LIMIT IS GIVEN THE MURDERERS

Columbia Heights Trio Sentenced, One for Life, Others for Thirty Years.

Special to The Journal.

Anoka, Minn., May 17.—For the cold blooded and brutal murder of little Freddie King at Columbia Heights on the night of Nov. 22, Orin Kaldorwit, 28 years of age, young, vigorous and reckless, will go to Stillwater for life.

Charles Hammon, 22 years of age, and John Kolb, 23, his pals, both from respectable homes, but themselves hardened and indifferent, must spend thirty years, the best years of their lives, in the same prison in atonement for their share in the crime.

At 5 p.m. yesterday the Kolb-Hammon jury, after deliberating over seven hours, returned a verdict of murder in the third degree. Kaldorwit, the supposed leader of the gang, had been found guilty on a second degree charge two weeks before.

The closing scenes of the trial were most dramatic. Throughout the entire ordeal the younger defendants had been surrounded and cheered by their friends and relatives. All were present to hear the verdict, fearing the worst yet hoping for the best.

After the usual formalities, Clerk Hart read the verdict of guilty in the third degree. The two prisoners appeared calm and unmoved. Only the aged and loving mother of Kolb seemed in the least affected.

Kaldorwit was brought in by a deputy. He had been advised of the lesser degree given his two pals and appeared in an ugly and vicious mood. He pulled and jerked at his handcuffs, and when released, threw himself into a seat and glared at his two companions.

Begs for Light Sentence.

Attorney W. A. Wolfe of La Crosse, who has known Hammon and Kolb from childhood made an eloquent plea for a light sentence, affirming his belief in their innocence. F. L. McGhee of St. Paul followed in a similar vein and stated that the two had led a life of indifference rather than debauchery. He also asked for as light a sentence as possible.

County Attorney Albert F. Pratt, who has fought the case from the first, stated that the state demanded the extreme punishment. The defendants had been given a fair trial and had been found guilty. He graphically described the crime where the "innocence of childhood was laid as a sacrifice at the feet of cruel and coldblooded crime."

Judge Giddings called the three convicted murderers to the bar and after asking their ages, residence and occupations, stated that he believed the verdict honest and true. Turning to the prisoners he asked the three if they had anything to say, Kolb replied: "I'm innocent, altho found guilty. If money is furnished, I think I can get the right one."

Kaldorwit said: "I wish to thank the court and all for the courtesy extended. I am innocent. I am willing to take an oath before God, that I never killed the boy, never was in that saloon." "I am innocent."

Sentences Are Imposed.

Continuing, the court sentenced Kaldorwit to hard labor for life at Stillwater. Kolb and Hammon were sentenced to hard labor for thirty years, the limit for third-degree murder.

BIARRITZ IS CHILLY TO LADY ROSSLYN

Countess, Who Was Miss Anna Robinson, Coldly Stared At by the Fashionables.

Biarritz, May 17.—The arrival here of the Earl and Countess of Rosslyn (Miss Anna Robinson, the American actress), caused quite a sensation. The new countess was stared out of countenance when she appeared on the golf links, but she stood the ordeal very well and returned stare for stare.

It has been noticed, however, that his old acquaintances made no effort to greet Lord Rosslyn or to be introduced to his wife. The general opinion at Biarritz is that Lady Rosslyn will find it rather difficult to gather any kind of social circle about her, the smart set here having learned that Lord Rosslyn's powerful and titled relations have so far failed to recognize her.

Palpitation of the heart, nervousness, tremblings, nervous headache, cold hands and feet, pain in the back, and other forms of weakness are relieved by Carter's Iron Pills, made especially for the blood, nerves and complexion.

For any case of nervousness, sleeplessness, weak stomach, indigestion, dizziness, try Carter's Little Nerve Pills. Relief is sure. The only nerve medicine for the price in market.

CHIMES TO OPEN THE FAIR.

Portland, Ore., May 17.—The chimes for the government building for the Lewis and Clarke fair have arrived here.

When President Roosevelt starts the expedition by pressing an electrical key at Washington he will at the same time start the chimes to the tolling of "America," and thus signal that the fair is open.

Washington, May 17.—"Vaccination is the only true and practical preventative of smallpox."

This belief was unanimously expressed at today's session of the conference of state and provincial health boards of the United States.
