WOMEN DOUSE A WIFE-BEATER

NEARLY DROWN A PRISONER IN THE EXCELSIOR JAIL.

Mrs. Ed Creleman's Injuries Arouse Sympathy of Women of the Village Who, Unable to Throw the Prisoner into the Lake, Souse Him Well in His Cell.

Excelsior, usually quiet, peaceable and orderly, last night had an uprising of riotously indignant women. Disturbances of the kind are about as much in place in Excelsior as the sporting editor of a yellow journal at a church festival, and as a result of the regular residents of the town blame the summer residents and the lakiers say the townspeople are to blame.

Ed Creleman, a pilot on one of the boats running out of Excelsior, was arrested yesterday afternoon charged with assaulting his wife and was locked in the village cooler, a small one-story affair, there to repent at leisure on his unamused Sunday.

Later in the afternoon Mrs. Creleman appeared on the street with both eyes blackened and other evidences of the treatment she had received. Her condition excited the keenest sympathy among the women, who planned vengeance.

After the evening's duties had been attended to after the children and husbands had been safely put to bed, dresses were seen silently moving from various houses in the town, and after midnight, and midnight in Excelsior is 10,000,000 degrees removed from a boiler shop—it has the stillness of the grave.

The thirty or forty women who assembled whispered their plans to one another. As the skin shell of the wet moon hid behind a cloud, a call for help was given. Down the street the determined and indignant women of Excelsior went determined to take the culprit Creleman from the warm cot and shove him into the lake.

The jail was too strong. Efforts to batter down the door or pick the lock were unavailing. The prisoner finding himself unable to escape, called to the women. This was too much. The women got buckets and repairing to a neighboring pump began to work.

Water was poured through the bars and down thru the jail windows and it all went splashing over the prisoner, who was drenched. He began to call for help. People ran about the jail and set up a cry of jail delivery. This eventually reached the ears of Marshal John Powers, who dressed himself and came to the jail.

He found the women gathered there, and the women had gathered their skirts about them and fled. The prisoner dried out today and this evening will be arraigned in court.

WORK AND PLAY

WHAT THEY WANT

Statement of Demands of N. P. and C. N. Telegraphers.

It is denied by President H. B. Perham of the railway telegraphers that he sent an ultimatum to the railroad officials. He said: "I am here to meet the Northern Pacific officials in a conference. Our demands are, in substance: The reinstatement of three discharged men; F. Brown, general chairman; H. C. Carlson, general secretary and treasurer, and C. C. Turney of the Spokane relay office, and an increase of wages as follows: At points east of Mandan, an increase of $5 a month, between Mandan and Spokane, an increase of $5 or a minimum of $2.50; west of Spokane, an increase of $5 or a minimum of $60, and on the relay division we desire $70 a month. In addition to this increase, we ask for compensation for Sunday work."

SALOONS WORSE THAN BASEBALL

SO MAYOR DECLARES REGARDING SUNDAY OBSERVANCE.

He Believes Outdoor Sports Are Clean and Proper Even on Sunday If Those Engaging in Them Have No Other Time—North Side Delegation Makes a Protest.

"I would rather close the saloons on Sunday than stop the ball games," said Mayor David P. Jones today to a delegation of Northsiders who asked him to stop the Sunday baseball games on the vacant block at Third street and Twenty-first avenue N.

"Personally I don't believe in spending the Sabbath this way," the mayor continued, "but I believe in healthful outdoor athletics and if Sunday is the only time which the boys and young men have for recreation, they should be encouraged provided no disturbance is created. They might be doing something much worse. My attention has been called to the ball games in your part of the city and I have investigated them quite carefully. Captain Smith of the north precinct says that the games are much less objectionable than formerly. I have talked with the players personally and find them a decent lot of boys. I don't want to interfere with their recreation if it can possibly be prevented. If there is any connection with the saloons and the games, rather close the saloons if the people insist on it. Isn't there some way that this matter can be adjusted to the satisfaction of all?"

"Why don't you do your duty?" demanded T. A. Rydell. "The laws are plain enough. Enforce them and close the saloons as well as the ball games. In our part of town, conditions are no better than before."

A Pointed Query. "You are the first man I have found who wants all the laws enforced to the letter," replied the mayor. "I can close the saloons, but what the situation be improved any? That is the only question. Is it not better to have the liquor traffic concentrated and directed under the eyes of the police, than to have it scattered under way in all parts of the city? I have tried to keep the saloons within reasonable bounds, and have been assured on all sides that there is a great improvement."

It was suggested that the ball grounds be enclosed with a high board fence and that an address be put on the wall as to keep out the tough element. Another suggestion was that additional policemen be detailed to that part of the city to keep order and when necessary to close the saloons in the immediate vicinity to be closed for some time after the ball game, until the crowd was dispersed, so that they would not gather in the saloons near by.

Mayor Jones received the various suggestions most cheerfully and promised to have the matter looked into carefully. He will have additional policemen on hand next Sunday, and if the complaints continue, will close the saloons. Only a last resort will be any interference with the ball games.

TIERED UP PAYING RENT

NORTHROP, KING & CO. PAY $60,000 FOR THE BUILDING THEY ARE OCCUPYING.

Real estate activity has reached First street N. and Hennepin. The Northrop, King & Co., the seedsmen, have bought the five-story brick building they have occupied for twelve years from the Home Insurance company of New York for $60,000. The building was negotiated thru the agency of T. A. Jamieson.

Property has been stagnant in the Bridge Square district for years and the recent sale is the most important event since the demolition of the Smith & Zimmer building adjoining on Wisconsin Central tracks. Taken in connection with the announcement that the Great Northern road will build a postoffice building in the lower business section, the sale of the property is a further activity east of Second street.

ROBBER QUARTET GIVE UP STORIES

TWO HAVE BEEN HOLDING UP SALOONS AND PEDESTRIANS, ACCOUNTING FOR SEVERAL RECENT EXPLOITS—OTHER PAIR CAME FRESH FROM POSTOFFICE ROBBERY IN NORTH DAKOTA.

Unable to bear up under the terrible ordeal of the sweatbox, Robert Day, Arthur Kinyon, John Bell and Glenn Waldorf, who were held up Wednesday, have completely broken down. Their confessions clear up many of the robberies since the beginning of the year. Although the men lived together, they worked in pairs independently. Day and Kinyon were the first to break down, and realizing that full confession might gain them shorter sentences, they have told of all their work.

Their first piece of work was the holding up of the saloon at 117 Main street NE. They entered the saloon shortly before midnight during a spring snowstorm and commanded the bartender to turn his face to the wall while they went thru the till for the money. They ran out the back way and disappeared. About two weeks later they held up a saloon at 700 Marshall street and obtained about $50.

They then told the police that they held up a farmer on the Columbia Heights road, obtaining $15, and that on the same day they were held up by a man arrested, they held up Christ Christanson and Albert Gustafson while they were going to work late Monday night. It was a small amount of money, but the clue enabling them to round up the quartet. Tuesday night they held up E. G. Copeland at Camden Place and obtained a small amount of money. Both Day and Kinyon declare they will plead guilty to any one of these charges and have already signed the confessions.

Robbed S. D. Postoffice. Waldorf and Bell, the other two found in the rooming house Wednesday night, have been in Minneapolis but a short time, coming from around S. D. where they held up the postmaster and obtained $100 in cash and $120 in stamps. The men claim Arkansas, Iowa, as their home and they have also made complete confession, also they have done no work here. They told the details of the Loomis robbery and when Superintendent Doyle sent a telegram to the Loomis police today they went to the home of Bell's father, who lives near there, and found the stolen stamps and a part of the money. It was in small change and had to be left behind because of the bulkiness.

After their confession to the police they were taken before the government postal officers, Fones and Simmons, to whom they repeated their story. They were taken back to Dakota and tried in the federal court.

The effective work of the police in the last week in arresting criminals of the Loomis robbery and the other cases of big robberies. When the last gang was arrested the evidence against them was mostly substantial and for a time it seemed as if they would have to be set free, but by combined effort the detective confronted them with a mass of evidence and they admitted their guilt.

Day and Kinyon will probably be arraigned tomorrow on charges of high robbery. They are being held in the city jail. They were being made to connect these men with the murder of Emil Rogatz in February, although Kinyon was once before brought to court on a charge of telling of his doings on that night. Both men claim that they had nothing to do with the murder.

TO DISCUSS CHILDREN

National Home Society to Meet in St. Paul Next Week.

The annual conference of the National Children's Home Society will open Tuesday afternoon at the city hall in St. Paul. The morning will be occupied with the report of the secretary, Dr. H. H. Hart, formerly of Minneapolis, and reports from the various branches of the society. The afternoon will be given to "The Progress of the National Society; What It Means to Child Saving," by National Superintendent W. B. Hubbard of South Dakota and Field Secretary Rev. G. C. Knobel of Illinois; "The Proper Equipment of a Children's Home Society," by Secretary Harry; "The Shews of War, How to Provide Them," by Rev. J. P. Dysart of Wisconsin and Rev. G. C. Knobel of Chicago.

One of the interesting features of the meeting will be the presentation of the child-saving movement in the United States, by Dr. H. H. Hart, Tuesday evening. The meetings on Wednesday will be held at the Jeanette Hotel, and will be given by the Minnesota society at St. Anthony Park, and at 3 o'clock the delegates will be taken for a trolley ride thru the twin cities. The evening session will be held at the Minnehaha Park, where a banquet and open-air meeting will be held.

LORD AND LADY EN TOUR

Titled Visitors from England Enjoy a "Seeing Minneapolis" Journey.

Lord and Lady Tregar of England took a Journal "Seeing Minneapolis" tour this morning and, barring an early sunset, the trip embraced the choicest and most available opportunity of seeing the city as it should be seen, in the shortest space of time.

In compliance with a ruling by the attorney general the child labor law will be enforced to the letter, and particularly with regard to the employment of children in shows. Considerable latitude has been allowed in this matter and children of tender years have frequently been seen on the local stages. L. B. Torrance, in a recent public hearing, pointed out the fact that he had been instructed to enforce the law and in 16 months he had been permitted to perform in public as dancer, ropewalker, gymnast, contortionist, rider or acrobat. Parents or guardians who permitted such engagements to their children would be prosecuted for misdemeanor under the statutes.

ONLY A FOOT FROM THE DANGER MARK

RIVER CONTINUES TO RISE AND PRESSURE TO INCREASE.

Rise Was Six Inches in the Last Twenty-four Hours, and It Will Be Still Higher—Lumbermen Say There Is No Danger from the Log Jam.

The above table shows the pressure registered at the Camden Place pumping station since Sunday. An engineer at the plant says that in the sixteen years the station has been operating, there has never been any such pressure as is registered at present.

The Government gage at St. Paul has registered as follows in the same time:

Monday 87.7 tons pressure
Tuesday 98.3 tons pressure
Wednesday 99.3 tons pressure
Thursday 100.1 tons pressure
Friday 100.7 tons pressure

The Mississippi river is still rising at all points north of La Crosse, the rise since yesterday morning being four inches at St. Paul and St. Cloud to about 3 inches at Little Falls.

The St. Paul river gage this morning reads 1 1/2 feet higher than the levee protection today, but the levee protection has been necessary to operate the emergency pump for several days.

Another six-inch rise was made by the Mississippi in the last twenty-four hours and the river now stands within one foot of the government danger mark of 14 feet. The same increase has been noted farther up the river. The gage on the O. A. Smith millpond stands at 15 feet 4 inches—higher than it has registered for years.

No Danger at Log Jam.

Lumbermen and river men and the boom company are in an area at the high-hair scare stories started concerning the log jam above Camden Place. The logs are purposely jammed at that point every year to keep the boom company from coming down the river. This method is taken to keep the logs until wanted, and in the language of one lumberman, there is no more danger of their breaking loose with a great rise than there is of their floating back up river. The jam is like an arch in resisting strain, and is really a protection, as it relieves the strain on the booms.

It is admitted that the greatest danger at the present time is the dams far above the city. The dams are being broken and a sudden head of water to come pouring down, it might be attended with serious results. The dams are being broken and a sudden head of water to come pouring down, it might be attended with serious results. The dams are being broken and a sudden head of water to come pouring down, it might be attended with serious results.

Scenes on the Flats.

Fearful of the old friend, the river, the residents of the flats under the Washington avenue bridge are torn between a strong desire to leave and a stronger desire to stay. For the first time since the present rise began, and for the first time in several years, the flatters, especially those on the lower streets, are really worried. While apparently indifferent to their danger, they are anxious. They stand about in groups on high spots in the flats, and in tongues discuss the situation. To outsiders, they will say nothing.

Little domestic tragedies are engaged almost every hour. Here are deeds of heroism that will never be known. Lives are saved every day at the risk of others. Property is protected at the same risk. A rushing, foaming torrent pours down the upper end of narrow Cooper street today, washing out banking and fences, and flooding houses and outbuildings. The lower end of Wood street, which faces the river directly under the bridge, is seething. The water is two feet deep in some of the houses on the lower end of the street and families have been compelled to move out. In places men and women are working hip-deep in water to protect their buildings and property. Rocks are at a premium and there is a constant stream of wheelbarrows filled with them, as the stones from the bluff back of the settlement. The breaking of a single dam in the upper river probably would carry away over half of the homes and outbuildings. The householders know this and wait and watch.
