

TEST CASE BEGUN BY BANK RECEIVER

MAKER OF ACCOMMODATION NOTE IS SUED AT FARBULT.

Court Will Decide Whether T. B. Clement's Friends Must Pay Notes Given Without Consideration—First National Bank's Creditors Impatient for Statement by Receiver.

Special to The Journal. Faribault, Minn., April 29.—Lyman Baird, as receiver of the First National bank, has brought suit in the district court against John Hutchinson, president of the Faribault furniture company, to collect a $4,500 note given to the bank. This is a test case and on the decision important issues depend. The note is one of several accommodation notes given to the bank at the solicitation of its president, T. B. Clement. Mr. Hutchinson received no consideration. With other like notes it was used by Mr. Clement to pad the assets when the bank examiner made his inspections. The makers supposed the notes were for merely temporary use and had long ago been retired or destroyed. Instead Mr. Clement had regularly indorsed them, indicating that interest had been paid. The suit will probably be tried before the judge of another judicial district, as the judge of this district was vice president of the bank and his heaviest deposits are in the bank. The case for years will confront the Faribault court, as the failure is certain to result in much litigation. Depositors Impatient. The depositors are becoming very impatient at the delay of the receiver's supplemental statement. They complain that they know no more now than they did four months ago. Mr. Baird has sent voluminous reports to the department at Washington setting out very fully the condition of the bank's affairs. The department's understanding stands why they should not be kept informed. Compromise is Possible. Several consultations among the directors have given rise to the report that they are about to submit an offer of compromise to the depositors. Mr. Baird has more than once intimated to the directors that they cannot hope to escape all responsibility, and that the government will insist on fully enforcing the law so far as it relates to their liability. The fact that they are willing to effect a settlement has been communicated to the directors by the depositors' committee. The terms of the proposed compromise cannot yet be definitely stated.

NEED RED HAIR TO JOIN THE CLUB

Fiery Locks Are Required of Members of a Musical Organization in Portland.

Portland, Ore., April 29.—Red-haired women of Portland are organizing a glee club of one hundred voices, to be trained by L. H. Hurst, director. A good number of red-haired and golden-haired damsels has been gathered, but the full number is being obtained by means of a circular letter written to the chosen of typical locks. The plan is being taken up seriously, the purpose being ostensibly to give concerts, but in the circular letter a deeper plan is revealed. The writer, who is doing the promoting, appeals to those blessed with burnished hair on the ground that red hair is a mark of beauty, has not been appreciated by the world, and that to gather together the fair of face and red of hair, combined with power of voice, will make all those who hear and see fall down and worship.

TRIPLETS BORN EIGHT MONTHS AFTER TWINS

Laurel, Del., April 29.—Mrs. Ursula Bailey, the 37-year-old wife of a mechanic residing here, presented her husband eight months ago with twins. Dr. Andrew Fleetwood was called in to-day and soon after started the husband by saying: "Here are three more young Baileys." The youngsters were a little premature, and the well-formed and seemingly perfect, soon after died.

CHURCH TO HEAL IS RECTOR'S PLAN

Fashionable Denver Church Is Disturbed Over the New Ideas Advanced by Pastor.

Denver, Col., April 29.—St. Mark's Protestant Episcopal church of Denver, has been stirred to its foundation by the action of its rector, Rev. John H. Houghton, in establishing a guild to teach healing of the sick by religious instruction. His course may result in sensational developments among the congregation and threatens to revolutionize this conservative church.

NORTHWEST NECROLOGIC

DELUTH, MINN.—Washington Watts, 71 years of age, one of the first settlers at the head of the lake, dropped dead from heart disease yesterday. He leaves a wife and two sons. He was a prominent contractor for many years, but retired a few years ago on account of advanced age.

CHATELAIN, MINN.—Dorcas Richards died suddenly at the home of her son Joseph, aged 70. She was a New Yorker, served in the civil war until honorably discharged in 1865 and was a member of B. L. Kenay post, No. 89—Harry Burke, aged 56, died at the home of his father, Hiram Burke. The cause was consumption.

SHELL LAKE, WIS.—Frank Horst, an attorney, died yesterday from the effects of an attack of the ill by religious sects was an issue which all churches must sooner or later meet and settle to the satisfaction of the Christians of the world. I, myself, have been healed by the word of God, the study of the Bible, the understanding of Christ's teachings," he declared, and now has made known his intention of establishing a guild to teach healing as taught by the Bible, will be the study of the members.

The church is divided in its reception of this departure, and some who do not approve the move may band together and form a separate church. It is the desire of Mr. Houghton to prevent members from leaving the church, and to this end, Henry Holden Colpus came to his assistance from Philadelphia. The measure is taken to put an end to the decreasing membership on account of the inroads of new churches which preach the healing of the ill as taught by Christ.

Mr. Colpus says that it is the intention to organize guilds of health through out the British empire and the United States. Simultaneously in London and in Denver, Mr. Colpus said, the necessity for a radical movement to counteract the tendency of church members to leave their church relations to join the ranks of healing cults was recognized.

SPRING PRACTICE FOR CORNHUSKERS

Booth's Nebraska Proteges Will Punt for a Prize Loving Cup.

Special Dispatch to The Journal. Lincoln, Neb., April 29.—Spring football practice is to be established at the University of Nebraska during the coming year. A decision to this effect has been announced by Captain Borg, after a consultation with Assistant Coach Westover, and ex-Captain Benedict. Westover will be in charge of the practice, beginning Monday, and continuing every afternoon on the athletic field for two weeks. Spring practice has not been a part of Booth's curriculum since four years ago, at which time he was instructor in the athletic department of the University and he has been practicing football in New York, only coming to Lincoln during the winter months. He has been preparing and it was on his counsel that Booth took charge of the reformation of spring work.

The making of ex-Captain Benedict in the lower grades last fall will make it incumbent upon Booth to develop a new kicker, and the chief object of the spring practice will be to try out the men at booting the ball. Benedict has suffered from water on the knee since the Iowa game and it is doubtful if he ever entirely recovers, much less that he will be able to do the molekicks in Booth's squad next September.

Three or four of the veterans from last year's Cornhuskers are good material in the kicking line, and these men will be given special attention for the season. It is expected that twenty or thirty aspirants will get into this department of the practice. As a special training camp will be held locally as well as the one at Lincoln, the school will get into the department of the practice. Two other prizes, Edgar Cotton, who retired things up during the winter, and a silver loving cup as a first prize for the greatest degree of proficiency. Two other prizes, Edgar Cotton, who retired things up during the winter, and a silver loving cup as a first prize for the greatest degree of proficiency.

Later in the year the athletic board will take up and decide the question of instituting a training camp in the middle of August and lasting three weeks, with the object of conditioning the men for the season. It is expected that the spring practice will prove a decided benefit to the athletes of the Cornhuskers on the gridiron in 1905.

FRESTON, MINN.—The four and feed mill owned by Mills & Gray, known locally as the red mill, burned last night. The origin of the fire is a likely candidate for first honors. On the kick he is specially proficient. John, the negro end, however, promises to give Cotton a stiff rap.

CROOKSTON, MINN.—Lieutenant Colonel Johnson arrived today to check up Captain Harry L. Keller of Company I, Third regiment, resigned. Lieutenant Hitchcock will be in command until Governor Johnson names his successor.

ANPETUSAPAWIN, A LEGEND OF ST. ANTHONY FALLS

Long ere the white man's eye hath seen These flower-decked prairies, fair and wide, Long ere the white man's bark had been Borne on the Mississippi's tide, So long ago, Dakotas say, Anpetusapawin was born, Her eyes beheld these scenes so gay First opening on life's rosy morn.

In the long ago, a young Indian brave espoused as his wife this Indian maiden of whom the poet sings. With her he lived happily for a few years in the enjoyment of every comfort of which a savage life is capable. To crown their happiness, they were blessed with two lovely children on whom they doted as much as the white man. During the time of the chase, he became signalized in an eminent degree as a hunter, having met with unrivaled success in the pursuit and capture of the wild denizens of the forest. This circumstance contributed to raise him high in the estimation of his fellow savages and drew a crowd of admiring friends around. This operated as a spur to his ambitions.

At length some of his newly acquired friends suggested to him the propriety of taking another wife, as it would be impossible for one woman to manage the affairs of his household and properly wait upon the many guests who were so great for the young man. He intimated to him that in all probability he would soon be elevated to the chieftainship. His vanity was flattered by the suggestion and he readily and accepted a wife they had already selected for him.

After his second marriage he sought to take his new wife home and reconcile his first wife to the match in the most delicate manner possible. To this end he returned to his first wife, as yet ignorant of what had occurred, and endeavored, by dissimulation, to secure her approval.

"You know," said he, "I can love no one as I love you; yet I see your labors are too great for your strength of endurance. Your duties are daily becoming more and more numerous and burdensome. This grieves me sorely. But I know of only one remedy by which you can be relieved. These considerations constrain me to take another wife. This wife shall be under your control, and she will do for you all that you wish. She will listen to your narrative in painful anxiety and endeavor to reclaim him from his wicked profligate, refusing all his sophistry by expressions of her unaffected and conjugal affection. He left her to meditate. She became more industrious and treated him more tenderly than before. She tried every means in her power to dissuade him from the execution of his vile purpose. She pleaded all the endearments of their former life, she begged her husband for her happiness and that of the offspring of the mutual love to prevail on him to relinquish the idea of marrying another wife. He then informed her of the fact of his marriage and stated that compliance on her part would be actually necessary. She must receive the new wife into their home. She was determined, however, not to be the passive dupp of his duplicity. With her two children she returned to her parental teepee. In the autumn she joined her friends and kinsmen in an expedition up the Mississippi and spent the winter in hunting. In the springtime, as they were returning, laden with peltries, she and her children occupied a canoe by themselves. On nearing the Falls of St. Anthony she lingered in the rear till the others had landed a little above the falls. She then painted herself and children, paddled her canoe into the swift current of the rapids and began chanting her death song, in which she recounted her former happy life, with her husband, when she enjoyed his undivided affection and the wretchedness in which she was now involved by his infidelity. Her friends, alarmed at her imminent peril, ran to the shore and begged her to paddle out of the current before it was too late, while her parents, renouncing their clothing and tearing their hair, begged her to come to their arms of love; but all in vain. Her wretchedness was complete and must terminate with her existence. She continued her course till her canoe was borne headlong down the roaring cataract and it and the deserted, heartbroken wife and the beautiful and innocent children, were dashed to pieces on the rocks below. No traces of the canoe or its occupants were ever found. Her brothers avenged her death by slaying the treacherous husband of the deserted wife.

They say that still that song is heard Above the mighty torrent's roar, When trees are by the night-wind stirred And darkness broods on stream and shore. —R. J. Creswell.
